Fascist Forces in Tigre Province Reach Takkaze River in Direction of Lake Tana and Also Occupy Dessu Region.

STRONG RESISTANCE

In Southern Sector, According to Rome Communique, Flyers Extend Reconnaissance and Observe Enemy Movements

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Nov. 13.—The Italian northern army tightened its hold on Ethiopia's Tigre province today, reaching the Takkaze River in the west and the region of Dessu in the east.

An official communique says: "Gen. Emilio de Bono telegraphed: The First Army Corps occupied the region of Dessu, joining with the Danakil column. The native army corps completed occupation of the Gheralca region, overcoming resistance by strong enemy groups. The Second Army Corps arrived with its columns at the edge of the Takkaze River, halting at Adi Rassi and Adi Enacato. On the Somaliland front, operations are continuing. Aviation forces have observed the movements of enemy, extending their reconnaissance to Lake Asangi and in Eastern Ogaden. The Takkaze River runs about 50 miles south of the former border between Ethiopia and Italy's colony of Eritrea, west of the main northern front. The Dessu region, to the east of the main front line, lies between desolate Danakil Desert and the interior of Ethiopia. Press reports from Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland, say Ras Nasibu, Ethiopian Governor of Harar, is thought to be withdrawing his main forces from the southern front. From Adowa, center of the first front established by the Italians in the north before they pushed on to Takkaze, regular and native patrols of the Second Army Corps drove south by rapid marches, penetrating to the town of Deraga, a center of some importance on the caravan route from Adowa to Ataba. This move carried the Italian colors into new regions 15 to 20 miles southwest of Adowa. Battles likely, Italians say, at Harar and Jijiga. By the Associated Press. ASMAR, Eritrea, Nov. 13.—The center of interest in the Italian-Ethiopian war is moving toward the main Italian objectives of Harar and Jijiga. Military action on a large scale may be expected at those two points, roughly midway between the present front line of Italy's northern and southern armies. The Italian military views are made available in reports published at this troop center. These reports say the Ethiopian high command "will lead local forces in the north with the task of placing obstacles before the Italian advance, maintaining lines of communication and terrorizing the population along the line of march in order to prevent an uprising." The reports continue: "Since the western side, whence fresh supplies come but slowly, is secure, while the same cannot be said for the eastern side, we foresee the center of gravity of future Ethiopian operations shifted toward Harar and Jijiga." The Italian reports say this war is difficult, but not only for the Italians. "The offensive capacity of the enemy is great owing to his numbers, his knowledge of the territory and the assistance he might receive; but it cannot last because he cannot be fed continually with fresh troops and the right supplies," say the reports. "Our capacity is certainly much less, but practically inexhaustible." The first phase of the forthcoming operations is a march to the Takkaze river by the Italian right column, aided by native forces from the Seit river sector. The Ethiopians thus far have not ac-

ARTHUR KILLAM DIES
WHEN HUNTING DUCKS

Champion Trapshooter Falls Dead in Blind Near Charleston, Mo.

Arthur Killam, 55 years old, a salesman for the Remington Arms Co., and a champion trapshooter, fell dead while duck hunting today about five miles north of Charleston, Mo.

Mr. Killam, who resided at 7057 Stanford avenue, University City, was on a hunting trip with four companions at Big Lake, near Charleston. Shortly before noon, he left for Charleston to get lunch for the party. When he failed to reappear at the duck blind, his companions searched for him and one of them found his body lying in a few feet of water near the blind.

Dr. A. H. Marshall of Charleston said death was due to angina pectoris, a heart condition. Mr. Killam had been Missouri doubles trapshooting champion for 28 years.

GREAT BRITAIN WON'T MAKE INDIVIDUAL REPLY TO ITALY

Feels Joint Answer on Sanctions by All Nations Concerned Is Only Way.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 13.—An authoritative source said today that Great Britain, in a new rebuff to Premier Mussolini, has let it be known that it is not considering an individual reply to Italy's note protesting against the application of League of Nations' sanctions.

It was stated authoritatively that the British Government, contrary to Italy's request for individual replies, feels a joint answer by all countries should be framed through the League of Nations.

Inasmuch as the nations are acting jointly at Geneva, this source said, there are no grounds for individual notes of protest, and therefore Great Britain feels that a reply should be forwarded only after exchanges of views leading up to a joint answer. Such exchanges, it was said, have not been begun.

Students Celebrating Independence Day Denounce Britain's Foreign Secretary.

By the Associated Press.
CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 13.—Thirty-nine persons were injured today in clashes between police and students celebrating Independence day. Crowds smashed windows of the British Consulate.

The situation was quieted as Egyptian infantry took over control from the police, but further trouble was feared after a mass meeting called for tonight.

One person was killed and three seriously injured at Tanah when police fired on a hostile crowd. Forty-five policemen were hurt, 13 seriously.

The students celebrated Egypt's Independence day by holding demonstrations in which speakers denounced Sir Samuel Hoare, British Foreign Secretary.

PLEA OF GUILTY

Compromise of Criminal Case Against Firm, Officers and One Other, Is Thereby Completed.

GOVERNMENT GETS
TOTAL OF $5000

This Includes Quasi Penalty Under Internal Revenue Laws Accepted by Justice Department.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 13.—Arthur M. Curtis, Republican National Committeeman for Missouri, is continuing a check of Works Progress Administration employees in Missouri to support his recent complaint to Relief Administrator Hopkins in Washington that with few exceptions the 650 staff employees have been chosen because they were Democrats and in many instances because of their allegiance to the Pendergast organization in Kansas City.

On the basis of complete reports from two WPA districts and partial reports from the nine others, Curtis today said that he had been able to find three Republicans who had jobs.

Matthew S. Murray, State WPA Administrator, questioned in Jefferson City, was able to name only three Republican employees, and, as they were not the same three named by Curtis, there are apparently at least six, and probably a few others scattered about in minor positions.

Curtis has delegated to an active Republican in each of the WPA districts the job of supplying the names of the employees and ascertain the political affiliation of each and the salary paid him.

Recalls President's Pledge. "From many reports I had received," Curtis said, "I became satisfied that the pledge made by President Roosevelt and Administrator Hopkins that there would be no politics in the WPA was being violated and that the huge WPA appropriation allotted for Missouri was being used to strengthen an already powerful political organization."

"I became convinced that there was a deliberate design to use the WPA for political purposes in advance of and during the approaching campaign, and I wanted to ascertain the facts. To get them I selected one active Republican in each of the districts, a man whom I knew could be trusted to report only the facts."

"These investigators have found great difficulty in obtaining the payrolls and so far only two districts are complete. There is a very evident disposition to conceal the facts from me."

Curtis said that as a Republican active in party politics he realized that the party in power almost invariably gave the jobs at its disposal to adherents to that party, and that in the general administrative affairs of the state and nation he had no fault to find with that practice.

Charity and Politics. "But this is an entirely different matter," he said. "The whole people of the United States have anything to be taxed are being assessed by the Government for charity, to provide jobs for those who have no jobs, to keep people from starving, and we find the political party which is temporarily in control of the Government turning the whole charity enterprise into a scheme to perpetuate the power of the factional political boss in Kansas City."

"Throughout the State and nation there are now under way drives to obtain funds to provide food and clothing for the millions who will not be reached by the huge Federal appropriations, and Republicans as well as Democrats are subscribing without thought of politics. Then why should the money formerly taken from the people by taxation for the same purpose be used for political purposes?"

Curtis exhibited the reports he had received in response to his request for information. His informant from the Sikot district reported that all the 60 employees there were Democrats except one, an assistant supervisor, whom he classed as a "former Republican."

In the Farmington district only one Republican was reported.

In the Springfield district with a similar number of employees all were stated to be Democrats except one, who is a son-in-law of a Democratic city official.

"No Republicans Working." In Seaside it was reported an inquiry as to the division of jobs between Republicans and Democrats, brought from the official in charge the reply: "They're all Democrats. Hell, there ain't no Republicans working here."

"We have the right to assume, I think," Curtis said, "that if the entire amount of money used for administrative purposes is used to give jobs to Democrats that a similar policy will be followed in the employment of labor on the various projects. Already the information here is that one must be a Democrat to get any kind of a job, even common labor. In fact, according to our information, there is even a further requirement, he must be satisfactory to a particular faction in the Democratic party. For instance in this (Springfield)

OF HULLVERSON
CROSS-EXAMINED

Clara Thomas Admits She Told Falsehoods Seven Times and Truth Three, About Fake Suit.

QUESTIONED ON MONEY PAID TO HER

Witness in Disbarment Case Denies It Was in Consideration of Her Testimony.

Clara Thomas, first witness in the disbarment proceeding against Everett Hullverson and three associate lawyers, today heard and assented to listings of seven times when, as she now says, she gave false statements or testimony, and three times when she told the truth, as to the damage suit for her fall on a banana in a grocery. Hullverson and Robert L. Pribble, who handled the damage suit for her, are charged with unprofessional and unethical practice.

The disbarment case, instituted by the Bar Committee of the Eighth (St. Louis) Judicial Circuit, is being heard before John S. Farrington of Springfield, Special Commissioner for the Missouri Supreme Court, in the Civil Courts Building.

Testimony as to Clara Thomas' suit will be followed by testimony as to suits against mining and industrial companies, for alleged injuries from silicosis, lung disease caused by mineral dust. In the silicosis part of the inquiry, Hullverson, Pribble, Eugene J. Schmick and Francis O. Curran are co-defendants. All were associated in law practice in the International Building.

Fifty or more spectators, including a considerable number of lawyers, were in the courtroom, which is No. 4, Judge Ryan's room, through the day.

List of Falsifications. Patrick H. Cullen, counsel for Hullverson, cross-examining Clara Thomas, today read, and she agreed to, the list of her seven falsifications. These were (1) her first account of the case to Hullverson in his office in 1931; (2) a deposition which she gave after her suit had been filed; (3) her testimony in the trial of her case in the Circuit Court in March, 1933; (4) her statement in the Circuit Attorney's office in July, 1934; (5) her statement to Hullverson in his office June 7, last; (6) her statement at the Circuit Attorney's office June 8, and (7) her statement to the Bar Committee June 14.

George Wise, counsel for the Bar Committee, directed examination, listed, and the witness agreed to, three times when she had told the truth. These were (1) on her first appearance before the Bar Committee last April; (2) on her third appearance before that committee, July 24; and (3) in her direct testimony and cross-examination yesterday and today in the disbarment proceedings.

The woman, who was on the witness stand all day yesterday, completed her testimony at 11:25 a. m. today, after Cullen had staged a dramatic incident and a bit of comedy.

Identifies "Blind" Man. He related Ed Carver, the partly blind man who, Clara Thomas had testified, "planted" the banana on which she purposely fell, on the store floor. Carver, whose eyes appeared to be closed, walked forward, placing a cane on the floor frequently.

"Is that the man that put the banana on the floor?" the lawyer demanded.

"Yes, sir," the woman said. Asked by Wise about the degree of Carver's vision, she said, "He uses his cane when he sells notions on the street, and when he goes to the Blind Society to draw his pension, but he doesn't use it at home."

In lighter vein, Cullen then questioned the witness about her acquaintance with Ted Link and Hugh Wright, the National Lead investigators who obtained her testimony in the case. The lead company was defendant in some of the silicosis suits which figure in the disbarment case.

"You call them Teddy and Hughie, don't you?" Cullen asked. "I might call them Ted, and Hugh," the witness said. "Well, good-by," said Cullen, dismissing the witness. After the laughter subsided, Commissioner Farrington questioned her about points at which she had shown confusion in her replies.

Asked About Payments. Earlier in the cross-examination, Cullen brought out that the witness had received from the investigators $280, in three sums, and dwelt on a statement, obtained from her by

Distribution of 500,000 application blanks for drivers' licenses for residents of St. Louis was begun today by the Motor Vehicle Commission. A booklet containing instructions on the driver's license law and traffic regulations was given out with each blank.

Trucks carried loads of the blanks and booklets to office buildings, industrial plants and retail stores throughout the city which had volunteered to distribute them.

The commission will begin to receive applications Nov. 25 at temporary quarters in the exhibition hall of the Municipal Auditorium. The entrance will be on Fifteenth street. Clerks will be able to accommodate 500 to 600 persons a day, and the commission expects to issue 400,000 licenses at 50 cents each, good for a two-year period.

Questions to be answered on the applications relate to a physical description, length of driving experience, whether the applicant is an habitual drunkard, drug addict, mentally ill, a sufferer from epilepsy or has a serious physical disability, and whether the applicant wears spectacles while driving. Applicants between the ages of 16 and 18 years must have the signatures of their parents or guardians. No licenses will be issued to those under 16.

Each applicant must pass an eye-test requiring that he or she read letters four inches high, three inches wide, and with a three-quarter inch stroke, from 200 feet away.

A large number were without enough to eat and the situation was more serious than ever it had been, the delegation asserted. Failure of this year's wheat crop, they said, had made it impossible for the people to obtain a supply of flour.

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, Nov. 13.—Jean Batten, 25-year-old New Zealand flyer, landed at Natal, Brazil, at 4:25 p. m. local time (1:25 p. m. St. Louis time) today after a solo flight across the South Atlantic from Dakar, Senegal.

She thus became the first woman to fly alone across the South Atlantic, although French and German mail planes cross the South Atlantic regularly, and Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh accompanied her husband, Charles A. Lindbergh, on a flight from Africa to Brazil late in 1933.

Miss Batten, attempting a record flight from England to South America, left Dakar at 12:30 a. m. (St. Louis time) today and so required only 12 hours, 55 minutes for her trans-Atlantic flight. She flew a land plane.

She started two days ago from Lympe, England.

MISSOURIAN ENDS PRIVATE

That Amount of Demand Notes Crane (Mo.) Man Issued in 1933 Kept as Souvenirs.

By the Associated Press.
CRANE, Mo., Nov. 13.—Benjamin Franklin Carney has ended his private currency experiment $200 ahead.

Feb. 4, 1933, a month before the bank holiday, Carney printed 1000 demand notes of $1 each in rough imitation of paper currency. They read, "B. F. Carney will pay on demand, to bearer, one dollar." On the other side, "this note is an unqualified promise to pay the face value" etc., and is secured by $5000 in unencumbered assets on which all exemptions are hereby waived.

Carney handed out the notes instead of $1 bills. Events of 700 were in circulation. About 500 have been redeemed. Unexpectedly, Carney found himself $200 richer because about 200 of the notes were kept as souvenirs. Among the collectors were several banks, including the Chase National of New York.

Carney's original purpose was to illustrate his contention that the Government could pay the soldiers' bonus in greenbacks without ill effects.

CUT FARES MADE PERMANENT ON WESTERN RAILROADS

Passenger Traffic Jumps 50 Pct. Since December, 1933, When New Rates Were Started.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Low basic one-way passenger fares on Western railroads have been permanently adopted, Hugh S. Siddall, chairman of the Western Passenger Association announced today, due to a sharp upturn in business. Passenger traffic on those lines has jumped $1 per cent since December, 1933, Siddall said.

"In the first eight months of this year passenger revenues have climbed nearly $6,000,000 and accounted for the entire advance in total railroad revenues in the West."

The rates are 3 cents a mile, first class accommodations; 2 cents a mile, coaches; 1 1/2 cents for coaches on transcontinental trips, and 2 cents for tourist sleepers on transcontinental trips. Round trip reduced rates have not been made permanent, Siddall said.

Labor Organizer Testifies on Complaint Against

Threats by Crowd and Slugging on Street.

Testimony that the Chief of Police of Salem, Ill., requested that the charter of Shoe Workers' Local Union No. 655 of Salem be surrendered "in the interest of employment" at the Brown Shoe Co. plant in that town was given today by Morris L. Norris, organizer for the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, at the opening of the hearing at the new Federal Building on the complaint of the National Labor Relations Board against the Brown Shoe Co.

Charges that four women employees of the Salem shoe factory were laid off because they were members of the union are being contested by the Brown Co. at the hearing, which is before Dean Alphonse G. Eberle of St. Louis University law school, the trial examiner.

The Chief of Police, George James, came to his home at 10 o'clock on the night of Oct. 11, Norris testified, after about 200 non-union shoe workers and other citizens had swarmed over his lawn and the street with threats to take him "for a one-way ride."

Norris quoted Chief James as pointing out that he was interested "in work at the shoe factory, and it is obvious that there will be no work if the union continues." Chief James made an erroneous statement, the witness testified, that the Salem local was the only union in the Brown organization "and can do nothing by itself." The witness said he refused an invitation from Chief James to leave his home for a conference with representatives of the non-union workers and representative citizens because he feared he would be man-handled.

After the crowd dispersed men armed with clubs patrolled the sidewalk in front of his home for a week, Norris related. As a result of the picketing, he said, Mrs. Norris suffered a nervous breakdown and three weeks ago Norris moved his family, consisting of his wife and two sons, to Centralia, Ill.

Earlier in his testimony Norris, a former school teacher who was a shoe worker only eight months, told of the refusal to take back about 60 members following an inventory shutdown in October, 1933. About 900 employees returned to work following inventory and some of them were less efficient than the union members, the witness stated. Eventually all employees were taken back, except him and his wife, Mildred, Norris testified. During the interim until February, 1934, when he became a paid representative of the international union, his family had to obtain aid from a Federal relief agency.

Three-Week Strike in 1934. In April, 1934, the company failed to meet with labor representatives of its five plants in Illinois, and a strike was called. Norris testified. The strike lasted three weeks and, on the average salary basis of $14 a week for the 900 employees, who were forced out of employment through the strike, Norris estimated a total of $37,000 in wages was lost during the period.

Norris testified he was lured from his home by a fake telephone call on the night of Aug. 25 and was slugged by men, who first crashed their automobile into his home from the rear. He was knocked unconscious and required stitches inside his mouth, he related.

Testimony that A. A. Ahner, operator of a private detective agency, sat in at a meeting with union representatives at the Missouri Athletic Association last July as "industrial relations counselor" for the company was given by Norris, who quoted Ahner as stating "you know I am hired to break up your union and I am going to do it in any way I can." The witness identified a letter or Brown Shoe Co. stationery with Ahner's name inscribed as "industrial relations counselor."

Phillips Petroleum Co. and Subsidiary Cited in Complaint.

The Phillips Petroleum Co. and its subsidiary, the Phillips Pipe Line Co., were cited in a complaint filed yesterday by the National Labor Relations Board for discharging an employee of the pipe line terminal at Cahokia, near East St. Louis.

The complaint charged that the employee, W. J. Arens, was dismissed last Aug. 8 "for the reason that he joined and assisted a labor organization known as Local No. 18980 Federal Labor Union, of the American Federation of Labor, and engaged in concerted activities with other employees in the Cahokia terminal for the purpose of collective bargaining and other mutual aid and protection."

In discharging Arens the companies, the complaint alleged, "did thus discourage membership in the said local union and are engaging in unfair labor practices within the meaning of Sect. 8, Subdivision 3 of said Act"—the Wagner-Connelly Act.

It also was charged that the companies "dominated and entered into the administration of a labor organization of their employees known as the Employees' Benefit Association, and have contributed financially and other support thereto."

Hearing on the complaint was set for 10 a. m. Nov. 25 at the new Federal Building.

cepted a battle. Because of this, their movements could have great latitude.

From the Takkeze, running about 50 miles south of the former Ethiopian-British boundary, to the west of Italy's present front lines, the center of activity also could swing to Lake Ashangi, near the center of the Empire, or to Gondar, center of British power interests about 15 miles north of Lake Tana, as well as to Harar.

Once the main forces have arrived at the Takkeze, this system of marches and counter marches might have important developments, owing to the terrain and the contour of the rivers.

BRITISH ELECTION CAMPAIGN ENDS; VOTE TOMORROW

'Workable' Majority in Parliament for Premier Baldwin Predicted —
Speakers Heckled.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 13.—The British election campaign ended today, with political commentators predicting that Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's Government would receive a "workable" majority in the voting tomorrow.

As the campaign reached its climax, Winston Churchill, former First Lord of the Admiralty, who is mentioned for a Cabinet place if he is elected to Parliament, dodged stones thrown at his automobile in Liverpool.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, former Foreign Secretary, was heckled during a speech at Birmingham. He invited the hecklers to "come on up if you've got any pluck."

Former Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, Sir Godfrey Collins, Secretary for Scotland, and Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, were howled down when they appeared on campaign platforms.

The names of 1348 candidates have been entered. Government aspirants head the list with 584. The others are divided as follows: Labor, 551; Liberal, 51; Independent, 45; and Independent Labor, 17.

Thirty-seven candidates, including Prime Minister Baldwin, are unopposed.

The Government seeks approval of its program supporting the League of Nations, increased national defense and relief for the unemployed.

The Laborites agree on the League of Nations question, but favor disarmament and a sweeping social legislation.

Peace through disarmament and prosperity through employment of idle capital in a national development plan are favored by the Liberals.

The committee is composed of John V. Lee, chairman; Alonzo A. Alexander, Rodow H. Abekken, Frank C. Boland, Otis L. Clonts, Roy A. Fleh, Vincent M. Flynn, Cyrus Geers, Ralph R. Glessow, Alfred L. Grattendick, Raleigh McCormick and Gus O. Nations.

Charged With Conspiracy Against Official: One American, He Says.

By the Associated Press.
HAVANA, Nov. 13.—The Cuban Army intelligence service today arrested three youths, one of them, Elkhinn Winn, who says he is a United States citizen, and charged the three with plotting to attack the home of a "high Government employee."

The police said Winn's father was an American and his mother a Cuban, and that the youth was born in Havana.

Mexican President Recovering.
MEXICO CITY, D. F., Nov. 13.—The condition of President Lazaro Cardenas, who has been under medical care for some time, was said to be much improved yesterday.

Italian soldiers captured six trucks. Italian soldiers surviving this encounter are said to have fled in panic.

An official statement today said an Italian plane had dropped six bombs on Dagah Bur, wounding a woman and a child. Dagah Bur is 100 miles southeast of Jijiga, near Sasa Baneh.

The British general staff map, published by the War Office in London, does not list an Anele in Ogaden province.

Military activity in that sector has centered this week about Sasa Baneh, some 100 miles northeast of Gorrabel, which the Italians captured last week, and an equal distance short of the next major objective of Jijiga.

Earlier Italian reports said the Fascist invaders seized Sasa Baneh and drove advance guards forward to Dagah Bur, 30 miles to the northwest, both of which gains were denied by the Ethiopian Government.

The Italian Government communique yesterday said of activity in this sector only: "Cleaning up work proceeds in the territory north of Gorrabel."

Hullverson Client Cross-Examined

Hullverson, but which she now declares to be false, that the investigators had tried to bribe her.

"I was trying to get things straightened out and tell the truth," she said as to her last statement before the Bar Committee, and she still expected to marry Joe Varner, and that they had had a child, which was "adopted out."

Letters Read Into Record.

Attorney Cullen read into the record a number of letters identified by the witness as having been exchanged between her and Hullverson last summer. Letters written by her to Hullverson told of efforts of Wright and Link to see her in Kansas City, and Hullverson's letters, identified from carbon copies from his files, advised her to have the two men arrested if they annoyed her.

One letter from Hullverson to her, dated July 7, read:

"I was glad to receive your letter and am sincerely glad to see that you are still sticking up for truth and honesty. These fellows will keep trying to bother you, but all you have to do is to notify the police any time, and the police will be mighty glad to arrest them. Do not hesitate to do this, because you have nothing to fear."

"In the event you need any legal representation in Kansas City at any time, I want you to call on Mr. Louis Wolf, or Mr. Rogers, of the firm of Mosman, Rogers, Bell & Buzard, and state to them that I asked them to help you out in any such matters."

"My all means have these fellows arrested if they bother you. I do not believe they will bother you any more, inasmuch as I just filed suit against the National Lead Co. and this outfit. I am sending you a clipping of the item. Kindly keep me advised of any further attempts to bribe you or to intimidate you. I wish you would also write and let me know what these fellows did with Joe (Varner) when he was in St. Louis, or better still, have Joe drop me a line."

After the reading of July 13, replying to one from Clara Thomas, Hullverson again advised her to have the two men arrested if they annoyed her. On July 25, the day after Clara Thomas had testified before the Bar Association Committee, Hullverson wrote her, saying: "They are trying to worry you. They are doing that to try to save their own skins."

He again advised her to call on the "Circuit Attorney and tell how they bribed you to make these statements" and "how they are trying to get you to do something which is not right."

Joe Varner Says He Was Told He Could Make "Easy Money."

Joe Varner, truck driver, of 2903 Troost avenue, Kansas City, was called today as the second witness. He told a story, similar to that told by Clara Thomas, of the faked accident in the grocery store, and of some parts of the negotiations with Attorney Pribble and the lead company investigators. He did not give much direct testimony as to Hullverson.

CONDUCTS HEARING

It began, Varner said, when Ed Carver said he could make "easy money, $200 or $300," by an accident to Clara Thomas in the store.

"I didn't want to go into it," he said, "but I said Clara was 21 and could do what she wanted to." He said Carver's sister, Mrs. Letitia Johnson, insisted on having a part in the affair. At the time, Varner and Clara were boarding at the home of Carver's mother, 809 Park avenue.

Tells of Agreement With Lawyer.

He said the first he heard of the occurrence of the faked accident was when the store manager brought Clara to the house, the evening of Nov. 20, 1931. He told of the coming of a physician and of one John Miller, who, he said, first suggested engaging a lawyer in the Buder Building, then said Everett Hullverson would be better than any other lawyer.

As to Carver's defective vision, Varner said, "One of his eyes is no good, but the other is good enough for him to see to get around, except that he has to be careful at street curbs. He can play cards, but has to hold the cards to one side."

He told of a visit made to him by Pribble in Kansas City, early in year, and quoted Pribble as saying to him, "If this goes into court and gets into the papers, we'll be all mashed out." He said Pribble told him of having worked as a house detective and a bounce, to "get where he was" and added that "we'll all be through" if the inquiry had an unfavorable result.

Varner said he did not go to St. Louis but that Pribble persuaded Clara to go.

Varner told of receiving $180, in three installments, from Link, aside from the payments made by the investigator to Clara.

Attorney Cullen, beginning the cross-examination of Varner, asked about many details of his life. The witness said that he had a wife and two children, from whom he had been separated since 1929.

The luncheon recess came here. At the afternoon session, Cullen questioned Varner in great detail about the quest of Link and Wright in Kansas City, for Clara, after she had left for St. Louis at the instance of Pribble.

Varner's Motive.

Cullen attempted to show a money motive for Varner's testimony. When the witness would not admit that he had testified as he did because of the money he had received, Cullen demanded:

"Well, then, were you acting for love of the truth, or to burnish the beauty of the Missouri Bar?"

"No," said Varner, "it was on account of what they did to Clara." This, he explained, referred to a time when, as she had testified, Hullverson placed a guard to watch her, at a St. Louis boarding place and while she was in Terre Haute, Ind.

"Didn't you beat her almost to death when she came back without money?" the lawyer asked. "I wouldn't say that," was the reply.

After Varner was excused, Attorney Wise, for the Bar Committee, introduced records of the "banana lawsuit" in the Court of Appeals, to show that Hullverson

JUDGE MOORE DISQUALIFIED IN MOVIE INJUNCTION SUIT

Appeals Court to Name Jurist to Hear Case Brought by Government.

As a result of two affidavits filed in Federal Court today and late yesterday, alleging that Judge Moore was prejudiced against defendants who were acquitted in the movie conspiracy trial Monday and the same corporate interests against which an injunction suit is pending, Presiding Judge Stone of the Circuit Court of Appeals will designate some other Judge to hear the injunction case.

Filing of the affidavits automatically disqualified Judge Moore. He will report the fact to Judge Stone, who will open a term of appeals court here Monday. It was believed Judge Stone would make a selection soon, since the Government has been pressing for early trial.

The Government asked in the injunction case that interests of Warners, Paramount and R-K-O be restrained from refusal to supply films to these theaters, which were taken over by Fanchon & Marco last year.

Entertained in Night Club.

Cullen insisted, but the witness placidly refused to admit, that her present testimony as to Hullverson was "born in the night club" where the two lead company men entertained her and Varner in Kansas City. Cullen sought, also without success, to get her to admit that she knew the two men represented "the $1,000,000 National Lead crowd," which was trying to get Hullverson because he had filed suits against them.

"They took you," Cullen declared, "right to the door of the puritanical friend, George Wise, and shoved you right in, and along about that time they told you about the lead company, and said they were going to put Hullverson out of business."

The witness would not say that it happened just that way, but she said that the two wrote their names and addresses on an envelope, which they gave her, telling her to call them if she needed anything.

From the envelope, which was in his hands, Cullen read a few lines of verse, ending, "You can change me about, I'll do what you want me to." He sought to connect this expression with Clara Thomas' understanding with the two investigators.

"Oh, no," the witness said unconcernedly. "That was just a song, and wrote down the words."

At the first report meeting for workers in the United Charities campaign, held today at Hotel Statler, it was announced that $352,600 had been obtained since the drive opened Monday night. The goal set in the campaign is $2,850,000.

It was the first time that figures from the three main divisions in the campaign were announced. At a meeting of the larger subscriptions division held last Friday it was said that workers in this division had raised more than $800,000 prior to the formal opening of the campaign. Only part of this amount was included, however, in the figure announced today.

Contributions by Divisions.

The amount announced today was divided among the three divisions as follows: Larger subscriptions division, individual unit, $260,000; corporations unit, $39,000; Group solicitation division, $18,600; General division, $35,000.

In the campaign last year the amount which was collected by the first report meeting was announced as being $385,125.

The campaign, which will last for two weeks, is being held to secure funds for 89 agencies selected from the Community Fund, the Catholic Charities and the Jewish Federation.

The principal speaker at the meeting today was the Rev. Alpha H. Kenna, pastor of Union Methodist Episcopal Church. During luncheon his three daughters, the Miss Elaine, Miss Dorothy and Miss Laura Kenna, sang a number of songs. The invocation was offered by the Rev. Alfred G. Thompson of St. Louis Cathedral.

Cause of Communism.

"If you were told," the Rev. Mr. Kenna said, "that a group of Communists were outside ready to take over the country, most of you would rush out to do something about it. You must do the same about this campaign, for there are conditions existing in St. Louis today which I need just those causes of discontent which start a revolt and produce those movements which threaten the government. It is these conditions which the money raised in this drive attempts to correct."

Class activities in all of the public grade and high schools in St. Louis and St. Louis County were stopped at 1:30 p. m. today to permit the teacher or a student of each class to make a speech on the United Charities campaign.

The chairman of the various divisions who made their reports to the following: Larger subscriptions division, individual unit, Samuel Plant; local corporation unit, Ernest W. Stix; general division, Benjamin M. Loebe; group solicitation division, Eugene H. Harris; county unit, E. W. LaTour; medical unit, Dr. E. V. Mastin; dental unit, Dr. Virgil Loeb.

The next report meeting will be held at the Statler Hotel tomorrow noon.

A permit to wreck a three-story brick residence at 25 Vandeventer place, formerly the home of the late William H. Lee, banker, was issued yesterday to the Ralph D'Oench Co., managers for the Wellston Trust Co., owner. It was the fourth wrecking permit issued this year for Vandeventer place houses.

D'Oench said the place was being torn down to save taxes and cost of maintenance, the same reasons given for tearing down the other buildings. It was built about 30 years ago by John C. Orrick, who sold it to Lee in 1893 for $36,000. Lee moved away two years before his death in 1929 and sold the place to Henri Chouteau, who rented it out for a time. The house has been vacant several years.

ROOSEVELT DISCUSSES ST. LOUIS MEMORIAL

Tells of Oral Pledge of Aid and Indicates He Will Sign Executive Order.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—President Roosevelt said today that the Government had given an oral agreement to begin at once the work of raising buildings on the site of the memorial to Thomas Jefferson and the Western pioneers on the St. Louis river front.

The President added that he had discussed with Secretary of the Interior Ickes PWA Administrator, the form of an executive order to be signed by the President, making it possible for St. Louis to sell the $7,500,000 in bonds that were approved on Sept. 10, and with this amount to purchase the site.

It was pointed out to the President that an oral agreement was not sufficient to authorize sale of the bonds and commencement of the work. He indicated that he would sign the executive order shortly if it could be made to conform with the President's policy. The tentative draft of this order has not yet been submitted to him, he said.

President's Attitude.

City Counselor Charles M. Hay and Associate Counselor E. H. Wayman of St. Louis are now working out the form of the order with PWA's legal staff.

The President said that he could make no commitment for funds after July 1, 1936. He said he had no funds that might be applied after that date.

The amount that can be spent on the proposed memorial prior to July 1, and the number of men that can be put to work on the project are being discussed, the President said. He discussed it at lunch yesterday with Secretary Ickes, he added.

According to the original plan, the city would put up $7,500,000, the approximate cost of the site, and the Federal Government would agree to allocate $22,500,000, the balance of the cost of the Memorial. The sum that can be spent before July 1, chiefly for clearing the site, will obviously be small.

J. W. LANLEY, LAST SURVIVOR OF G. A. R. POST, DIES AT 86

Once Commander of Missouri Department; Funeral at 2:30 P. M. Friday.

John W. Lanley, last surviving member of the Col. Meumann Post of the Grand Army of the Republic, died today of heart disease at his home, 6308 Michigan avenue. He was 86 years old.

Mr. Lanley, a native St. Louisan, joined Company A, Fourth Cavalry Regiment of Missouri, when he was 17 years old. He was a mail carrier until his retirement 36 years ago. He has since commanded the Missouri Department of the G. A. R. His wife, Mrs. Sophia Etting Lanley, died in June, 1934. A sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Winter, 3421 Pestalozzi street, survives.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Friday at the Schumacher undertaking establishment, 3013 Meramec street, with burial in St. Trinity Lutheran Cemetery.

FIRE SWEEPS SCHOOL; EIGHT CHILDREN HURT

Jump From Second Floor at Selma, Va.—200 Others Get Out Safely.

By the Associated Press.

CLIFTON FORGE, Va., Nov. 13.—Eight small children, trapped in a fire that destroyed the Selma graded school here today, were injured when they jumped to safety from second-story windows.

An hour after the fire school authorities said none of the children perished in the flames but at the nearby Chesapeake & Ohio Hospital eight of them, suffering from injuries from broken bones, were being treated. Milton Craft, 9 years old, suffered fractures of both legs. Others, less seriously hurt or suffering only from shock, were carried to their homes.

D. L. Carter, who operates a store near the school, said "flames were bursting from the windows" when he hurried to the fire. Several had leaped when their means of exit had been cut off by the rapidly spreading blaze and as he neared the building a child, almost suffocated and apparently unconscious, was being carried down a ladder by firemen.

Firemen from Clifton Forge, across the river, Jackson River, from Selma, answered the alarm and concentrated their attention on saving the children. Some 200 children, most of them girls and boys not yet in their teens, were in the building when the fire was discovered. Carter said apparently the first started in the basement and spread upward rapidly.

district, I am informed by a prominent Democrat that unless an applicant is satisfactory to Congressman Wood he does not get a job."

Administrator Murray in Jefferson City denied that politics had any part in WPA administration.

"I have a job to do and I am trying to do it," he said, "and I haven't time for politics. I do not know how many Republicans and how many Democrats there are. They were selected only on their qualifications."

"Outstanding Men" Influence.

He said that while recommendations from politicians did not control the recommendation of "outstanding men in a community were taken into consideration."

When pressed to name as many Republicans as he could in the administrative organization, Murray could think of three. One was E. J. McGraw of Lexington, a former member of the State Highway Commission, who is designed to take care of needy professional men and women. Another was A. A. Spear, formerly a Jefferson City banker, and the third was a son of H. B. Pyle, a present member of the State Highway Commission.

Murray said there were approximately 600 administrative employees, and that at present 15,000 men were at work on 179 WPA projects in Missouri.

GRAND JURY CALLS MORE WITNESSES IN JONES INQUIRY

Doctor and Nurse From Jewish Hospital, Handwriting Expert and Midwife to Testify.

Four witnesses were summoned to testify at this afternoon's meeting of the grand jury, continuing its investigation of the charges that Wilfred Jones, attorney, committed perjury when he testified before Special Commissioner Rush H. Limbaugh of the St. Louis Court of Appeals in the Anna Ware habeas corpus suit.

After Jones had told an incredible story from the witness stand of having procured Anna Ware's baby for "clients," Commissioner Limbaugh denounced him from the bench as having committed "flagrant perjury," and requested the Circuit Attorney to conduct a grand jury investigation of Jones' testimony.

Witnesses called for today were Florence Shaw, a head nurse at the Jewish Hospital; Dr. William Bertram of the Jewish Hospital; Ralph C. Becker, a handwriting expert, and Mrs. Rebecca Winner, the retired midwife at whose home at 6015 Maple avenue Anna's baby was born last Aug. 17. All testified in the habeas corpus hearing.

At a lengthy meeting yesterday afternoon the grand jury heard the testimony of Julius Klein, a Star-Times reporter, and Miss Ware. Klein was in the jury room about two hours and Anna was there for more than an hour. The session ended at 6:30 p. m. Herman Da Costa, the court reporter who took the testimony in the habeas corpus hearing, also was before the grand jury for a few minutes presumably to identify a transcript of Jones' testimony which already had been read to the grand jury.

At the habeas corpus hearing Klein testified as to conversations with Jones in which the latter denied that Mrs. Grace Thomasson Diefenbach was the "nurse" who took Anna's baby from the Winner home about 17 hours after it was born, contradicting testimony which Jones gave naming Mrs. Diefenbach as the "nurse."

The grand jury witnesses summoned for today also gave testimony at the habeas corpus hearing contradicting Jones in many important details.

Miss Shaw and Dr. Bertram identified Mrs. Helen Berroyer of 5559 Pershing avenue, faithful friend of Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, and a respondent with Mrs. Muench, as the woman who, accompanied by Jones, took the Price baby to the Jewish Hospital July 11. The testimony showed the Price baby, who died July 16, had been in the Muench home and was the predecessor of the Ware baby in the Muench baby hoax exposed by the Post-Dispatch.

Jones testified Mrs. Diefenbach, a former client of his now out of the State, was the woman with him at the Jewish Hospital as well as at the Winner home the night Anna's baby was taken away. Becker, the handwriting expert, testified that a signature, "Helen Meyers," placed on a clothing receipt by the woman with Jones at the Jewish Hospital, was in the same handwriting as known signatures of Helen Berroyer, and was the same as samples of handwriting made by Mrs. Berroyer in the court room.

Three Other Meetings.

The grand jury has devoted three earlier meetings to the Jones investigation. One of the witnesses was Mrs. J. R. Plummer of Minneapolis, whose earlier testimony at the habeas corpus hearing was obviously to show that Jones' "clients," first described by him as "Mr. and Mrs. X," and later as "Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Palmer," were phantoms in the baby hoax, created by the skillful Jones in the image of Mr. and Mrs. Plummer.

A decision in the habeas corpus suit will not be made until after the transcribing of the testimony is completed. It is now about half done. The court reporter has estimated there will be 1800 to 2000 typewritten pages of it.

After the testimony is written up the Special Commissioner will make his report to the Court, including findings of fact and recommendations to the various respondents—Dr. Ludwig O. and Mrs. Muench, Jones and Mrs. Berroyer. The Court will make the decision. Meanwhile the baby that was in the Muench home, claimed by Anna as hers, is at the Children's Hospital where it was sent after the Court took custody of it "as evidence."

WIDOW OF TAXI MAN HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Murder Verdict at Inquest Into Shooting of William H. Nash at East St. Louis.

Mrs. Peggy Nash, who shot and killed her husband, William Howard Nash, partner owner of the Fuller Taxicab Co. in East St. Louis, during a quarrel Monday night, the fifth anniversary of their wedding, was taken to jail at Belleville yesterday following an inquest at which a coroner's jury returned a murder verdict and ordered her held for the grand jury.

Attractive 18-year-old Mrs. Opal Bryant, 1848 Cleveland avenue, East St. Louis, with whom Nash had spent Monday drinking at various East Side taverns, was released after Assistant State's Attorney Wendell J. Phillips had ordered that she give a $500 bond as a material witness.

Mrs. Bryant, a divorcee, formerly was employed as a waitress by Nash when he operated an East St. Louis tavern. She told police Nash was drunk when Mrs. Nash found them in a tavern at 2100 St. Clair avenue and took him to the Nash home at 1230 Illinois avenue where the shooting took place less than an hour later.

After making a statement to police in which she was quoted as saying her husband had told her he was leaving her to go "with someone else," Mrs. Nash denied that another woman was the reason for their quarrel. As to Mrs. Bryant, 12 years younger than she, she said, "I'd trust her with my husband anywhere."

At the inquest, Mrs. Nash sat with her lawyer and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grahns, 514 Brady avenue, East St. Louis. On advice of counsel, she did not testify. In another part of the room sat Mrs. Bryant.

Detective Sergeant Anton Hysky and Detective Lynel Farmer, who took a statement from Mrs. Nash, were the only witnesses. They related her story of abuse during five years of marriage and said she told them she took a small caliber automatic pistol from her husband after he had fired at her, and that she fired four times through a bathroom door after he had taken refuge there. Mrs. Nash wept during her testimony.

In a statement to a Post-Dispatch reporter, Mrs. Nash said the quarrel was because of her refusal to turn over to Nash a box of money which they kept in their home. His extravagance, she said, and his excessive drinking had been causes of frequent arguments.

The grand jury will convene Dec. 2 at East St. Louis.

DR. R. O. BULLARD HELD IN INQUIRY INTO THEFT

Dental Material Bought From Him Identified as Part of Loot.

Dr. Richard O. Bullard, a physician, 3829 Westminster place, was taken into custody by police today in their investigation of the theft of $880 worth of dental supplies from Dr. James H. Gonder of the Biltmore Hotel, representative of a Columbus (O.) supply firm.

Police reported they found about $50 worth of the supplies in Dr. Bullard's home. He said he had found them in an ashpit in his back yard.

He was detained after Dr. Irving Solar, dentist, with offices at 6635 Delmar boulevard, University City, turned over to police a quantity of dental supplies which he said he had bought from Dr. Bullard for $31.50. He said he had read in newspapers of the theft of supplies from Dr. Gonder. Dr. Bullard offered them for sale, Dr. Solar said, explaining he had had them for years but had no further use for them.

Dr. Gonder identified the articles turned over by Dr. Solar as $125 worth of the stolen supplies. He had left them in suitcases in the storeroom of the Biltmore Hotel when he went to New Orleans Nov. 2 to attend a convention. He reported them missing last Sunday. Police held as evidence the supplies found in Dr. Bullard's home, as well as $49 in cash which they found on his person. Later Dr. Bullard was released on bond.

BROADWAY STREET CAR OPERATOR ROBBED OF $40

Armed Man Orders Employee to Keep Going; Other Takes Money Changer and Bills.

Chester Lodge, 5753 Helen avenue, St. Louis County, operator of a one-man Broadway street car, was held up last night by two men, who boarded the car at Humboldt street and took $40 from him.

A white man drew a pistol and ordered Lodge to keep the car moving, while his companion, a Negro, took the motorman's money changer, containing $15, and $25 in bills. After riding two blocks, the men ordered Lodge to stop the car and they fled on foot.

U. S. DESTROYERS TAKE 50 OFF SHIP ON ROCKS; 4 DEAD

Captain, Woman and Two Sailors Lost in Wreck Near Southern Tip of Island of Luzon.

By the Associated Press.
MANILA, P. I., Nov. 13.—Fifty survivors from the British freighter Silverhazel, which broke in two Saturday on rocks in San Bernardino Strait, 250 miles southeast of here near the tip of Luzon Island, were rescued yesterday by two destroyers of the U. S. Navy, the Peary and the Bulmer, and are on their way here aboard the Peary. Four persons, one a woman, perished. The ship was en route here from San Francisco when wrecked. Commander P. P. Powell, division commander aboard the Peary, radioed to the Associated Press: "Lieutenant-Commander E. H. Jones of the Peary deserves great credit for his indefatigable work and excellent ship handling. G. Harding and H. A. Mathewson brought Mrs. (George) Bissinger safely through the breakers and Bostwain's Mate Ponder of the Peary went over the side and brought her aboard unconscious." Mrs. Bissinger, a former newspaper woman of San Francisco, is the wife of the director of research of the Philippine Sugar Association. Death Laid to Exposure. The body of Mrs. Neil Williams, a passenger whose death was ascribed to exposure, and that of Bernard C. MacPherson, an apprentice seaman, are aboard the Peary. Bodies of Capt. H. A. Lennard, master of the Silverhazel, and another seaman, have not been recovered. High seas and a strong current in the treacherous strait kept rescue ships from coming closer than 1000 feet of the freighter, which broke in two soon after it hit, the stern sinking at once. Unable to use lifeboats successfully because of the riptides and big waves that beat them back, rescuers resorted to rafts to reach the survivors. In desperation, some of the castaways fashioned rafts from the wreckage to supplement those that rescue crews succeeded in drifting down to them. Third Officer S. Young of Aberdeen, Scotland, was rescued from one raft with six other survivors, while seven others were taken from another raft. The Peary, due here early tomorrow, sent word that two survivors of the freighter's crew, R. Pickersville and Rodney Arthur, a Hindu, were developing pneumonia and would require hospital treatment. Deck Load of Lumber. Mention of rafts in the messages sent here indicated to navy men that the crew of the Silverhazel had utilized the vessel's deck cargo of lumber in an effort to leave their hazardous refuge. Four army planes left here, planning to drop food to the survivors and attempt stringing a cable whereby they might be reached. Word the 50 who survived had been rescued reached here before the planes, two bombers and two observation craft, arrived at the strait. One rescue ship, the Japanese freighter Chicago Maru, was so badly damaged when it struck a submerged reef that it was forced to come here for repairs. The master, Capt. Moji, said at one time he feared all 54 aboard the Silverhazel would be lost.

"Feared All Would Be Lost. "Waves were washing over the rock and I feared the wreckage carrying the people, would slide off into deep water," he said here. The Chicago Maru, which sighted the wreck Sunday morning, was carried against the reef that afternoon.

"There were about 20 half-naked people on the rock and 20 others on the wreckage," Moji said. "The sea was running high, but I ordered a lifeboat out in the hope it could rescue the stranded people. The attempt was unsuccessful."

Mrs. Williams, whose home was in Los Angeles, was one of five passengers. The others were Mr. and Mrs. George Bissinger, of San Francisco, and two other Los Angeles women, Mrs. C. C. Windham and Mrs. H. N. Zerfing.

The Peary reported two survivors were developing pneumonia. Immediate hospitalization on arrival was asked for the pair, Seamen R. Pickersville and Rodney Arthur, a Hindu.

VERDICT IN WOMAN'S DEATH

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned today in the death Monday of Mrs. Katherine Baumer, 64-year-old widow, from injuries suffered Saturday when she slipped on a hardwood floor and fell against a chair at her home, 6048A North Pointe boulevard. She suffered several fractured ribs.

Mrs. Mary Sale North, 85, Dies. Mrs. Mary Sale North, 7144 Wydown boulevard, died yesterday at her home of infirmities of age. She was 85 years old and was the widow of Dr. Eugene Benton North, assistant chief surgeon for the Wash. Railway. She is survived by a son, Dr. Emmett P. North. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in Labadie, Mo. Burial will be in the family cemetery there.

COURT WON'T LET LAWYERS QUIT DRAKE FRAUD CASE

Defense Attorneys Say They Have Received No Money From the 41 Accused.
By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—A request of defense attorneys to be allowed to withdraw from the trial of 41 defendants in the Sir Francis Drake mail fraud case was refused by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday. Attorneys Edward J. Hess and George M. Crane said they based their request on a "conflict of interest" among the defendants and on the fact that they had not received any money from the defendants. As the trial is to start next Monday, the Court ruled they made their request too late. Several thousand persons are alleged to have been swindled by the defendants after getting promises of a share in the mythical $27,000,000 estate of the English buccaneer.

PROTEST AGAINST BUYING OF GERMAN STEEL FOR PWA

William Green of A. F. of L. and Officers of Union Join in Complaint to Secretary Ickes.

OFFICIAL EXPLAINS CONTRACT AWARD

Says New York Bridge Authority Has Responsibility—Tells of Uniform Bids on One Job.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—A protest against the purchase of German steel for New York's Triborough bridge with Public Works Administration funds was forwarded to Secretary of the Interior Ickes last night by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

Supplementing a similar protest from officers of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, Green's letter said:

"Public works relief funds spent for the purchase of material manufactured in Germany would serve to create employment for German workers while American working men who are thoroughly qualified and are seeking an opportunity to produce the same material are idle."

"American labor contends that PWA funds appropriated for relief funds by act of Congress should be used for the purpose of creating work opportunities for the millions of American working men who are idle.... Intense feeling is being aroused among the working people throughout the nation...."

At a press conference, Ickes placed responsibility for the award of a $100,000 steel contract to Germany on the Bridge Authority, and added:

"If there isn't sufficient protection for the steel industry despite the efforts of former Senator Dave Reed of Pennsylvania, who wrote the steel provisions of the Hawley-Smoot tariff, the proper place is the Tariff Commission."
Ickes commented on the "strange coincidence" that American companies made uniform bids of 52 per cent above the German price for steel in the Morehead City (N. C.) ocean terminal. The purchase for the Triborough bridge, also financed by WPA, involved a difference of 47 per cent between the German and the lowest American bid, he said.

These are the only purchases of foreign steel to date under the old or the new PWA program, Ickes said. He recalled that in the new program PWA authorized acceptance of higher bids on domestic steel up to 15 per cent on $100,000 orders, and said this coincided with the Treasury procurement division's regulations for Federal construction.

Ickes said cement manufacturers also had submitted identical bids on PWA construction.

Although declaring "it would be desirable to advise ourselves of all conditions surrounding the situation and if there is dumping or sub-dividing," Ickes said PWA was not a proper agency for study of German steel imports. He declined to say whether he would recommend to President Roosevelt an increase in the PWA differential to assure use of domestic steel in new PWA projects.

SCISSORS GRINDER CONVICTED OF ABDUCTING OKLAHOMA GIRL

Sentenced to Serve 7 Years on Charge of Forcing Her to Accompany Him to Texas.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Ok., Nov. 13.—George M. Fisher, 57 years old, itinerant scissors grinder, was convicted yesterday by a Federal Court jury of abducting Donna Mae Kitterman, a 13-year-old Sapulpa girl, and taking her to Weatherford, Tex. Judge Kenhamer sentenced Fisher to seven years imprisonment.

The principal State witness was the abducted Donna Mae Kitterman, who said Fisher forced her to get into the truck with him and leave Sapulpa. She said he did not threaten to harm her.

Joe Howard, Assistant District Attorney, presented records to show Fisher had been sentenced to 39 years in various prisons. His first sentence was to San Quentin prison, California, for burglary, and he also had served terms in Kansas, Iowa and Missouri, the records showed.

TWO NEGRO BOYS LYNCHED IN TEXAS FOR KILLING GIRL

Taken From Officers and Hanged, Chained Together, to Tree by Mob of 700 Near Columbus.

By the Associated Press.
 COLUMBUS, Tex., Nov. 13. — A mob of 700 persons, including several women, lynched two Negro boys last night for the killing of Geraldine Kollmann, 19-year-old high school honor graduate.

Ten masked and armed men forced two officers to surrender Ernest Collins, 15, and Benny Mitchell, 16, who had confessed attacking the girl and throwing her body into a creek Oct. 19. The mob hurried its victims to a tree a mile from the Kollmann farm, scene of the murder, and hanged them, despite the plea of the Rev. E. B. Marmion, Episcopal rector, to "let the law take its course." The crowd listened to him in silence, then broke into jeers.

"White folks, please don't do this," pleaded Mitchell as the rope was slipped over his head.

Chained Together About Neck.
 The two prisoners were chained together about the neck. Failing in an effort to break the chain, the mob hustled the youths beneath the tree and threw two ropes over a limb. Twenty men seized the ropes and pulled up the Negroes.

Sheriff Frank Hoegemeyer and Deputy Harry Townsend were returning the prisoners from Houston, where they had been held for safekeeping, to Columbus for juvenile court trial today. A large caravan of motor cars blocked the officers' path at a bridge 11 miles south of Columbus. The mob sped away with the prisoners, leaving the road blocked by automobiles to prevent any pursuit by the officers.

The maximum sentence the Negroes could have received was confinement in a reformatory until they were 21 years old.

Sheriff Cuts Bodies Down.
 An hour after the Negroes were hanged in the middle of a circle illuminated by motor car headlights, Sheriff Hoegemeyer reached the scene and cut the ropes. The bodies were turned over to the boys' parents.

Mitchell was said to have told his captors the name of another Negro he said planned the killing of Miss Kollmann. Some of the mob went in search of the third Negro but were told that he had left this section.

District Attorney R. A. Weinert said he did not know what action might be taken against members of the mob.

Details of Killing of Girl.
 Miss Kollmann was killed when she rode into her father's pasture in search of thieves who had been stripping pecan trees.

The Negroes said in their confession they were asked on a log at the farm when the girl approached on her horse. When they denied they had been stealing pecans, she told them to follow her and she would show them a tree that had been stripped. Officers quoted the boys as saying they conceived the idea of attacking her as they walked behind her.

One of the Negroes picked up a limb and knocked the girl from her horse. Each of them accused the other of that act, the officers said. Then they both attacked her. By that time Miss Kollmann was unconscious and they carried her body to the creek and threw it into the water, their statements said.

County Attorney O. P. Moore said today he believed the lynching was "an expression of the will of the people."

"I do not call the citizens who executed the Negroes a mob," said Moore. "I consider their action an expression of the will of the people."

County Judge H. P. Hahn said: "I am strongly opposed to mob violence and favor orderly process of the law. The fact that the Negroes could not be adequately punished by law because of their ages prevents me from condemning those citizens who meted justice to them last night."

At Austin Gov. James V. Allred said he did not know the facts but the thought of "lynching was deplorable at any time."

Sheriff Hoegemeyer said he did not think there would be an immediate investigation. "I didn't recognize any of the members of the mob and I have no clues to go on," he said. "I guess the grand jury will make an investigation. It meets in February. All the license plates on the cars were covered with cloth or had pieces of paper twisted over them."

MISSING FLYER FOUND

Australian Searching for Kingsford-Smith Lands in Siam.

By the Associated Press.

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlements, Nov. 13.—C. James Melrose, Australian pilot, reported missing during a search for Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, made a forced landing today on a beach near Parktao, Siam, because of engine trouble.

Melrose has led the search for Kingsford-Smith and Tom Pethybridge since their plane disappeared Friday in a monsoon over the Bay of Bengal. The search for the England-to-Australia flyers was reported "virtually hopeless."

REGULAR NOMINEE QUITS IN FIGHT AT BANKERS' MEETING

E. G. Bennett Withdraws
During Balloting for Vice Presidency, Giving
Office to O. W. Adams.

LATTER CRITICISED
ROOSEVELT POLICY

Comptroller O'Connor Says Banks Are Earning Profit After Three Years of Losses.

By the Associated Press.
NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.—E. G. Bennett of Ogden, Utah, committee nominee for second vice-president of the American Bankers' Association, withdrew late today while a secret ballot was in process and left the office to his opponent, Orval W. Adams of Salt Lake City. Adams' name had been placed in nomination in a hot fight from the floor of the annual convention here. The second vice-president will become president in two years.

Bennett was the nominee under the usual convention procedure of the Nominating Committee. Adams was nominated from the floor today.

The decision to take a secret ballot followed sharp criticism of New Deal banking recovery measures and defense by Washington officials and New Deal supporters.

Both nominees Republicans. Both Bennett and Adams are Republicans. Adams in an address earlier this week assailed the banking measures as "alleged recovery" acts and said they were retarding recovery. Bennett replied that it was "bunk" and "absurd" to inject a national issue into the bankers' convention election.

The convention refused to accept the report from the nomination committee in preference to fighting it out on the floor, and by almost unanimous vote decided to set up a voting booth in the convention headquarters, and open balloting on the second vice-presidency from 2 to 6 p. m. About 1100 bankers are eligible to cast ballots.

Robert V. Fleming of Washington, first vice-president, will advance to the presidency unopposed under convention custom, succeeding Rudolph S. Hecht, New Orleans. Tom K. Smith, St. Louis, will advance to the post of first vice-president.

Reports Profit for Banks. Declaring that national banks had made a profit of 2.93 per cent on capital in the first six months of 1935, J. F. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, predicted today that the last half of the year would prove to be the most prosperous period banks have enjoyed in the last four years.

"It has always been my custom simply to present the facts and never to make a prophecy," he said. "These facts, however, and my general knowledge of the banking situation, impel me now to predict that the present six months' period will be the best the banks of the nation have enjoyed for more than four years."

O'Connor disclosed that there are still 1423 national banks in receivership, of which 593 with deposits of $1,067,524,707 have been placed in receivership since March 16, 1933.

Country Still "Overbanked." O'Connor deplored the "overbanked" condition of the country.

"A mad scramble to establish a bank opposite every gasoline station across this continent is not a situation which can be contemplated with any degree of satisfaction," he said.

He noted, however, that only 132 primary national banks had been chartered since Oct. 31, 1932, remarking "this is the smallest number of national banks chartered in any three-year period during the last 30 years."

Tracing earnings over recent years, O'Connor said national banks during the year ended June 30, 1932, suffered a deficit of $139,780,000, or 8.91 per cent based on capital; for the next year, a deficit of $218,384,000, or 14.39 per cent; and for the following year, a deficit of $303,546,000 or 17.46 per cent. On June 30, 1935, the situation was changed, showing a profit of $71,372,000.

"The storms of yesterday have subsided," he said. "The picture presented to you today is one of hope and good faith."

Government Spending Talk. Lewis H. Brown sought to enlist the aid of the bankers in a campaign for reducing the cost of government.

Brown declared: "Let every citizen's cry be 'The cost of government must be reduced.' Demand of every officeholder that he prove that he had used all his influence to reduce the cost of government."

"Let every citizen clearly realize that at the rate we are going, in another 10 to 20 years not one-third but two-thirds of his income may be going for the cost of government and we won't have any need for taxes because we will, in effect, then be ready for a Communist state."

"When the people support the government and the government is subservient to the people, then the American system is safe. But when the government supports the people, then the people will, of necessity, be subservient to the government, and representative government will perish."

"America has at last turned the

Three Alarms Turned In; Fireman Cut When He Kicks in Door of Building.

Fire of undetermined origin was discovered at 5:15 a. m. today at the Bright and Free Laundry, 5562-74 Easton avenue.

Three alarms were turned in as the flames threatened to destroy the one-story building. Damage was estimated by firemen at $4000. C. E. Gregory, fireman of Engine Company No. 17, was cut on the leg by glass when he kicked in the front door of the laundry.

Fire discovered at 12:25 a. m. today caused $650 damage at the tavern of Roy Hawkins, 128 West Koeln avenue. The origin was not learned.

not hasten to pay off the extra 10 billion dollars of debt which has been incurred to prime the pump. If the Government taxes the public only enough to pay the interest on the debt, and to provide a mild sinking fund, spread over 17 years, instead of over, say, only four years; the extra tax burden will be quite negligible."

Wood Netherland Speaks. Wood Netherland, vice-president of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co. of St. Louis, addressing the national bank division, praised the Government lending program as "the most effective part of its major reconstruction efforts," but said this phase of the banking business should now be returned to private enterprise.

Carl W. Allendoerfer, executive vice-president of the First National Bank, Kansas City, Mo., was elected president of the national bank division.

David M. Auch, secretary of the Ohio Bankers' Association, was elected president of the State Secretaries' Association.

"If the people who use our cars every day are not praising them, it matters little what we may say. The last word must be spoken by the car itself."

{FROM AN ADVERTISEMENT SIGNED BY HENRY FORD IN JULY, 1933}

AGAIN, A NEW AND MORE BEAUTIFUL FORD V-8

Speaks for Itself

FORD V-8's have always spoken better for themselves than anyone could speak for them. More than two million, in America alone, are now in the hands of drivers. These owners have heard, from the car itself, a clear story of motoring value and pleasure that far outstrips all previous achievements in low priced cars.

Now, the 1936 Ford V-8 speaks for itself...new beauty of line...new, brighter colors...easier steering and gear-shifting...super-safety brakes. We urge you to get this car's story from the driver's seat. We want you to know its V-8 engine performance at first hand—its luxury-car comfort and roominess. We want you to see the smartness of its newly designed interior.

Let the last word about the 1936 Ford V-8 "be spoken by the car itself." Make arrangements for a demonstration today through:

The seventeenth annual convention of the Missouri Sunday School Council of Religious Education closed last night with a meeting at Union Avenue Christian Church, Union boulevard and Enright avenue. William R. Gilbert, attorney, 5727 Enright avenue, was re-elected president.

Louis Schoenfeld, 34-year-old crippled poolroom proprietor, took the witness stand in Circuit Judge C. B. Williams' court again today and was cross-examined by Assistant Circuit Attorney Sullivan in his trial for the murder of Nathan Galansky last Jan. 25.

Plans of the H. C. Brenner Realty & Finance Corporation for a railroad and a vehicular bridge across the Mississippi River from the foot of Chippewa street to Cahokia, Ill., were objected to as a hindrance to navigation at a public hearing conducted yesterday by Lieutenant-Colonel P. S. Reinecke, War Department Engineer for this district.

Justice of Peace Frank Bonstell of Central Township, St. Louis County, was charged with disturbance of the peace in a warrant issued today at Overland by Justice of the Peace Frank Jacobs. Deputy Sheriff Frank Lewis, who protesting for all navigation interests, said the channel span should be at least 750 feet wide to accommodate large barge tows that are made up at the barge line's Leeper street docks, 18 blocks north of Chippewa street. At present, he said, it is necessary to reduce all tows that are taken north of the Municipal Bridge because of the narrow channel span. The plans for the new bridge provide for a 650-foot span, three feet more than the Municipal Bridge clearance.

After the shooting, he said, he ran to a nearby store and hid the money, called him a "dirty rat" and ordered him out of the store. Says He Shot Through Window. Schoenfeld said that as he was walking past the front of the store, Galansky reached inside of his desk, which was near the front plate glass window, in a threatening manner as if he "was going to get one of his three guns." The defendant said he shot through the window to protect himself.

Has Nothing to Say After Wealthy German Is Shot in New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Miss Vera Stretz, 31 years old, suspected in the killing yesterday of Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, 43, wealthy German industrialist and economist, continued her silence about the shooting after a night in jail. Police expressed the belief that the killing was an act of jealousy. They said Miss Stretz told them that she had become engaged to Gebhardt last December. Gebhardt had a wife and two children living near Karlsruhe, Germany.

Investigators worked on the theory that Miss Stretz had just learned of Gebhardt's wife or had just been told that their friendship must end. He recently returned from his homeland.

Gebhardt, former president of the Mannheim Automobile Co. and the Henschel Locomotive Works, was shot four times in his twenty-first floor apartment in the Beekman Tower Hotel early yesterday. Miss Stretz, college graduate and a part-time clerk in the international exchange firm which he headed in New York, lived two floors below him.

She was found on a fire escape after the shooting. In her purse, police said, were a pistol, cartridges, a stained nightgown or slip, an engagement ring and a key to Gebhardt's room. Gebhardt was in a nightshirt on the floor of his room. Police found many affectionately phrased letters among the effects of Gebhardt and Miss Stretz.

They also learned that Dr. Gebhardt's eldest daughter, 17 years old, planned to join him here in the near future.

William F. O'Rourke, Assistant District Attorney, said he would take the case before the grand jury shortly. Miss Stretz is being held for further hearing Nov. 21 on an affidavit charging suspicion of homicide.

LEO CASEY VOTE FRAUD CASE GOES TO THE JURY

Ex-Convict Member of Old Hogan Gang Accused of Impersonating Elector.

The case of Leo Casey, former convict and a member of the old Hogan gang, charged with impersonating and voting the name of an elector at the primary election Aug. 7, 1934, went to a jury in Circuit Judge Connor's court at 3:45 o'clock today.

Testimony ended at 12:45 and arguments were presented after the luncheon recess.

Casey, who has a long record of arrests in St. Louis, was recognized by Detective Sergeant Charles Drewes when he entered a polling place at 707 North Vandeventer avenue and called for a ballot, giving the name of Fred W. Watson, 3303 Washington boulevard.

Denies Illegal Voting.
Testifying in his own behalf today, Casey denied he had asked for a ballot in Watson's name or attempted to vote at the polling place. He said he had been sent in the place by Charles M. Reardon, Democratic committeeman for the Twenty-third Ward, with instructions to buy lunch for Robert E. Lee, a Democratic election judge on duty there, with a $5 bill Reardon had given him.

He found that Lee was not there, Casey testified. "Just then Sergeant Drewes got up from a table and said, 'Since when are you Watson?'" Casey related. "I said, 'Why you know me, my name's Casey.'" The witness declared he reminded Drewes that he had known him 10 or 12 years and there would be no point in denying his true identity.

Recites Criminal Record.
He admitted he had pleaded guilty of illicit manufacture of whiskey and had been sentenced to a year and a day in Leavenworth penitentiary in 1931. On cross-examination he also admitted three other convictions—a $100 fine in Circuit Court on a plea of guilty of carrying concealed weapons in 1924, a sentence of six months in the Workhouse in the same court in 1920 on a plea of guilty of petty larceny, and a fine of $100 in Federal Court in 1919 on a plea of guilty of larceny from an interstate shipment. Although it was not introduced in evidence, Casey's police record shows 75 arrests.

Casey said he lived at 2911 Madison street, was married and had two children.

Conflicting Testimony.
Thomas J. Gannon, clerk in the office of the Board of Election Commissioners, who testified for the State yesterday, was recalled as a defense witness. He said he was sent to the polling place after 7 p. m. to investigate complaints, and that the judges and clerks complained Sgt. Drewes was interfering with the count of the vote. He testified he ordered Drewes out of the polling place.

In rebuttal, Drewes testified he was not in the polling place after 2 p. m., and four election officers testified he was not there when Gannon came in, and that no policeman was put out.

From the witness stand yesterday Sergeant Drewes told of waiting until Casey marked the ballot and gave it to an election judge to place in the ballot box. When arrested, Sgt. Drewes said, the gangster refused to answer questions and at first denied that he was Casey.

When inquiry was made at the Washington avenue address, the Sergeant testified, police were told that a man by the name of Fred W. Watson formerly had lived there but had moved about a month before the election.

Other witnesses yesterday were Gannon and T. J. Fluetsch, Democratic election judge at the polling place, who identified registration records and other evidence that a vote had been cast in the name of Watson.

Paul Dillon, attorney for Casey, unsuccessfully objected to introduction of further evidence after the testimony of Sgt. Drewes, on the ground that his client had been charged improperly with "impersonating and voting the name of an elector." It had been shown, Dillon argued, that Watson, having moved, was not qualified to vote and, therefore, was not an elector.

Penalty on conviction under the charge ranges from a $50 fine to a $1000 fine and five years in the penitentiary.

Mrs. Josephine Igelhart Asks for $10,000 From William Combs.

Mrs. Josephine Igelhart, widow of Lester Igelhart, East Carondelet tavern owner who was shot and killed last July 23 by William Combs, rival saloonkeeper, filed suit for $10,000 damages against Combs in Circuit Court at Belleville today.

She asked the amount, the maximum under the Illinois law, because she was deprived of support for herself and her five children, it was stated. Combs was indicted on a charge of murder and is at liberty on bond. He said he fired in self defense.

MINERS' POVERTY CITED IN GUFFEY ACT TEST

Social Service Workers Testify About Wretched Conditions in Coal Fields.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Three social service workers testified concerning poverty among coal miners in West Virginia, Kentucky and Allegheny County, Pa., in the suit to test the constitutionality of the Guffey law, before the District of Columbia Supreme Court today.

The suit was filed by James Walter Carter, president of the Carter Coal Co., operating mines in West Virginia.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Skinner of the Children's Bureau testified that miners' families in West Virginia and Kentucky lived in unsanitary board houses, unplastered within and weather beaten without. Their diet, she said, often consisted of corn bread and thin gravy, and school teachers often took part of their own meager salaries to feed the undernourished children.

Miss Nell Scott, of Pittsburgh, told of similar conditions in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. Her own comment as to recent improvement was "there aren't as many sagging porches as there were in 1928."

Malcolm Ross, an employee of the National Labor Relations Board, described his experiences in West Virginia and Kentucky in 1931 and 1932. One example he gave was that of a miner who worked eight days in a month, earning $10. Charges for services by the company amounted to $11.30.

GOOD NEWS... Long Distance Night Rates Now Begin at 7 P.M.

It's true. You no longer have to wait until 8:30 p. m. to enjoy lowest long distance night rates. The bargain rates now begin at 7 o'clock. It's much more convenient... you seldom leave home before that time... and the person you call is more likely to be at home, too.

After 7, the rate for most station-to-station calls is about 40 per cent less than during the day. (A "station-to-station" call is a call on which you are willing to talk with anyone who may answer at the called number.) You can talk 100 miles for 35 cents the "station-to-station" way after 7 p. m. Call an out-of-town friend or relative tonight. You will enjoy the experience. Long distance talking today is almost as simple as calling a neighbor across the street. Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

These reductions do not apply on "person-to-person" calls, which cost the same as all hours.

JAPANESE REPORT NEW INCIDENTS IN SHANGHAI

Charge That in All Cases the Persons Responsible Were Chinese.

By the Associated Press.
SHANGHAI, Nov. 13.—Japanese consular police reported today that a series of lesser incidents had occurred here, after the killing of a Japanese marine, to complicate further relations with China.

Officers said five cases of petty assault on Japanese school children had arisen since the death of the marine last Saturday, another Japanese girl had been insulted by a crowd and a Japanese civilian had been attacked.

In all cases, the police said, the persons responsible were Chinese. International settlement and Chinese police alike, under the prodding of Japanese authorities, continued their efforts to arrest the leaders of the anti-Japanese demonstrations.

Japanese Consul-General T. Ishii urged his community to be calm, asserting both Gen. Wu Teh-chen, Mayor of Greater Shanghai, and Sterling Feasenden, American chairman of the Shanghai Municipal Council, promised to make "serious efforts" to halt the manifestations, "fully realizing the possibility of serious complications."

Ishii issued his statement after Japanese residents held a meeting and adopted resolutions proposing that steps be taken to protect Japanese lives and property in Shanghai.

Handbills, signed by the "Society for Salvation of the Chinese Race" and distributed in the Japanese community, called attention to the unsolved killing of the Japanese marine, Hideo Nakayama, and warned the Japanese to leave China.

The Japanese press criticized international settlement authorities for failure to arrest those responsible and called for a thorough shakeup in the administration of the zone.

AUTO SHOW ATTRACTS OUT-OF-TOWN VISITORS

Total Attendance Yesterday 9110—Easier Steering a Feature of New Cars.

A total of 9110 persons attended the Auto Show in the Arena yesterday. Many out-of-town visitors and continued sales of cars were reported by the Show Committee.

The country-wide campaign for traffic safety is reflected in the improvements in the 1936 cars in easier steering, more certain holding to the road, lowered centers of gravity and less sway and tendency to tilt on curves.

In one make, a new front end control system holds the car steady in whatever direction the wheels are headed, so that there is no necessity for the driver continually having to turn the wheel slightly many times in a mile. This holds true even on concrete roads which during the years have sagged in places, the action of the control being automatic.

Headlight systems also have been improved, there being more cars fitted with lamps whose left-hand beams can be depressed so as not to glare in the eyes of approaching drivers while, at the same time, strong beams are directed to illuminate the right-hand side of the road and the shoulder.

With the rapid increase of engine power during the last two years there was a corresponding increase in braking power. Further improvement in brakes has been made in the 1936 cars, although the set-up of engine power has been relatively less than in the past. The trend toward hydraulic braking is pronounced, while in cars with mechanical brakes the braking surface and the amount of power applicable through the foot pedal have been increased. Two cars have hydraulic brakes backed by a mechanical system which applies the brakes in the event of the hydraulic brakes failing to operate at a certain degree of pedal pressure.

Safe driving and explanations of driving faults and reasons why various types of accidents occur, are being emphasized by the automobile companies. Several of them keep experts, such as Barney Oldfield, continually on the road speaking before civic organizations, instructing dealers in methods of teaching car owners to drive safely, and publicizing the idea that power has been built into cars, not so much for high speed as for easy and quiet operation.

Maj. Bowes' Radio Amateur troupe was welcomed officially yesterday by President Mason of the Board of Aldermen in the absence of Mayor Dickmann, and by Thomas N. Dysart, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Frank C. Hamilton, president of the Advertising Club of St. Louis. The troupe appears daily at the show, at 2:30 and 7:45 p. m.

Joseph A. Schlecht, manager of the Auto Show, was among speakers at a luncheon meeting of the Advertising Club at Hotel Statler yesterday.

SCHOOL BOARD AWARDS SWEITZER ACQUITTED OF KEEPING FUNDS

Former Cook County Clerk to Be Sued Over Alleged $414,000 Shortage.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Robert M. Sweitzer, former Cook County Clerk and ousted County Treasurer, who at no time denied that he had withheld funds from the clerk's office when he turned it over to his successor, but who disputed the amount he should pay, was acquitted by a jury last night of withholding $414,129 in public funds. The jury returned the verdict six hours after receiving the case.

The verdict will have no effect on previous action ousting Sweitzer as County Treasurer, attorneys said today. The State's Attorney's office has announced that it will file civil action against him for the return of funds which it contended he withheld.

Sweitzer, veteran Democratic politician, served as county clerk for 24 years. It was charged that he failed to turn over $414,129 to Michael F. Flynn, his successor, when he left the office after being elected County Treasurer in 1934. He was removed as treasurer by the County Commissioners after the charges of shortage were made. He later filed quo warranto proceedings in Circuit Court to regain the office. He lost there, but an appeal is pending.

As a preliminary step toward filing civil suits against Sweitzer, the State's Attorney's office directed County Clerk Flynn to delay payments out of a tax redemption fund, against which the city has a claim of $112,437. Suits involving alleged shortages in this tax fund are under preparation, the State's Attorney's office said.

During the trial, Sweitzer's attorney said he was ready and able to pay, but that he must be satisfied to the correct amount due. To this Assistant State's Attorney Leslie Salter replied: "We say the reason Sweitzer did not pay is because he did not have the money. He squandered the money, had given it to politicians and made investments, such as in coal bricks."

Sweitzer announced today through his attorney that he would seek reinstatement as County Treasurer yesterday.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Robert M. Sweitzer, former Cook County Clerk and ousted County Treasurer, who at no time denied that he had withheld funds from the clerk's office when he turned it over to his successor, but who disputed the amount he should pay, was acquitted by a jury last night of withholding $414,129 in public funds. The jury returned the verdict six hours after receiving the case.

The verdict will have no effect on previous action ousting Sweitzer as County Treasurer, attorneys said today. The State's Attorney's office has announced that it will file civil action against him for the return of funds which it contended he withheld.

Sweitzer, veteran Democratic politician, served as county clerk for 24 years. It was charged that he failed to turn over $414,129 to Michael F. Flynn, his successor, when he left the office after being elected County Treasurer in 1934. He was removed as treasurer by the County Commissioners after the charges of shortage were made. He later filed quo warranto proceedings in Circuit Court to regain the office. He lost there, but an appeal is pending.

As a preliminary step toward filing civil suits against Sweitzer, the State's Attorney's office directed County Clerk Flynn to delay payments out of a tax redemption fund, against which the city has a claim of $112,437. Suits involving alleged shortages in this tax fund are under preparation, the State's Attorney's office said.

During the trial, Sweitzer's attorney said he was ready and able to pay, but that he must be satisfied to the correct amount due. To this Assistant State's Attorney Leslie Salter replied: "We say the reason Sweitzer did not pay is because he did not have the money. He squandered the money, had given it to politicians and made investments, such as in coal bricks."

Sweitzer announced today through his attorney that he would seek reinstatement as County Treasurer yesterday.

Purchase of Equipment
From Laclede Gas, an

ent of the Post-Dispatch.JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 13.—
Opposition to the application of the Laclede Power & Light Co. of St.
Louis for authority to issue $8,400-000 of stocks and bonds for plant extensions and other corporate purposes developed yesterday when the case was called for hearing before the Missouri Public Service Commission.The City of St. Louis filed an intervening petition questioning the soundness of the proposed financing, and Victor Packman, St. Louis attorney, filed intervening petitions on behalf of several clients, charging the proposed financing was not in the public interest and alleging the plan constituted a fraud on creditors of the company.The commission took the company's application under advisement, on completion of the hearing.
Packman's motion for continuance of at least a month, and another to dismiss the company's application were taken under advisement at the same time. The Commission granted Packman five days in which to file objections, if he desired.The Laclede Power & Light Co., an affiliated company of the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis, asked for authority to issue 30,000 shares of preferred stock, to be sold at not less than $50 a share, and $6,000,000 in 5 per cent first mortgage bonds, maturing Nov. 15, 1955, to be sold at not less than $95.The proposed financing was desired, it was said, for construction of additional generating equipment, the purchase of $5,250,000 of electrical equipment now leased from the Laclede Gas Light Co., extension and improvement of the present distribution system and service, discharge or refunding of obligations, and reimbursement of the company treasury for funds, derived from other than security issues, which have been expended for plant additions and betterments.The Laclede Power & Light Co. and the Laclede Gas Light Co. are controlled by the same holding company, the Utilities Power & Light Corporation, of Chicago.City's Contention.
The city contended in its intervening petition that assets of the company were inadequate to justify the proposed financial structure, that company earnings were inadequate to support the proposed security issue, that some provision should be made in the plan for partial or complete retirement of the bonds and that the appraisal and audit should be made by the commission, to provide accurate information as to the assets, earnings and rates of the company.In one of Packman's intervening petitions, filed on behalf of Joseph M. Kelley, it was charged that the Laclede Power & Light Co. had failed to carry out the provisions of a contract with the St. Louis Gas & Coke Corporation, also controlled by the Utilities Power & Light Corporation, to purchase from St. Louis Gas & Coke a minimum of 48,000-000 kilowatt hours of electric energy a year. Kelley was said to own $10,000 in bonds of the St.
Louis Gas & Coke Corporation, which now is in receivership.Packman charged that the Laclede Power Co. had failed to comply with the minimum requirements of the contract for five years, and alleged that as a result the St.
Louis Gas & Coke Corporation had a claim against Laclede Power & Light, for breach of contract, for approximately $1,000,000."Fraud on Creditors." Packman alleged that under these circumstances, if the Laclede Power & Light Co. were permitted to mortgage its existing property and the property it proposed to acquir-it will be a fraud on the creditors of the Laclede Power & Light Co., including the St. Louis Gas & Coke Corporation, in which intervenor has a vital interest as an intervenor.He charged that the proposed transfer to Laclede Power & Light of property, it now leases from the Laclede Gas Light Co., was a move for the benefit of the holding company, the Utilities Power & Light Corporation, and if permitted to be consummated by this commission will amount to a fraudulent transfer as part of a scheme to hinder, delay and defraud creditors of the Laclede Power & Light Co.
Company Officer Replies.
E. L. White, secretary and treas-urer of both the Laclede Gas Light
Co. and the Laclede Power & Light
Co., told the commission the Laclede Power & Light had not been taking the minimum of 48,000,000 kilowatt hours of electric energy annually from the St. Louis Gas & Coke Corporation because the latter company had been unable to furnish that much power. He said Laclede Power & Light had received a formal notice from the St.
Louis Gas & Coke Co. that it was unable to furnish the minimum requirements, and exonerating Laclede Power & Light of any breach of contract.BUS STATION HOLDUP SUSPECT

Identified; Arrested at Alton.Leo Tighe, 36-year-old former convict, was returned to St. Louis from Alton by police yesterday after he was reported to have been identified by three employees of the Greyhound Bus Co. as one of two armed men who held up the bus station at Sixth and Morgan streets Nov. 3and escaped with $229.
Benjamin Kucharski, also an ex-convict, was reported to have been identified by two of the employees as the other robber. He was held by Alton police, who said he was wanted in Los Angeles for robbery. A third man, arrested with Tighe and Kucharski, was brought to St. Louis. There has been no evidence he was connected with the bus station robbery.The three were arrested Monday on complaint of an Alton tavern proprietor who said the men had threatened to hold him up.

Oiling used to stop when the engine did.
You'd come out in the cold, to your stand-your loafing oil in the crankcase could get up to do any oiling, you'd chop hours or days off your engine's life.Yes, engineers tell you that all in all, more than 50% of motor wear must be blamed on delayed lubrication in warming up. This winter then, get the oil that not only starts up when you do, but surely beats you to it!No waiting for Conoco Germ Processed Oil to be pumped up on the engine parts, because it's already IN. It bonds itself direct to every metal surface, and stays there—the Hidden Quart—always a long jump ahead of friction. This remarkable power of Germ

RETURN FRANK NAVIN, OWNER OF WORLD CHAMPION TIGERS, DEAD

CIANCIOLO AND CARL WOOD ARE READY TO PLAY AGAINST XAVIER

By James M. Gould.

"And he polished up his plays both simple and complex." "So that now he thinks his Billikens will 'take' St. L."

The meter may limp a bit and Gilbert and Sullivan, were they among those present, might object to the general idea of the paraphrase, but the lines, however, limping and unlimping, aptly express the situation at St. Louis University and the thoughts of Head Coach Muellerleile as he looks forward to his eleven's meeting with Xavier of Cincinnati Friday night.

Some Gloom Gone.

Yesterday all was gloom out around Walsh Stadium way and while the sun isn't exactly shining brilliantly today, there are rifts in the clouds and it is entirely possible the Billikens will show up for the Xavier engagement. Carl Wood, one of the best of the Billikens backs, will be able to play, and probably the reliable Gus Cianciolo will be doing his regular chore at tackle. Both these stars were on the doubtful list only 24 hours ago. Remaining on this same doubtful list are the names of the two regular St. Louis guards, Joe Vollmer and Ben Putnam. The pair of forwards read like stars, both developed knee trouble and while "Mull" hopes he can use them, he isn't certain he can. It looks as though Xavier's Harris would miss the Xavier action. His wrenched back hasn't responded well to treatment and Muellerleile may decide to rest him so he'll be available for later service.

Joe Vollmer and Putnam are unable to play, Banfield, Oates and Yates will get in at the two positions. Hemp, a small back but a mighty good one on some types of offense, has been ailing but is expected to be ready. Nunn and Hudson, the team captain, will be the left halfbacks, and Klepper, Herrmann, Lou Drone, Shea and Kane will be active workers in the ball-carrying brigade. Veith may see some action as replacement for Lou Drone at quarterback.

No "live" scrimmage will be held by the Billikens this week because of the bunged-up condition of the squad, but there will be plenty of "dummy" scrimmage and blocking and tackling practice.

But the main work will be "polishing." Coach Muellerleile feels that his team has a sufficient number and variety of plays and needs only better execution of them. Therefore, instead of introducing new plays this week, the old ones—those which have given the eleven a 500-percentage in eight games—will be closely studied and "scrubbed up" so they'll work more smoothly.

In the first part of the season, the Billikens were uniformly successful because the backs got good blocking on runs, and their passers and kickers good protection when the play was in the air. Since the Arkansas State game, though, the players, unconsciously of course, have seemed to "let down." They are not covering the assignments given them and the result has been that kicks have been blocked, attempts at passing smeared and running plays have been well gummed up.

Polishing to Continue.

Today, then, the polishing process will continue. The work will be for plenty of attention and, if there is a course, too, in play-selection with certain types of attack marked out for certain zones and certain game-stages, that can't do any harm. The Billiken coaches and the players, too, believe they've got enough to beat Xavier if only they can display it to the best advantage.

The Billiken spirit is as high as ever and that means there is no better team spirit in the Middle West. Naturally, the defeats at the hands of Mississippi and North Dakota were disappointing but the main idea now seems to be to make future opponents suffer for them.

Friday's game will be the last home contest for St. Louis U. A week from Saturday they oppose the strong De Paul eleven at Soldiers Field, Chicago, and four days after that collide with Jimmy Conzelmann's Washington Bears at Francis Field. The wish is strong in the Billiken camp to end the season "at home" in the same glorious fashion they started it—with a victory.

AMERICAN HOCKEY LEAGUE TO HAVE SIX CLUB THIS SEASON

The St. Louis Flyers' lone hold-out may become the property of the Syracuse club of the International League. It was announced last night by Owner Frank Ruppenthal. Negotiations have been opened with Syracuse whereby Ruppenthal hopes to obtain two players for the big defense man, Bill Gill.

Ruppenthal also revealed that the American Hockey Association this year will be a six-club circuit with the four teams entered last year—St. Louis, Oklahoma City, Tulsa and Kansas City—again represented, along with Wichita and St. Paul. Wichita has just been granted a franchise.

The league will meet within the next few days to draw up a new schedule. The league season opens here a week from tomorrow night at the Arena with the Tulsa Oilers opposing the Flyers.

HEART ATTACK CAUSES DEATH WITHIN HOUR; 64 YEARS OLD

DETROIT, Nov. 13. — Frank J. Navin, 64, owner of baseball's world champions, the Detroit Tigers, and president of the American League, died in a hospital today an hour after he fell, stricken with a heart attack, from his horse at the Detroit Riding and Hunt Club.

First inkling of the tragedy came when Mrs. Navin, riding back of the widely-known sportsman on the bridge path, saw his gentle Irish jumper, galloping toward her, riderless.

Navin is survived by his widow, a nephew, Charles F. Navin, secretary of the club, who now is in a sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich.

Navin was riding ahead of Mrs. Navin on the bridge path when she saw him fall. She summoned help from the club, and Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Droeger, who managed the club, found the widely-known sportsman in tall grass alongside the path, unconscious and with his hand clutched over his heart.

He was taken to the hospital where he died without regaining consciousness.

Mrs. Droeger said that apparently Navin was not thrown from the horse. She said the stirrups and tack were in place, and that the mount, an Irish jumper, was known as a gentle animal.

In Baseball 30 Years.

Navin was a figure in big time baseball for 30 years and was vice-president of the American League.

Around him he gathered some of the brightest stars of baseball including Ty Cobb, Hughie Jennings, Sam Crawford, Bill Donovan and Mickey Cochrane, the man on whom he gambled $100,000 and won.

Navin's Tigers won five American League pennants but only one World Series championship, which he and baseball luck decreed should be his this fall—his last in baseball, when the Tigers defeated the Cubs four games to two.

"Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Tigers, was crushed when informed by telephone of Mr. Navin's death. He immediately canceled his reservation for a trip to New York, which he had planned to make today."

"This is terrible," said Cochrane. "We had been together a lot during the past two weeks and had planned to play a lot of time together before the spring training season opened. We had some great plans for the club and Mr. Navin was especially interested in additions to it for next year."

A lawyer by training, Navin became connected with baseball almost by accident. He developed into a master director of a baseball drama which had as performers such sparkling lights as Sam Crawford, Hughie Jennings and "the Georgia peach"—Ty Cobb. Navin's purchase of Cobb's contract for $700 was one of the game's most profitable investments.

It was said that Navin bought the Detroit club when "the body else wanted it." That was in 1903. He had a brief career as an attorney following his graduation from the Detroit College of Law in 1897, then became acquainted with Thomas H. Hawkey, multi-millionaire lumberman, and talked him into the idea of owning a baseball club. Winning the confidence of Hawkey, he was told to "go ahead and build up the team" at the most turbulent time in Detroit's baseball history.

How well Navin worked is written in the game's records. Four years after getting his "go ahead" signal from Hawkey, the Tigers won their first pennant. They repeated the feat in 1908 and again in 1909 but fared badly in all three world series. The Chicago Cubs, of whom he was a close friend, were the "Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance" error with one tied, in 1907, and took them into camp. In 1909 the Pittsburgh Pirates under Fred Clark noosed them out 4 games to 3, chiefly through the pitching of "Babe" Adams, then an unheralded flinger but destined to become one of the great moundmen of his time.

In First Division 16 Times.

In more than three decades of Navin's ownership, the team finished in the first division 16 times and in the second 15. They never wound up "in the cellar" and were in seventh place only four times.

Navin was born April 18, 1871, in Adrian, Mich., one of the nine children of Thomas and Eliza Crotty Navin, natives of Ireland.

Hounds Kill Fox in Annual National Hunt, But Not One Judge Views the Finish

JACKSON, Tenn., Nov. 13. — The kill came yesterday—but not a judge was in sight when the National Foxhunters' Association Futurity hounds tore the life from a stubborn and cunning little native West Tennessee gray fox.

A sport-loving troop of riders was close enough for the big moment, but the judges failed to arrive in time.

The chase was made beneath dripping clouds. The fox went to its death with the fighting courage that marks its kind. It ran. It dodged. It dizzied the nation's smartest puppies. Finally, when it was ready for the surrender, the fox turned, as all the gray ones do, gave forth a cry, eyed one hound in the pack and went for it. That was the end, as all hounds closed in.

There were two other races. But in these red foxes were involved. They are the kind that run in 10-mile circles. They won't cut back and forth within narrow limits. They get out ahead of the pursuing hounds and they mean to stay there.

The chases were thrilling, the puppies worked well and the judges, then became president of the club.

In his early days as a lawyer, Navin was a Republican candidate for justice of the peace, but was among the "also rans" because Detroit then was a Democratic stronghold. He was slated for a city hall clerkship at $2500 a year when fate decreed he should enter the field of sport. One of his duties was keeping books in the insurance office of S. F. Angus, who had come into the ownership of the Detroit franchise.

Angus had grown weary of the baseball business and Navin persuaded Hawkey to buy the franchise with him on a 50-50 basis. He came into full ownership of his share four years later with success in the sport field assured.

In 1899 Navin married Miss Grace M. Shaw, daughter of Charles and Minnie Moore Shaw, of Detroit. The couple were devotees of horseback riding and owned a number of prize-winning mounts.

Navin belonged to several clubs and fraternal organizations, among them the Knights of Columbus, Detroit Athletic Club, Bloomfield, Red Run and Detroit Golf clubs, Detroit Riding Club, Detroit Automobile club and the Detroit Board of Commerce.

In his more than 30 years as secretary and president of Detroit club, Navin held a deep love for the game not only among the professionals but also among school-age players. Concrete evidence came in 1933 when he saved high school baseball in Detroit from being dropped as a school sport by donating equipment to the schools.

He never became embroiled in difficulties with his players and the Detroit club was distinguished from other league teams by relatively few "hold-outs."

"The death of Frank Navin was a real blow to the American League and to baseball," commented L. C. McEvoy, general manager of the Browns. Mr. Navin was conservative and his level judgment particularly was highly valued. During the tangled times arising during the last three years, Mr. Navin retained his poise and his calm counsel greatly helped the league. His loss will be felt by baseball and the City of Detroit as well.

"Mr. Navin was a great man for Organized Baseball and his death will be a severe loss to the National League as well as to the American League. He enjoyed the highest respect of everyone," said President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals.

VETERAN HOPPE TAKES SECOND PLACE IN TITLE BILLIARD MEET

CHICAGO, Nov. 13. — Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, holder of the 182 ball title, and Willie Hoppe, of New York, 181 title holder, loomed today as possible winners of the world's three cushion billiard championship.

Cochran has won four straight victories and goes into action again tonight against Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, a former champion.

Hoppe, who jumped into undisputed possession of second place by defeating Otto Reisel of Philadelphia, remains idle. Hoppe has won four of his five starts. He had all he could do to turn back the stubborn defense of Reisel last night, 50 to 43 in 53 innings.

The veteran Tiff Denton of Kansas City, noted squirrel sniper of the Ozarks, and Kinsey Matsuyama of Tokio, Japan, scored upsets yesterday that knocked the champions back to their haunches.

Denton beat Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., present titleholder, 50 to 38, while Matsuyama bowled over Kieckhefer, 50 to 33 in 39 innings. It was the second straight defeat for both Layton and Kieckhefer.

Layton was in front of Denton until the twenty-fourth inning. Then he fouled and lost a point, which developed to be the turning point of the game. At the end of 25 innings, Denton had a lead of 26 to 22 and continued to outplay the champion. In 12 innings, Denton scored 33 points, including a high run of nine.

Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago, proving himself to be a great finisher, moved up into fifth place as a result of defeating Allen Hall of St. Louis, 50 to 41 in 50 innings. Beaten in his first two games, the ex-draftsman has since rolled up four victories. He'll roll again tonight in the first five innings, and it took Thurnblad 33 innings to make 25 points, then he made 23 billiards in the last 11.

Today's schedule:

3:30 p. m.—Layton vs. Denton.
8:30 p. m.—Cochran vs. Kieckhefer.
8:30 p. m.—Bosman, Matsuyama.

Jane Sharp Says She Has Received No "Pro" Offers

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 13. — JANE SHARP, national women's indoor tennis champion, said yesterday she would be "interested" in professional offers from Bill O'Brien of New York to play Mrs. Ethel Burkhardt Arnold, Los Angeles, in the winter net tour.

"It is all news to me," said Miss Sharp when informed that O'Brien had said in New York she was being considered for Mrs. Arnold's opponent.

"I have not been approached by O'Brien on the subject, but it sounds very interesting. I have often thought a professional tennis tour would be a fine experience."

Miss Sharp, who was ranked No. 6 nationally for 1934, also was national indoor mixed doubles titleholder with Gregory Mangin.

TEMPLE U. MAY PLAY HERE IN CHARITY GAME

Father Charles P. Maxwell has selected Saturday, Dec. 7, for the date of his annual intercollegiate charity football game, and announced that Temple University of Philadelphia would probably be chosen to oppose either Washington, St. Louis, or Missouri University. The game will probably be played at Walsh Memorial Stadium and will be for the benefit of Father Maxwell's boys' work.

Father Maxwell said last night in making the announcement that he was setting the date far enough in advance so that there would be no conflict with other sports events. He has just returned from visiting athletic directors of Temple, and Pittsburgh in the East; Vanderbilt, Alabama, Georgia Tech and Georgia in the South with a view to book-keeping one of them for the charity game here.

He expects to return to Philadelphia this week-end and will make the announcement of the team schedule next week.

The Missouri team selected will probably not be named until after Thanksgiving day. Last year Washington met Southern Methodist in the charity game, and lost to the Texas eleven, 7-0.

GILL, WHO REFUSED TO REPORT TO FLYERS, DRAWS SUSPENSION

MONTREAL, Nov. 13. — William Gill, who was known in the Maritimes as "Big Bad Bill" when he played for the Montreal Canadiens, has been suspended from the National Hockey League. President Frank Calder said today.

Gill, who signed his first professional contract with the Montreal Canadiens, refused to report to St. Louis in the American Association as ordered.

"He either will play where he is told," said Calder, "or he won't play at all. The decision rests with him."

Mat Card Completed.

Two finish features and three 20-minute preliminaries are to be held tomorrow night in the Veterans of Foreign Wars wrestling show at the Coliseum. Promoter Bill Schwabe yesterday completed the card by signing Babe Rodriguez, Mexican welterweight champion, to meet Tony Rath, 160-pound German star.

Mile Race Track For Portland, Ore.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 13. — Harry L. Lewis, California racing promoter, announced today the formation of the Rose City Jockey Club and purchase of 130 acres here for a $250,000 to $300,000 racing plant.

A mile horse racing track, with grandstand and clubhouse, will be built in North Portland near Interstate Bridge, Lewis said.

Declaring it was an entirely closed company, Lewis said that Frank J. Kiernan, Harry Rothman and Robert Walsh of Seattle were associated with him in the venture.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Braves on the Warpath.

BOSTON BRAVES are doing a war dance, anticipating a fighting campaign next season. Stockholders of the club are trying to refinance the club so that $350,000 in rebuilding money will be available.

That shows gameness and a fighting spirit on the part of the stockholders, who have declared against seeking outside aid in their effort to raise funds.

However, money does not always make the mare go. And $350,000 or more has been spent in vain by other clubs.

BOB QUINN.

The effort to transform a loser into a winner.

The Red Sox owners have invested something like a million dollars for players to strengthen the club since Tony Yawkey took hold. But Rogers Hornsby, who instead of spending put $100,000 in his club's treasury through sales, has done almost as much to improve his Browns as Yawkey has to bolster the Red Sox.

However, there isn't much doubt that Hornsby will have his troubles next season, trying to fill out his team, unless some real money is poured into the effort.

Connie Mack tried to trade the world out of a pennant club about 20 years ago, after wrecking a championship team. But seven years in last place was his reward. In the end he had to pay by purchase, and one player alone cost him $108,000.

Lefty Grove.

We're With You.

ONE of the moves suggested for the Braves, one which will be carried through if possible, is the signing of Bob Quinn as head of the office.

St. Louis knows Bob Quinn—and how! It was under Quinn that Phil Ball's Browns enjoyed their only real sport toward fame. Quinn came here from Columbus when Ball purchased the Browns.

He helped the club rise to a pennant-contending position and saw it fall by only one game to win the flag in 1922.

Quinn, who had worked on a salary and percentage of the profits, made enough money to give him the idea of becoming a club owner. And you say of showing you that smart men can be duced, the late Harry Frazee sold Quinn the Red Sox.

Previously, Frazee had sold all the real playing assets of the club so that Quinn and his partners bought just a how shell. They had spent their money in purchasing the leading teams.

STATE COLLEGE GROUP TO VOTE ON ELIGIBILITY RULES CHANGES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Nov. 13. — Officials and coaches of the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association will consider nine proposed changes in conference rules when they meet in Kansas City, Nov. 30.

G. H. Jamison, of Kirksville, secretary of the conference, said today the suggestions to be submitted for adoption will include doubling of the transfer eligibility requirement and establishment of an approved list of officials for M. I. A. A. athletic contests.

Shortly after formation of the M. I. A. A. over a decade ago, it was ruled that athletes transferring from an institution of equal college rank should be eligible for competition in the conference after they had been in residence at the school of their choice for 18 weeks. Jamison said it was proposed that the constitution be amended to require transfer students to reside at the school to which they move for 36 weeks before becoming eligible.

Other major change offered for consideration will be that a committee be appointed to select a list of approved officials. The six state colleges now comprising the circuit now have a free rein in picking officials for games. The proposed committee would be composed of three members, one being the conference secretary.

Other amendments to be sought in the constitution concern regulations for submission of eligibility reports and specification of the amount of college-hour study required of athletes before they shall be eligible. It is suggested that 16 hours of work a week shall be considered the normal student load in teachers colleges and 19 hours a week at the Missouri School of Mines.

Action for admission of Rockhurst College, Kansas City, to the conference has been heard again recently but secretary Jamison said the college had made no application for membership.

Present officers are: W. W. Parker, Cape Girardeau, president; G. H. Jamison, Kirksville, secretary; and W. E. Morrow, Warrensburg, vice-president.

FOUR TEAMS ENTERED IN MUNS BASKETBALL

Team entries for the annual campaign in the Men's Municipal Basketball League will be closed at 5 p. m. today in room 330, Municipal Courts Building, it was announced in the office of the City Recreation Department last night. A reduced entry fee of $35 a team was announced a few days ago.

Four teams already have enrolled—the Chester B. Franz Royal Hearts, the Bill Benigs, the Y. M. H. A. and the United Service Cars, thus assuring one four-team division. Several other teams have taken out applications and are expected to make their returns and file their fees today.

It is planned to open the season in the first week of December at the Sherman Park Community Center.

SHAMROCK SOCCER CLUB TO PLAY AT SPORTSMAN'S PARK

MACCABEES OF CHICAGO WILL OPPOSE LOCAL ELEVEN SUNDAY

By Dent McSkimming.

In their first venture under a new name, new management and in a new field of operations, St. Louis national champion soccer club, now known as the Shamrocks, will oppose the Maccabees of Chicago next Sunday at Sportsman's Park. This is the first of a series of games in which the Shamrocks will appear against the leading teams of the Middle West.

The Maccabees, although sponsored by a Jewish fraternal organization of Chicago, are not an all-Jewish club. In fact, in their view, the club has been the club of two Jewish players, L. Fischer in goal, and Max Pearlman at inside right forward. It is the plan of the Maccabee organization, however, to build up a strong all-Jewish team and, in the long run, the club has two junior clubs entirely composed of Jewish boys, playing in Chicago leagues. Ike Walker, center forward, one time an opponent of Alec McNab in Scottish football, has been the club coach for several seasons, although he is now associated with the Spartans club.

In his communication to Manager I. Tennenbaum of the Maccabees, Phil A. Riley, business manager of the Shamrocks, urged the Chicagoans to bring here the strongest team they could muster. Riley and everyone else connected with the Shamrocks (formerly the Centrals) believe they have a club of national champion caliber and they are eager to put it to the test.

Riley, acting for the Shamrocks, arrived at an agreement with William Cady, representing the Dodier Realty Co., late yesterday for the rental of Sportsman's Park for the winter and spring months. This assures the Shamrocks of a first-class playing field, considered by players the best soccer field in the country.

Will Not Change Plans.

The fact that the old Central club, now known as the Shamrock club, has withdrawn from the organization, will not change the plans of the St. Louis Soccer League, it was said today by a league official. A league double-header will be played at National Sportsman's Park each Sunday afternoon with the Marres, Hellrung & Grimes, Ben Miller and Spanish Sport Club competing for the championship.

Under present plans all of the clubs will compete in the National Challenge Cup competition, just as in former years.

As rapidly as practicable, steps will be taken to make the National Park better suited to soccer. An effort is being made now to improve the west half of the field, site of the softball diamond infield, so that it will shed rains better than it has.

"This league has no intention to fold up," said Phil Kavanaugh, secretary of the organization. "If we can put out a good brand of soccer we believe we will draw good crowds at our 25-cent admission charge, and we believe we are on a solid basis now for the first time in a long while. We believe St. Louis fans like soccer and in an evenly balanced league, and

SOUTHERN PACIFIC BODY WANTS MAHONEY TO RESIGN FROM A. A. U.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—A resolution which, in effect, asked the resignation of J. T. Mahoney as president of the National Amateur Athletic Association because of his activities against sending an Olympic team to Berlin, will be taken to the national convention by the Southern Pacific district of the A. A. U.

The resolution, passed last night, contained a clause referring indirectly to President Mahoney. It read:

"It is the duty of every member of the Olympic Committee and every member of the National A. A. U. and of each district association to give every possible support and assistance to provide ways for American athletes to prepare themselves for the trials and to send winners to the 1936 games, and if any such member finds himself unable to discharge the obligation to do so, he should remove himself from his organization and allow his place to be filled by someone who is able to perform the obligations he has accepted."

Hockey Player Signs.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—Frank Calder, National Hockey League president, announced yesterday that Harvey (Busher) Jackson, star left-winger of the Toronto Maple Leafs had "come to terms" and was eligible to play with his club.

At the tackle, the Bears are Bill Smith, Mount Carmel, Ill., and George Campbell, Little Rock, Ark., for the Bears, and George Johnson, Robertson, Mo., and Dominick Miceli, another former C. B. C. player, for St. Louis.

Both teams have plenty of reserves and many of them will see action tomorrow night. Among those who probably will get into the game are: Washington—Robert Cutler, former Western Military Academy star; Charley Gould, who played center for Beaumont; Wilfred Kracke, former fullback of Cleveland; Jack Mullin, Soldan fullback; Bob Minkey, St. Louis U. High; St. Louis University—Ray Hafford, end; Albert Houser, St. Louis tackle; Robert Overholt, Maplewood; and Dell Watts, St. Louis.

FRESHMAN BEARS WILL OUTWEIGH BILLIKEN FOES

By Reno Hahn.

When the freshman elevens of St. Louis and Washington universities meet tomorrow night at Francis Field, two exceptionally heavy teams will take the field. Washington has an average of 182 pounds per player, while the Billikens are only two pounds lighter.

The Bears' line will outweigh the Billikens, 187-184, while both have a backfield average of 173. These averages are nearly as heavy as the varsity starting lineups weights. There is no way of picking a favorite for the annual battle, for Washington has played only one contest, defeating Scott Field, 46-0, while the Billikens have played two tie games with the Cape Girardeau freshmen.

Billiken Star. Outstanding in the Billikens' backfield is Melvin McGonigle, fullback, who is a triple-threat star, doing almost all of the punting and passing, and much of the ball carrying. Carl Totsch, halfback, is another fine ball carrier.

One of the best Billiken backs, Joseph Hrabas, an East St. Louisan, will miss tomorrow's contest because of a broken cheek bone suffered in last week's Cape Girardeau game.

Washington will also be without one of its regular backfield, William Ferfucky being out with an injured leg.

The Bears are given an edge in the backfield, with Glen English, San Antonio, Tex., quarterback; Vernon Tracy, Normandy, and Luke Spurlock, Mount Vernon, Ill., halfbacks; and Dick Yore, University City, fullback.

English does the punting, Tracy and Yore the passing, while all are good ball carriers.

The centers are about even, with Norman Hare, another San Antonio player, for the Bears, and Len Gorman, former Christian Brothers High fullback, for the Billikens.

Starting at guard for the Bears are two local players, Manuel Wisbrock of Cleveland, and Russell Meredith, University City, while Dickson Putnam, Linden, N. J., and William Clark, Avon, Mass., will be the Billiken guards.

At the tackle, the Bears are Bill Smith, Mount Carmel, Ill., and George Campbell, Little Rock, Ark., for the Bears, and George Johnson, Robertson, Mo., and Dominick Miceli, another former C. B. C. player, for St. Louis.

Both teams have plenty of reserves and many of them will see action tomorrow night. Among those who probably will get into the game are: Washington—Robert Cutler, former Western Military Academy star; Charley Gould, who played center for Beaumont; Wilfred Kracke, former fullback of Cleveland; Jack Mullin, Soldan fullback; Bob Minkey, St. Louis U. High; St. Louis University—Ray Hafford, end; Albert Houser, St. Louis tackle; Robert Overholt, Maplewood; and Dell Watts, St. Louis.

The Hopeful Hornsby.

THE outlook for the Browns is not as gloomy as might be supposed, according to the one and only Rogers Hornsby, non-defeatist. It would be easy to pass the crying towels to followers of the St. Louis American League club. The team finished next to last in the 1935 race and there are not many reasons for enthusiasm.

In the first place, no important new players are in sight. Then the team is owned by an estate and the president, Louis B. Von Weise, whose business is ice and ice machinery, is residing in New York. There is no one to deny rumors about sales, trades, and wholesale changes in the business office personnel. Occasionally it is stated that there is plenty of money in the till and that there are no financial obstacles to stand in the way of the team's rebuilding on the field. But there have been no purchases to amount to anything, except last year's $17,500 investment in Beau Bell, the outfielder who didn't make the grade.

Hornsby, back from an exhibition tour in Mexico, with Earl Mack's big leaguers, and in fine physical condition after his daily exercise in the games, was wearing the usual Hornsby grin as he received visitors at the Browns' office yesterday.

"We ain't so bad off," the Rajah suggested. "Sure, we finished seventh last year, but we didn't have a seventh-place club at the finish. We don't need much to be a first division club. We got a pretty good infield now. Larry helped us a lot at short and so did Tom Carey. They also seemed to have a steady effect on Cliff and I believe the kid is going to come through for us all right."

Burns Loses Tonsils. AND I believe Burns will be a better ball player," Vice-President McEvoy took up the thread. "You know he came up as a good hitter, who might have to learn a lot about fielding. But he fielded like a champion and us stronger, in my opinion. Of course any trades I make have to be approved by the New York office—Mr. Von Weise, our president, I mean."

The Value of Color. BEFORE inviting the Cardinals to play four March exhibition games in Havana, the Cuban promoters of the contests asked the sport fans of the Island to express a preference as to which major league club they wished to see in competition with the semi-pros of the Pearl of the Antilles.

Secretary Clarence Lloyd of the Redbirds yesterday told of receiving a letter from Cuba, telling that 27,948 baseball fans had voted in favor of the Cardinals. The Detroit Tigers, Chicago Cubs and New York Yankees were far behind the Redbirds in popularity.

It was not a surprising vote. No doubt about it, the Cardinals are far ahead of other major league clubs in color. Where else could you find a Pepper Martin, a Dizzy Dean, a Frankie Frisch, a Leo Durocher and a Joe Medwick? And in the spring the Cardinals will have with them Lyle Jody, a well-publicized base-stealing expert. Jody was in an automobile accident recently, but latest reports are that he is out of danger. If he can show the necessary batting punch, he will be a valuable addition to the Cardinals' baseball show, unquestionably the greatest on earth.

No Ashes Desired. WERE there any deals on the fire? "We haven't approached anybody or been approached seriously," the Rajah replied. "New York wants Hensley, but they want to give us ashes for our coal—the old story. But at the minor league meeting which opens at Dayton, O., next week, we'll talk to all comers and maybe we can lay the ground work for a trade or two. Then by the time the big leagues meet in Chicago in December, maybe the other fellows will be ready to make a deal."

Was Hensley on the market? "I won't say anybody on my club isn't on the market," was Hornsby's comeback. "If we can make a trade that I think will help us, nobody's barred from the trading block. But we have to get players in return who will make

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Rumors of a three-cornered deal in which the Yankees, Red Sox and MacK would exchange players, and possibly some Yankee greenbacks, filtered through baseball circles yesterday as an aftermath of Joe McCarthy's lengthy conference with Connie Mack at Shibe Park recently. Visits of Tom Yawkey to the Yankee headquarters add some credence to the reports.

It is freely admitted that the New York club would like to acquire Roger Cramer, who developed during the past season into the outstanding center fielder of the American League. Up in Boston Eddie Collins has been quoted as declaring that Yawkey is ready to bid high for the same player.

McCarthy made an offer to Connie Mack for Cramer's release, but it was turned down. While Mack would not make definite admission as to his plans, McCarthy left with the idea that Cramer is already ticketed for Boston. It seems that Jimmy Foxx, and possibly one or two other Mackmen, will go the same way.

CCC BOSS FOUND HANGED TO TREE, BODY IN FLAMES

State Troopers Say F. J. Gunnoe Committed Suicide on West Virginia Farm Near His Camp.

By the Associated Press.
RIPLEY, W. Va., Nov. 13.—State police decided today that Fulton J. Gunnoe, CCC Camp foreman, committed suicide by making a torch of himself and hanging. Lieut. James H. Fillinger said he was abandoning the investigation begun after Gunnoe's burning body was found suspended from a tree by a heavy strand of wire early today. State troopers at first said Gunnoe had been lynched.

Fillinger said Panumbra Casto, a filling station attendant, identified a container found near the body as one in which Gunnoe bought gasoline supposedly to use himself. Coroner C. R. Kessel said no inquest is necessary.

Fillinger said Gunnoe bought poison several days ago and returned the poison last night as "too dangerous to have around the camp."

A farmer, James Elliott, saw flames lighting his window in the night. He ran to a low ridge about 150 yards from the main Charleston-Parkersburg highway and found the body.

Elliott went four miles to Ripley and told State police that a Negro had been hanged. The police, however, discovered a tag identifying Gunnoe as a white man and foreman of the Jackson CCC camp, several miles from Ripley.

Roy Bradley, superintendent of the camp, confirmed the identification. He said Gunnoe left the camp about 6 o'clock last evening without saying where he was going. Nothing further was heard from him at the camp until the police called to tell about the identification tag, Bradley said.

State police said a heavy wire was wrapped six times around the dead man's neck. His body had been burned from head to foot.

Gunnoe's hat, flashlight and empty pocketbook were found a few yards from the tree. It was not known whether he had any money with him.

Oil Poured on Clothing.
"The flames were up around the neck when I got there," said Elliott. "The body was badly burned. Either oil or gasoline had been poured over the clothing and set afire."

Gunnoe, 35 years old, went to the camp Sept. 9 from his home at Edwight, a mining village in Raleigh County. He had been a Raleigh County Deputy Sheriff, but resigned four months ago to work for a friend in the lumber business and then took the camp foremanship. He is survived by his wife.

Men at the CCC camp said Gunnoe was a good-natured boss, who seemingly had no enemies. Friends in Raleigh County said they knew of no one who would wish to take his life.

The body was brought to Ripley and the officers returned to the Elliott farm in pouring rain to continue their investigation.

Evidence of Mutilation.
Lieut. James Fillinger of the State Police earlier today said examination disclosed the man was dead before his body was hanged to the tree and set afire. He added there was some evidence of mutilation.

Jonathan Elliott, 38, son of James Elliott, said two men hunting rabbits with him came across the body after his father discovered it. The younger Elliott said he was accompanied by his brother, James, and his brother-in-law, Albert Hysell. They saw the glare of a flashlight in the woods but ignored it, he said.

"James and Abe (Albert) went ahead looking for rabbits," he continued, "and pretty soon they came running back and told me there was a man hanging to a tree. I told them we better get the police."

'BOSS' GILLIS NOMINATED AGAIN IN MASSACHUSETTS

Political "Bad Boy" Tries Quiet Campaign for Change, Running for Mayor of Newburyport.
NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Nov. 13.—The "silence is golden" campaign of Andrew J. (Bossy) Gillis, former Mayor and "bad boy" of local politics, was successful last night, when he was nominated again for Mayor.

Gillis, whose previous campaigns had been spectacular, this time quietly promised reductions in taxes if elected. His vote, 2776, was far ahead of those of his four opponents. John M. Kellher, a City Councillor, who will oppose Gillis in the election, Dec. 10, received 1715 votes.

This is Gillis' fifth campaign for Mayor. Twice he was successful. His most recent political affiliation, he said, is with the Democratic party. He has run for State Representative as a Democrat, a Republican and as a non-partisan.

MISSOURI GETS $1,000,000 ABOVE QUOTA FROM WPA

Allotment $20,747,528; Total of 28,000 in State Employed on Works Relief Projects.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Missouri has received $20,747,528 in Works Progress Administration funds, $1,000,000 more than the original quota fixed for the State.

The National Emergency Council said today President Roosevelt had approved allocation totaling $20,751,528 and Comptroller-General McCarr's office actually had released $20,747,528. The State's quota originally was $19,500,000.

The total estimated cost of the projects approved by the President, including sponsor's contributions, was given as $76,866,245, and the estimated cost of the projects cleared by McCarr's office, as $75,933,342. From these the State PWA Administrator will select the projects on which the released funds will be expended.

Records of Harry L. Hopkins, Relief and WPA Administrator, showed 28,000 Missourians working on projects financed by the $4,880,000,000 works relief fund as of Nov. 2. Of these 5645 were employed on WPA projects, 19,389 on CCC projects.

GEORGE O. CARPENTER HONORED FOR HIS SERVICE TO LIBRARY

Board of Directors Adopts Resolution of Acknowledgment of Work of Retired Member.

A resolution of acknowledgment of "the great and long service" of George Oliver Carpenter to the St. Louis Public Library was voted at a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Library, with which he was associated for 34 years and headed for 24.

The resolution noted that during his term on the board the Central Library building was constructed, seven branches were built, the annual circulation of books increased from 740,179 to 3,835,065, and the number of books on the shelves increased from 132,000 to 834,781.

It was also noted that Carpenter had made substantial gifts to the Library, chief of which was the site on which the Carpenter Branch Library was constructed in 1927. Carpenter retired from the board last May.

LINCOLN-ZEPHYR

THE FORD AND LINCOLN TWELVE-CYLINDER VALUE AT MEDIUM PRICE

BORN in the Lincoln tradition, bearing the Lincoln name, the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR brings to the medium-price field traditional Ford-Lincoln standards of value. Built in its own specially equipped division of the Lincoln plant, famous for precision workmanship, this new car reflects the combined Ford-Lincoln engineering experience, manufacturing ability and economic resources.

Powered with a 110-horsepower 12-cylinder engine of the V-type, the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR provides performance of a high order, combined with unusual economy. The wide, roomy body, on a wheelbase of 122 inches with springbase of 133 inches, has ample room for six passengers and luggage. The spare wheel is carried concealed under the rear deck.

At first glimpse the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR will give you a new concept of beauty. Here a motor car's form is determined logically by a motor car's function.

Streamlines flow, uninterrupted, from bow to stern, from side to side; and every line satisfies the eye.

But the beauty of the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR carries a significance larger than any style trend. It reflects new principles of design. Just as trusses of steel make possible the bridge, light in weight but great in strength, steel trusses underlie the curves of this new car. Body and frame are one, welded together.

The great safety provided by this modern construction is enhanced by ease of handling and control. On all types of roads, under all conditions of travel, the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR conveys the feeling of safety because of its low center of gravity and correct distribution of weight.

PRICED FROM $1275

F. O. B. DETROIT

AVAILABLE IN TWO SEDAN BODY TYPES

CONVENIENT, ECONOMICAL TERMS THROUGH THE AUTHORIZED FINANCE PLANS OF THE UNIVERSAL CREDIT COMPANY

Inherent in the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR, too, is a new rhythm of motoring. Many persons have remarked that the back seat is as comfortable as the front, and that the car rides as gently with one passenger as with six. Soft transverse springs minimize jounces, jolts, bumps—"up-and-down" motions that tire the motorist. With its alert and responsive V-12 cylinder motor, this car glides over all kinds of road surfaces without transmitting their shocks to driver or passengers.

For all its forward-reaching design, the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR contains nothing experimental. It has been tested more rigorously by Lincoln engineers than it could be by owners. Working parts are easy of access. Basic design and details of construction make the new car economical to operate.

Inspect the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR today. Discover, for yourself, the new concept of beauty, the new rhythm of motoring.

RUSSIAN EX-MAJOR SENTENCED TO DIE AS SPY IN SIBERIA

Soviet Army Court Charges
He Was Head of Espionage System Operating Out of Manchoukuo.

DEATH PENALTY FOR HIS ASSISTANT ALSO

Both Said to Admit Being Under Orders of "Certain Foreign Military Mission at Harbin."

By the Associated Press.

KHABAROVSK, U. S. S. R., Nov. 13.—Former Major Sorokin of the White Russian army, alleged leader of an espionage system operating out of Manchoukuo, and his assistant, a Russian named Babbin, were sentenced to death today after trial before a Far-Eastern army court.

They had been held since June 9 when they were apprehended in Soviet territory with bombs, pistols, poison and anti-Soviet literature in their possession.

Both were said to have confessed that they were under orders of a "certain foreign military mission at Harbin," in the Japanese-sponsored state of Manchoukuo, to obtain information concerning Soviet border troops and the railroad running to Vladivostok, eastern terminus of the Trans-Siberian Railway.

Soviet authorities said Sorokin for years had been in charge of an espionage system, training spies to be sent into the Soviet Union.

Such sentences against spies usually are carried out within 24 hours after the verdict.

The Soviet Union delivered a strong protest to Tokyo after a border clash Oct. 12 in which one Soviet officer was killed and two Russians wounded.

The incident was the most serious of a series which had been occurring for nine months. The Moscow Government asserted it was brought about by an invasion of a detachment of 50 Japanese and Manchoukuo troops into Soviet territory.

The Russians blamed the Japanese army command in Manchoukuo for the trouble, charging it was instigated to keep alive friction with the Soviet Union and thus justify maintenance of a large military force in Manchoukuo.

Three other former officers of the White Russian army were sentenced to death as spies Sept. 3 at Irkutsk, Central Siberia.

A description made public of the trial which ended today said evidence was brought out casting further light on an organization supplying arms and money for spies.

Sorokin, who fled to Manchoukuo in 1922, was described as a mechanic and wrestler who had made several trips into Soviet territory before his arrest.

Sorokin admitted, it was said, that he received a large sum of money from a Harbin military mission, but maintained the bombs and poison found in his possession were for "hunting wild animals" and for self-defense. Babbin came to Manchoukuo in 1933.

CONGRESSMAN FINDS BRITISH POLITICAL RALLIES TOO ROUGH

Citron of Connecticut Says Gas Pipe Whizzed Past Head at Glasgow Meeting.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 12.—Congressman William M. Citron of Connecticut, who has been touring the British Isles for two weeks, has stopped telling his well-wishers that he is a member of Congress. Until recently, his main amusement has been attending political meetings.

"They put me in the front seat as soon as they learned I was a Congressman," he said. "It is too dangerous to sit in the front row at British political meetings."

He said a piece of gas pipe whizzed past his head at a meeting in Glasgow and in Edinburgh he was trapped in a crowd which jostled one of the British speakers. Now, when Citron wants to watch a British political gathering, he says he slips quietly to the rear of the hall and when the meetings get "too rough" he leaves. He called an American political campaign "a Sunday school" in comparison with the British variety.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Congressman William M. Citron of Connecticut, who has been touring the British Isles for two weeks, has stopped telling his well-wishers that he is a member of Congress. Until recently his main amusement has been attending political meetings.

"They put me in the front seat as soon as they learned I was a Congressman," he said. "It is too dangerous to sit in the front row at British political meetings."

He said a piece of gas pipe whizzed past his head at a meeting in Glasgow and in Edinburgh he was trapped in a crowd which jostled one of the British speakers.

Now, when Citron wants to watch a British political gathering, he says he slips quietly to the rear of the hall and when the meetings get "too rough" he leaves. He called an American political campaign "a Sunday school" in comparison with the British variety.

NEW FEDERAL POST APPOINTEE

Clyde R. Chambers Named Statistician by Secretary Roper.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Secretary of Commerce Roper today appointed Clyde R. Chambers chief statistician of a Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, a post newly created to meet the increasing demand of business for data on virtually the entire field of industrial economics.

Chambers, former Public Works Administration statistician, was trained at the Universities of Missouri, Minnesota and Harvard. He has been head of research and statistics of the Treasury.

People Misled on Reasons U. S. Entered Great War, Baker Says

Commercial and Financial Interests Had No Part in It, Member of Wilson Cabinet Writes.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War in the Wilson administration, in a letter to the New York Times published today, denies the allegations that commercial and financial interests caused America's entrance into the World War.

"The discussion in the columns of the Times with reference to the alleged financial and commercial causes of America's entrance into the World War," Baker writes, "justifies a very frank statement from a member of President Wilson's Cabinet. . . . The Times, in explaining editorially the discussion in its 'Letters to the Editor' column, said: 'The allegations made are familiar. President Wilson was trying to keep the country out of war, but bankers who had made foreign loans and munition factories which had received and executed large orders dragged the administration into the war from the most selfish and sordid motives.'"

"Throughout 1916 until the German declaration of unrestricted submarine warfare, it was the settled belief of the President and, so far as I know, of all the members of the Cabinet, that the United States would not be drawn into the conflict. The situation was tense and grave at all times and questions affecting the rights of America and Americans as neutrals were constantly arising—rather more often involving controversies with the allies than with Germany.

"From the beginning to the end of my official life in Washington, I never heard the President or any member of his Cabinet, either in conference or in private conversation, express any opinion that the United States ought to go into the war or that any commercial or financial interest, either of the United States or of any group of our citizens, would be promoted by going in.

"No Pressure From Industry.

"No industrialist or banker ever expressed such an opinion to me, and I never heard from my official associates that any such opinion had been expressed to them.

"Through the anxious months after the declaration of unrestricted submarine warfare, it became clearer day by day that the danger of our being drawn into the war was increasing, but the talk between the President and his associates was constantly a searching quest for something which would avert it.

"The tensions in modern international relations are industrial and commercial, and the causes of modern war grow out of the efforts of nations to acquire economic security or economic dominance. To translate this obvious truth into an accusation against munition makers or bankers is an unfortunate oversimplification of the case.

"Misleading the People."

"The misfortune of it lies not only in the injustice it does to the memory of President Wilson and those who bore with him the tragic responsibility of 1917, but also in the fact that it misleads the American people upon a subject about which they simply must not be misled.

"America's safety from future wars cannot be secured by muzzling bankers or disabling munition makers. If we are to be kept out of wars, our statesmen must be supported in their efforts by a public opinion too intelligently informed to insist that the efforts of our nation shall be limited to protecting ourselves against such influences.

"With the views I have expressed, I feel sure that all of my surviving associates in President Wilson's Cabinet will fully concur. At least, I am sure they will agree that President Wilson and we, as his associates, did all we knew how to keep our country out of war, and that none of us ever heard the fable, which is now the gospel of the uninformed, that we ever heard the slightest concern about the foreign loans of bankers or the industrial ambitions of the few American munition-making companies."

The discussion in the "Letters to the Editor" column was precipitated by a recent review of Harold Nicholson's biography of Dwight Morrow, who was a partner in the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co. The review of Nicholson's biography dwelt on the allegations against banking and commercial interests. Replying to the review, Thomas W. Lamont, a senior partner in the Morgan firm, denied the allegations and criticized the review. Several other letters followed.

R. L. Duffus, writer of the Times' review of the Morrow biography, said in part in his review:

"The ethics of the Morgan firm's conduct between 1914 and 1917 has been hotly debated. Mr. Nicholson, of English blood and home and schooled in the traditions of the Foreign Office, does not debate it. All he sees is that Morgan helped the Allies win the war, which, from his point of view, was a good thing."

"The manner in which our financiers actually made an ally of the Allies while we were still officially neutral was not an unmixed blessing and few of us now would feel like pausing to aureole around Dwight Morrow's portrait for his part in it."

The discussion subsequently started in the Times with Lamont's reply to these statements.

U. S. SUPREME COURT GETS BRIEF IN HALSEY-STUART CASE

Government Attorneys Urge Jury Trial; Charges Had Been Quashed by Judge.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Government attorneys urged the United States Supreme Court today to have mail fraud charges against Halsey Stuart & Co., Inc., of New York City submitted to a jury. The Government is protesting against charges last April 16. The Supreme Court agreed Oct. 14 to review the case.

Today's brief contended the New York City firm and others used the mail in selling $250,000 in gold debentures on the now defunct Wardman interests in Washington, D. C., when they knew the Wardman firms were unstable. Oral arguments are expected about Nov. 21.

The Wisconsin Judge held the government could not prove its charges. The Government brief asserted the jury could pass on the facts. It asserted the bonding house claimed the Wardman interests had $22,000,000 assets, chiefly in Washington property, when the actual value was less than $20,000,000. The Wardman interests erected and controlled large apartment houses and hotels. The Government said the Wardman interests had more than $18,549,000 of mortgage indebtedness.

U. S. OBSERVER IN ERITREA

Lieut. Del Valle First to Arrive at Italian Headquarters.

By the Associated Press.
ASMARA, Eritrea, Nov. 13.—The United States is the first country to get a military observer here to watch the war in Ethiopia.

Lieutenant-Colonel Pedro A. Del Valle of the United States Marine Corps, Assistant Naval Attaché of the Embassy in Rome, arrived yesterday after inspecting the harbor of Massaua. Although Del Valle came unofficially because no observers have been authorized, the Italian military authorities gave him a cordial reception.

FORMER DEAN INGE INDORSES EASY DEATH FOR INCURABLES

"Not Contrary to Christian Principles," English Churchman Is Reported to Have Declared.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—The London correspondent of the American Medical Journal reports that several English clergymen, including the Very Rev. W. R. Inge, former dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, have endorsed the movement to give physicians the power of ending incurable patients' suffering by death at the patients' request.

The correspondent said that "to meet possible objections on religious grounds," former Dean Inge signed a statement that "what is proposed is not contrary to Christian principles."

Other signers, the correspondent said, were Dean Inge's successor at St. Paul's, the Very Rev. Walter Robert Mathews; Canon H. R. L. Sheppard; Dr. T. Rhonda Williams, chairman of the Congregational Union; the Rev. Prof. J. M. Creel of Cambridge University; Sir Humphrey Rolleston, former president of the Royal College of Physicians; Sir George Seaton Buchanan, vice-president of the League of Nations Health Committee, and Prof. Julian Huxley, biologist and author.

The correspondent said the plan of Lord Moynihan, president of the Voluntary Euthanasia Legalization Society, who is drafting a bill for the House of Lords, included an application form to be filled by the patient seeking death. A referee would see the patient, and decide whether permission for the voluntary death should be granted. After that, the patient would have seven days to change his mind.

BACTERIA TUBE DROPPED FROM STRATOSPHERE BALLOON FOUND

Spoore-Collecting Device Released at Top of Bag's Ascent Landed Near Chamberlain, S. D.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The spore-collecting device, dropped by parachute from the stratosphere balloon Explorer II, has been recovered and is on the way to Washington. Four battery cases, dropped as ballast, also have been found.

It was not necessary to throw out more important scientific instruments during the descent, the National Geographic Society said, because of the perfect behavior of the huge balloon.

The spore apparatus is a hollow tube of light metal, its inner wall lined with a sticky substance. When released at the 73,000-foot altitude estimated to have been reached by Capt. Albert W. Stevens and Capt. Orvil A. Anderson, the tube plunged through the stratosphere collecting the tiny spores. An automatic device sealed the tube as it reached the lower level of the stratosphere. It was recovered near Chamberlain, S. D. From the tube scientists hope to learn more about bacteria that live in the stratosphere.

Other scientific apparatus carried on the flight will be sent to the scientists who had it installed. Records of most of the instruments were made automatically on photographic films, many of which are being brought to Washington by Capt. Stevens.

ROOSEVELT SENDS MESSAGE TO BUILDING AND LOAN MEN

Tells Convention Cheaper Financing Is Necessary for Better Housing.

By the Associated Press.
CINCINNATI, Nov. 13.—In a message to the convention of the United States Building and Loan League, President Roosevelt today urged "lower costs of financing" as a step towards "better housing at lower cost."

"The instructive experiences of the past few years make us aware that major improvements in the conditions of home ownership and home finance are needed," the message said.

"With our great resources of labor, materials, money and management, we ought to meet our country's housing requirements with courage and foresight. Nothing in our home financing is more obvious than that family incomes must not only be raised to a higher level, but that American ingenuity must provide better housing at lower cost. We have the ingenuity to design and execute better construction, to achieve larger economies in production and to fit our pattern to improving standards. We must also have the courage to lower costs of financing, and by combined economies and good management to increase the security of frugal investors and borrowers."

FOUR ALABAMA DELEGATES INSTRUCTED FOR ROOSEVELT

At-Large Representatives for Democratic National Convention Include Three Officials.

By the Associated Press.
MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 13.—The State Democratic Executive Committee today elected Gov. Bibb Graves, United States Senators Hugo Black and John Bankhead, and John D. McQueen, its chairman, as delegates from the State at large to lead Alabama's delegation to the 1936 Democratic National Convention "to give President Roosevelt four years additional term of office."

Alabama will be entitled to 22 votes in the 1936 convention. Other delegates will be selected May 8 in a Democratic primary. Four will be named from each of the State's nine Congressional Districts, each with one-half a vote.

The committee voted 31 to 1 for passage of the resolution.

STAY OF CHRYSLER JUDGMENT

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 13.—The defendants in the Chrysler Motor shares case received a seven-day stay of execution today, pending a possible appeal.

Gilbert Belyus, appearing for the plaintiffs, Arnold de la Poer and the Suffolk Investment Co., Ltd., said the judgment given yesterday by Justice Atkinson of the King's Bench division would amount, including costs, to $80,000 (about $394,000), of which $55,000 (about $270,000) represented damages and interest. The judgment was given against Walter P. Chrysler, American automobile manufacturer, Bernard E. Hutchinson, Stephen D. Briggs, Joseph Fields and the Chrysler Corporation.

G.O.P. PAMPHLET CHARGES WASTE IN WORK RELIEF

'Hundreds of Millions Frittered Away on Boondoggling,' Congressional Committee Says.

DENOUNCES 'WILD ORGY OF SPENDING'

11,000,000 Still Jobless Booklet Insists — Lists 'Utterly Ridiculous and Fantastic' Projects.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The National Republican Congressional Committee charged today that "hundreds upon hundreds of millions of dollars have been frittered away" on "boondoggling" work-relief projects.

In a 14-page pamphlet the committee listed and described what it said were "utterly ridiculous and fantastic" projects. It disputed the contention of Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, that his program was "all good, solid stuff."

"Boondoggling," the committee said, "is a comparatively new word in the American tongue. It is 'Frankly Destructive' Roosevelt's pet way of wasting money. It turned the so-called New Deal into an ordeal."

Insisting that 11,000,000 persons were still unemployed, the committee said:

"People still go hungry and seek jobs which the New Deal has not made available. The rights of every civic subdivision from State down to the smallest hamlet have been infringed upon in the wild orgy of spending."

"Millions 'Squandered.'"

"In but few instances have the expenditures of the New Deal been warranted in comparison with the few jobs made available."

"Daily for months," the committee continued, "President Roosevelt has approved squandering in a way that shames efforts related in 'Brewster's Millions.'"

"Projects have been started which will have to be abandoned or require additional millions to finish. 'No more useless things have ever been concocted in the minds of men than are sponsored by Mr. Roosevelt and his Brain Trusters. They are spread all over the country. They dot every town and hamlet."

"They show just how much reliance can be placed upon the President's word because when he announced his Works Program, the President said it would be 'useful—not just for a day or a year but useful in the sense that it affords permanent improvement in quarters of the Japanese army in Manchoukuo."

REPORT IN JAPAN OF PACT BETWEEN RUSSIA AND CHINA

Rumors Says United States Will Join in Military Agreement.

By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, Nov. 13.—A majority of the afternoon vernacular newspapers gave great prominence today to dispatches from Hsinking, Manchoukuo, of "reports reaching certain quarters" that a secret tripartite military agreement between the United States, Soviet Russia and China was imminent.

The reports alleged that Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Foreign Commissioner, and W. W. Yen, Chinese Ambassador to Russia, had already concluded the pact, which the United States was expected to join shortly.

The agreement, the dispatches said, would obligate the signatories to maintain armed forces in the Orient to preserve peace there. It was stated the Chinese-Russian pact was tantamount to an alliance. Authoritative quarters said the reports emanated from the headquarters of the Japanese army in Manchoukuo.

Non-Japanese authorities, familiar with Oriental propaganda, pointed out the story was given out just before the Japanese Cabinet was scheduled to begin framing its 1936-1937 budget, in which the army is demanding increased appropriations. These sources also expressed the opinion the Japanese military was trying to build up the "bolshhevik danger" preparatory to new Japanese military moves in North China.

The Civil Service Commission has put in a separate category employees who are engaged in administering the relief activities of the Government, including the Works Progress Administration. In this general group there were 112,259 employees in September. Works Progress alone added 4327 workers in the field besides nearly 1000 in Washington WPA's own staff and more than 2000 at the Treasury writing WPA checks.

Adding the total of employees in the "new" agencies and in the relief agencies gives a total of 171,665. Virtually all these workers have been added during the Roosevelt administration.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely stating news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

In Opposition to Euthanasia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In England, where the civil rights of men were first promulgated in modern times by means of the Magna Charta, a law has been proposed which would deprive a man of his very existence because other men judged him to be an incurable.

In the case of idiots and imbeciles, they say they wish to put an end to needless suffering; yet psychiatrists tell us that the less mind a person has, the happier he is. Therefore, the motive must be to destroy them because they are impediments to the progress of the race. But so are all criminals and aged folk, all physically handicapped persons and all the wards of society to a greater or less degree. And who is so great that he may set the standard on the left side of which human beings are to be murdered?

It is another outcropping of the false proposal that the rights of the individual are to be subjected to the good of society; the proposal which, when applied to civil rights, we call communism. For the man who believes in God, there is no such thing as "needless physical suffering." The destruction of a human being for his own good or for the good of the race, is moral communism as well as civil communism, and is therefore doubly destructive.

Young vs. Champollion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MAY we call your attention to the error in the article on Dr. George Lamsa concerning the origin of the alphabet?

In the last paragraph, it is stated that the Rosetta Stone was deciphered by Thomas Young, an English scientist. Britannica, International and Columbia encyclopedias and the history books give the credit to Jean Francois Champollion, the great French Egyptologist.

Father Burke.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN the passing of the Rev. Father Patrick Burke, S. J., our city has lost a beloved citizen and a great leader. His memory will be cherished not only for his splendid sermons and addresses, but because of his winning personality, so sincere, so genial, and his sterling character. Father Burke was a consistently convincing man, especially in the pulpit. He grew steadily in the power of expression and knew how to fashion truth into flowing sentences which will long abide in the hearts of those who heard him. Around all of these primary qualities there ever played the gentle and genial light of a remarkable wit and humor. Few ever left his presence without a lightening of their burdens and often with a smile upon their lips.

But above all and everywhere, Father Burke was a fearless servant of Jesus Christ and never forgot his ministry and priesthood. He was so mild a man that no one was afraid of him. He could not be small. He was broad and deep and generous in his affections.

WILLIAM BAGGOT.

Italy and the Triple Alliance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

J. R. BOETTCHER claims that Italy sold herself to the highest bidder during the World War, thereby forsaking her old and tried friends of long standing.

It is evident that Mr. Boettcher is forming an opinion without any basis in facts. He evidently knows nothing of the so-called "happy relation" of the three allied Powers in question. Naturally he has not heard that Field Marshal Conrad von Hotzendorff, chief of staff of the Austrian army, presented Emperor Franz Joseph a plan to invade Italy at the time of the disastrous earthquake of Messina and Reggio Calabria in 1908.

I recommend that Mr. Boettcher read "Italy's Part in Winning the World War" by Col. Girard Lindsay McIntee of the United States Army. A. J. FRESCHI.

How Alf Saves Money.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WOULD like to add a few lines to your editorial of Nov. 10 entitled "Common Sense in Kansas." As a tourist in this past summer, I traveled through Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas and parts of Nebraska. Without equivocation, I can say that the highways of Kansas were the worst that I have ever seen. Most of them were oil-covered and very poorly maintained; the corners seldom were banked and it was not uncommon to find holes comparable to those described in medieval history. The one concrete highway in Kansas that had the pleasure of traveling over was No. 40 between Topeka and Kansas City, and that was so rough and broken that one could not possibly exceed 40 miles an hour.

Yes, Kansas and her thrifty Governor know how to save money, and it is very evident when one travels through the State.

EARL W. HAYTER.

BRITAIN'S ELECTION.

The British system of a flexible date for national elections has three features not found in such countries as the United States, where the date is fixed. For one thing, the campaign is short, since the statute provides that only 21 days may elapse between the dissolving of one House of Commons and the formation of another. For another, a flexible date makes it possible to bring an issue before the country while it is fresh in the public mind, and the voters may return or throw out the party in power on the basis of that issue. Third, a tremendous advantage is given to the party in power by its privilege, within certain limits, of choosing an election date when the time seems ripe as a matter of political strategy.

Prime Minister Baldwin, leader of the Conservative Government, has played his cards shrewdly in choosing tomorrow as the day for the elections. The law provides that no House of Commons can hold office for longer than five years, and it is customary for an election to be held at some time before its legal life expires. The present Parliament's term still has a year to run, and Mr. Baldwin seized the psychological moment when the country was almost solidly behind his Government on the dominant issue of sanctions against Italy to bid for a return to power.

Doing so, he has largely stolen the thunder of his party's opponents, and a sweeping victory, though probably not of the landslide proportions of the 1931 election, seems assured. An unofficial peace ballot last spring showed that 11,000,000 Britons, of all parties, favored collective action for peace under the League Covenant. The Government has just performed the feat of organizing 50-odd nations to take such action against Italy, and public enthusiasm runs high. By holding the election at once, the Government need not stake its fate on the success or failure of sanctions—they are to take effect, in fact, four days after the election. It capitalizes the popular appeal of its unprecedented rallying of the nations against an aggressor.

This leaves both the Labor and Liberal parties in an embarrassing position. They cannot oppose the League or sanctions, for both are on record as supporting them. They can do little more than censure the Government for its delay in taking action and hint at bad faith in the form of a private agreement with Italy. Laborites and Liberals also can dissent only slightly from the Conservatives' second major issue, that of defense, in view of the tense situation in Europe and the menace of Nazi and Fascist ambitions.

The wording of the party manifestoes makes this latter point clear. The Conservatives urge forces "strong enough to fulfill any obligations which, jointly with others, we may undertake," and would "repair the gaps in our defense." The Liberals call for defenses "efficient and large enough for the needs of the times." Labor promises to "maintain such defense forces as are necessary and consistent with our membership in the League." All parties pledge efforts toward international arms limitation.

As to the item of bad faith, it is doubtless true, as Lloyd George writes, that there are powerful leaders in the Government who, "though they may pay lip service to the League ideals, in their hearts dislike it thoroughly and long for a powerfully armed Britain, independent and imperialist, pursuing the old-fashioned power diplomacy." Nevertheless, the Conservatives' spokesmen now have gone too far in action and in word to make conceivable any major shift of policy after the elections. To do so would be to go against the plainly expressed popular sentiment, and to sink the party in disrepute for years to come. The Government has gone on record with this unequivocal statement:

The League of Nations will remain the keynote of British foreign policy. We shall continue to do all in our power to uphold the Covenant and to maintain and increase the efficiency of the League.

In the present unhappy dispute between Italy and Abyssinia, there will be no wavering in the policy we have hitherto pursued.

On other issues as well, the Conservatives have chosen a timely date for the election. The budget is balanced (though without provision for the war debt to America). Unemployment in England has fallen below 2,000,000 for the first time since the depression began, and industrial production has passed the 1929 level. The financial crisis which brought about the 1931 election has been surmounted. For the economic bogy of that election, the party strategists have substituted the bogy of war.

On the domestic front, the Government is being vigorously attacked. Here, too, though open to criticism, it holds the cards, and plays them adroitly. On the eve of the election, it has provided certain immediate social benefits for the unemployed and has promised others, together with reform of methods that have proved unpopular.

It will be an election of more than domestic interest. The British Government's policy toward Italy has heartened the world with hope that at last precedents are being set that will curb aggression. Either Labor or the Liberals would continue in broad principles the policies the Baldwin Government has embarked upon, but their cause in the elections is hopeless, save in the capture of sufficient seats to give the Government a vigorous and wholesome opposition.

Mr. Baldwin has gone to the electorate on a significant issue and has conducted his strategy astutely. Interest abroad centers on continuation of the peace policies his Government has launched. World opinion, as well as that of the voters at home, will hold his Government responsible for their continuance.

VICTOR S. HOLM.

When Victor S. Holm accepted the instructorship in sculpture at Washington University 26 years ago, he did so against the advice of an artist friend who lived in St. Louis and the teacher whose place he came to fill. St. Louis, they said in substance, without artistic present or future, was not the place for an aspiring sculptor who had enjoyed the privilege of training and association with Lorado Taft. But the young man from Denmark reasoned that the lack of an art colony only made the greater the opportunity of the fine-arts teacher. He came out from New York and began to teach and to work.

St. Louis, and, indeed, this section of the Mississippi Valley, can be glad that he did. Thanks to Victor Holm's hand, the community has sculptured memorials to Dr. William Beaumont, Calvin M. Woodward, William Taussig, Halsey C. Ives, Robert A. Barnes and other cultural builders. His public art decorates the Memorial Plaza and other parts of the city. It is to be found on the battlefield of Vicksburg, in the monument to Gov. Theodore Carlin at Carrollton, Ill., at Rolla and Jefferson City. Those who were associated with Holm's handling of the bust of John Malang, father of Missouri's highway system, know how infinitely patient he could be and how graciously he could receive criticism.

But it was as a teacher that he made his most important contribution. Skilled in technical knowledge and possessed of an ability to transmit it, Holm modeled students into artists in his classroom and then eagerly watched them go out to earn reputations in their own right. The art colony, which took form and grew to its present distinction during his quarter-century here, knew him as an enthusiastic and helpful friend of its activities.

Victor S. Holm's hand has been stayed, but his influence will go marching on.

JUDGE MOORE'S INSTRUCTIONS.

A defense lawyer in the movie conspiracy trial objected to Federal Judge Moore's instructions to the jury on the ground that they constituted "a stump speech calculated to prejudice the jury."

That legalistic objection will be overruled by anyone who read the clear instructions of Judge Moore and who is interested in getting rid of the underbrush of technicalities in which justice is too often tripped in our courts.

One large reason for the superior functioning of the English courts is the extent to which the Judges take control of the proceedings. Laurence Hyde, commissioner of the Missouri State Supreme Court, brought out the point admirably in his recent address before the St. Louis Bar Association. A striking illustration of the power of English Judges and the full use they make of it is furnished by the Chrysler case now in the news, a case in which the Judge, in his finding, branded one of the main witnesses for the defense as a liar and denounced in withering language the business practices which had brought the defendants into court. We cite this not as a case analogous to that tried before Judge Moore—for it was not—but as illustrative of the general English method in the trial of cases. It is a method which has played a large part in making the English courts something other than cockpits for the battles of lawyers.

Judge Moore's charge gave due weight to the factors favoring the defense—and the defense, incidentally, won the case—but it also included, and properly so, a plain and non-technical statement of the Sherman anti-trust law and its implications. A part of his charge specifically attacked by the defense was the explanation that the Sherman law was intended, among other things, "to prevent unreasonable use of vast accumulations of wealth to oppress individuals and injure the public." That is the simple truth. Why shouldn't the Judge have stated it for the guidance of the jury in the highly complicated case under trial?

Peculiarly timely and pertinent, in view of defense tactics made familiar by the trials for the Kelley kidnaping, was Judge Moore's warning to the jurors against attempts to get them to try some extraneous issue or some person not a defendant—against, as he said, "a pitfall which too frequently causes a miscarriage of justice in criminal cases."

As to the issues involved in the movie case itself, we confess to a considerable degree of bewilderment. As to the issue raised by the defense in objecting to the Court's instructions, we have no hesitation in voting with Judge Moore. For his action in fining a defense attorney $100 for contempt of court, contempt which expressed itself, as the Judge said, in shouting and yelling at witnesses and in the slur on the Court's dignity, we propose three rousing cheers.

A PROBLEM OF SALUTES.

A problem of etiquette that came near disrupting the inauguration of the new Philippine Commonwealth, set for Friday, has been settled gracefully. The program originally called for a salute of 21 guns for the incoming President, Manuel Quezon. That would have made him outrank the High Commissioner, Frank Murphy, and Vice-President Garner, listed for 19 guns each. No issue so far as Mr. Garner is concerned, for he will return to Texas, but Mr. Murphy would have had to remain in Manila and attempt to supervise affairs under a two-gun handicap. Also, it was pointed out, 21 guns signify the head of a sovereign nation, and the Philippines will not attain full sovereignty for 10 years.

The problem has been solved by Secretary Dern—a 17-gun man himself, as a Cabinet member, and hence not involved. Quezon and Murphy will get 19 guns apiece, he has ruled, thus preserving the amenities and the Commissioner's prestige. Mr. Quezon, too, should be able to get out with prestige unimpaired. Recalling his pledges of economy if elected to the presidency, he may announce that his first saving is two rounds of ammunition.

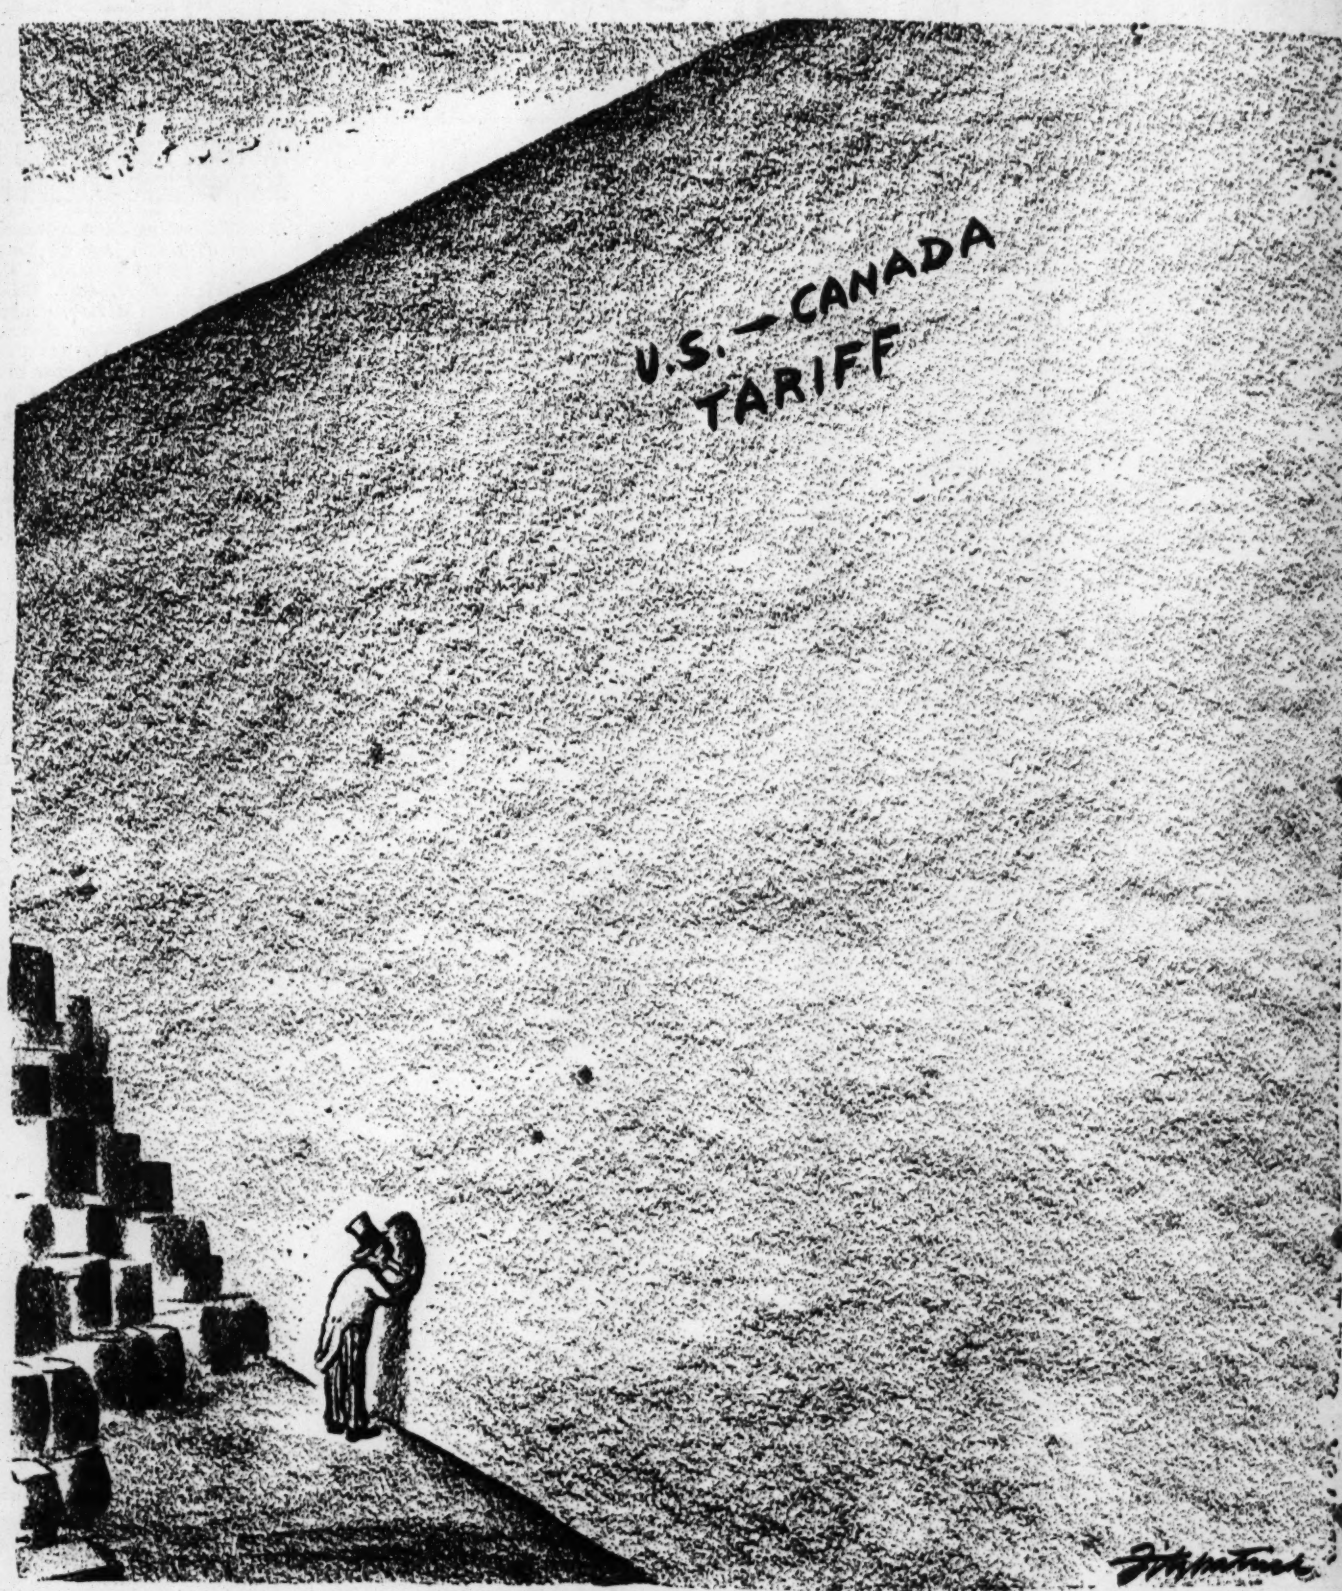

GOOD NEWS FROM THE ECONOMIC FRONT.

President Roosevelt's Armistice day address at Arlington National Cemetery was a reaffirmation and a continuation of his words on peace and war to the New York Herald Tribune's Forum on Public Questions last month. On that occasion, Mr. Roosevelt set forth his pledge "to do my part in keeping America free of those entanglements that move us along the road to war." He reaffirmed that pledge Monday, and supplemented it with a report of constructive action in a field highly productive of the international tensions that lead to war.

Mr. Roosevelt took the occasion to announce that a trade agreement had been reached with the Canadian Prime Minister, Mackenzie King, with whom he had discussions last week in Washington. Though not announcing its specific terms, Mr. Roosevelt said that the agreement "will eliminate disagreements and unreasonable restrictions, and thus work to the advantage of both Canada and the United States."

Trade barriers and the strangling of economic expansion help to account for the world's present state of armed trepidation. Economic issues lie at the bottom of the militaristic blusterings that now overshadow the nations with fear of another great war. If Canada and the United States can solve their problem with an agreement of mutual benefits, as the President described it, then other pairs of neighbors, and groups of nations, throughout the world can realize similar gains, for, in his words, "Each has much to gain by material profit and by increased employment through the means of enlarged trade, one with the other."

It is a modest beginning, but it can become mighty in its "power of good example." Armed force cannot give permanent solution to the world's throttling economic problems. Agreement on mutually beneficial trade and other relations is the rational method.

DISCUSSING PLANS FOR A DOOR.

That Curious Baltimore Case

Record in this trial, in which Federal Judge Coleman held Holding Company Act unconstitutional, shows its odd circumstances; utility bondholder, when asked about his counsel, John W. Davis, said: "I don't know the gentleman"; writer thinks one result of this strange proceeding will be to add fury to fight for regulation.

From the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

THE utility lawyers outsmarted the Government in the case so quickly decided at Baltimore by Federal Judge Coleman. The circumstances may be summarized:

In September, almost immediately after the adjournment of Congress, the Edison Electric Institute of New York, the national organization representing the electrical utilities, saw an opportunity to intervene in the case of an obscure bankruptcy reorganization within the jurisdiction of Judge Coleman. The trustee of the bankrupt American States Public Service Co. asked Judge Coleman for advice on how to proceed in view of the new Federal Holding Company Law. Should it register under the act, as required by one of the act's provisions? A legitimate question.

When it was decided that John W. Davis, the New York lawyer, and one of the counsel for the Edison Institute, should intervene in order to get Judge Coleman, reputed to be very conservative, to rule on the constitutionality of the holding company law, Mr. Davis went to Baltimore and the preliminaries were arranged for the technical conflict of interests necessary for making up a court issue. The arrangement left out the Government entirely as a party to the case. One litigant represented an investment trust acting as agent for some of the first bondholders of the bankrupt utility.

The other creditor, whom Mr. Davis was to represent, was not found immediately. Finally, a Baltimore dentist named Lautenbach, whose holdings of the utility debentures were valued at about $400, appeared in court to serve as Mr. Davis' client while the celebrated attorney attacked the law's constitutionality. Dr. Lautenbach was questioned by the Government's lawyer, John Burns, the Government having come into the case as a "friend of the court," but without the right to appear in case the decision proved to be adverse to the law.

There was a ludicrous scene in the court when it developed that the dentist knew nothing about his attorney, Mr. Davis, who was present to serve his $400 interest. The direct examination by Mr. Burns contained this droll passage:

Q. Did you have an appreciation at the time that you were being represented by Mr. Davis of New York?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have never met Mr. Davis personally?

A. I don't know the gentleman.

Q. You never made any arrangements to pay any attorney any fee for representing you?

A. No, sir.

Whereupon Mr. Davis "took" the witness, his own client, in cross-examination, and the difficulty was pleasantly smoothed out then and there.

Q. Mr. Lautenbach, when you signed the petition, you understood it was to be filed in this proceeding?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were told that I would represent you on that petition?

A. Yes, sir; not me, the company.

Q. Not you?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have I your authority now to proceed

GLORIOUS EXCEPTION.

From the New Orleans Item.

THIS great and glorious Union embraces 48 sovereign states. Students report that 47 of them have adopted measures during the present year to impose new taxes on their people or to raise old taxes. Virginia is the solitary exception. But its honorable distinction is no miracle. As the late Mr. Post used to say, "There's a reason." Virginia's Legislature has not met this year.

A Museum of Modern Music

From the Baltimore Sun.

RECENTLY it was announced that Williams College would create a museum of modern American music, the first to be established, and that the endowment would be provided by Paul Whiteman. The orchestra leader is making a gift of scripts, orchestrations, arrangements, photograph records and musical instruments. He has provided that this collection must be accessible to all qualified persons interested in the development of American music, and he has expressed the hope that Williams may become a modern music center, with laboratories, instructors and lecturers.

The college, it appears, has received the idea, along with the gift, enthusiastically. And, indeed, there seems to be much to recommend the project. By modern American music one means essentially popular music, and popular music means jazz. Think what jazz, there can be no doubt that the "idiom of jazz" as Mr. Whiteman calls it, is an important and serious mode of American expression and that, as he also remarks, it "has a great chance of growth." This being so, a better and more exact understanding of its history, its nature and its possibilities, as well as the techniques and mechanical apparatus with which its popularity is linked, must be of real importance.

"Other music," says Mr. Whiteman, "had its roots for many centuries in the old countries. There is only one type of American music that you can put your finger on, and that is jazz. Around the world they know American jazz." No matter how lousy modern music is, we want to make it better and keep its character." It is difficult to believe that many can disagree with that pungent statement of the case.

There is no longer any question of the survival of this music or of its appeal. The only problem is its future development, together with the instruments by means of which it is made available to the public. The establishment of the museum at Williams is clear indication of how far jazz has come in a short time. A few years ago, it was at best a despised "lively art." Today, it is honored in the colleges and is the subject of serious study and experiment.

DOWN ON THE FARM.

From the New York Post.

FARM income for this year undoubtedly will be the highest since 1930. For this rise, all credit is due the Roosevelt administration.

Yet no sensible observer feels that the farm problem has been solved or even that the fundamentals of it have been tackled.

We have a rather effective stopgap against the farmer, but his business is still on a precarious basis.

The problem becomes increasingly clear when it is remembered that the increase of income has been of far more benefit to the richer farmers than to the poorer ones. A recent survey conducted by Country Home magazine shows that 35 per cent of the farmers receive 80 per cent of the farmers take only 20 per cent of the total.

Over whole regions, especially in the South, few, if any, farmers have benefited from the Roosevelt farm policy.

It is something, but not enough, that the nation's total farm income is on the increase. "The share-cropper and the 'dirt' farmer are the real forgotten men of our times."

We will not approach a real solution of the farm problem until we see those 65 per cent of farmers who now receive only 20 per cent of farm income.

The DAILY MERRY

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.

THE behind-the-scenes struggle over the remains of the NRA is rapidly passing from comedy to burlesque.

While Maj. George Berry, coordinator for Industrial Recovery, is energetically ballyhooing his December 9 conference of business and labor to revive the Blue Eagle, a little by-play is going on behind his back. "Uncle Dan" Roper is busily pushing secret plans to absorb the remnants of the NRA into his Commerce Department.

Under Roper's scheme, all sections of the NRA except the Research and Planning Division would be junked; this one remaining division would be incorporated in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Roper's plan is not more wish-thinking. It has progressed to the point where Assistant Commerce Secretary Ernest G. Draper and L. J. Martin, Acting NRA Administrator, have discussed what personnel should be retained or dismissed.

Martin, incidentally, plans to fly the Blue Eagle roost just after Berry's industry-labor "congress" on the 9th. Relations between him and Berry are friendly only on the surface. For all practical purposes, he has been superseded as NRA boss.

Roper's plan is fully known to the White House, but it is being kept under the blankets in order not to throw a damper on Berry's forthcoming three-ring circus. The inside whisper in the Commerce Department is that the NRA absorption is slated for around the end of the year.

The President has the authority to make the transfer by executive order. His decision will be guided, it is hinted, by what happens at Berry's show. If it proves a dud, the ax will fall and the NRA will pass out.

Diplomatess.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN may have had rough sledding as Secretary of State, but his daughter, Ruth Bryan Owen, is at least one woman in the New Deal who has made good.

At first welcomed with considerable skepticism as United States Minister to Denmark, she has won the genuine affection of the Danes.

Mrs. Owen also has solved the economic problem. She made a tour of Greenland-Danish possessions on a United States Coast Guard vessel, sent at Government expense by her good friend Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

The book produced as a result of this trip is featured in the book store of Copenhagen. And every American tourist buys a copy.

Fur Diagnosis.

MRS. CONSUMER need no longer worry whether her "fox fur" is fox or rabbit. The Department of Agriculture is on the road to solving her problem.

In the discredited temporary buildings left over from the war, using safety razor blades left over from the war, a zealous inventor named Hardy has bent over microscopes and found a way to hold fast off a cross-section of hair and slice off only one ten-thousandth of an inch.

Nobody has ever been able to do that before. The reason it matters is that unless you can do this, you

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.

IN THIS column it was said that the Labor Department is run too much as a pressure bureau for labor men as the Department of Agriculture is for farmers, that it is a job masterman like Edward McGarry rather than a woman in a mess, the affairs of labor are in a mess.

The editorial dissent is (1) That in the NRA, I blocked the majority that, after all, McGarry is Assistant Secretary; and (2) that the Labor Department could not back any particular union or form of union as against another.

I myself had carefully pointed out the qualification of number 3. True, McGarry is Assistant but he isn't allowed to carry any of the dishes. He is only rushed in when there is a crash in the pantry to pick up the broken pieces. He has nothing to do with policy. The guide, philosopher and friend is the very able Mr. Wyzanski—the Happy Hot Dog.

The greatest administrative fallacy is that you don't need to bother about the chief if only you get the right lieutenant. It's like

BABY FALLS IN HOT WATER

Severely Burned During Preparation for Her Bath.

Alvera Braun, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Braun, suffered severe burns when she fell into a pan of hot water in the bathroom of the Braun home, 4412A Greer avenue, last night.

The pan had been placed on the floor preparatory to bathing the child. She was taken to City Hospital.

JUDGE LETS OFF SON OF CHILDHOOD HERO

Places Illinois Farmer on Probation After Telling of Civil War Veteran.

Judge Fred L. Wham passed judgment on the son of a childhood friend during arraignment in Federal Court in East St. Louis yesterday. The defendant, Martin J. Baird, 53-year-old farmer of Kell, Ill., near Judge Wham's home at Centralia, pleaded guilty of operating an illicit still and possession of 38 gallons of moonshine liquor.

His voice stern, Judge Wham said: "Your father, Theodore Baird, a Civil War veteran, was my childhood hero. He built the barn on our farm. He rebuilt the home where I was brought up. Sitting around the stove with a coal oil lamp burning, he played the violin and told us stories.

"Was Greatly Disappointed." "Once I saw him drunk and I was greatly disappointed. I understand the liquor habit has passed on to you. You have been in a state institution because of drink. If you are ready to quit, I can suspend your sentence and place you on probation."

"I've had enough to satisfy me, your honor," Baird said.

Judge Wham smiled. He suggested that Baird's son not drink beer as well as spirits. Baird promised he would not, and sentence was suspended.

Charles Fehrer, former postmaster at Jacob, Ill., pleaded guilty of embezzling $787 in surplus postal funds in his charge. Judge Wham continued the case till Nov. 26 and ordered Probation Officer Arthur Burke to make an investigation.

For interstate transportation of a stolen automobile, Charles Robertson and Bernice Taylor, both of Paducah, Ky., were sentenced to three years at Leavenworth Penitentiary. For the same offense, Cleo Davenport, Paducah, was sentenced to four years at Leavenworth, and Tracy Fomby, Ziegler, Ill., two years at Chillicothe (O.).

Reformatory. Davenport received a concurrent two-year sentence for possession of an unregistered sawed-off shotgun. The four were arrested in a stolen automobile at Cairo, Ill.

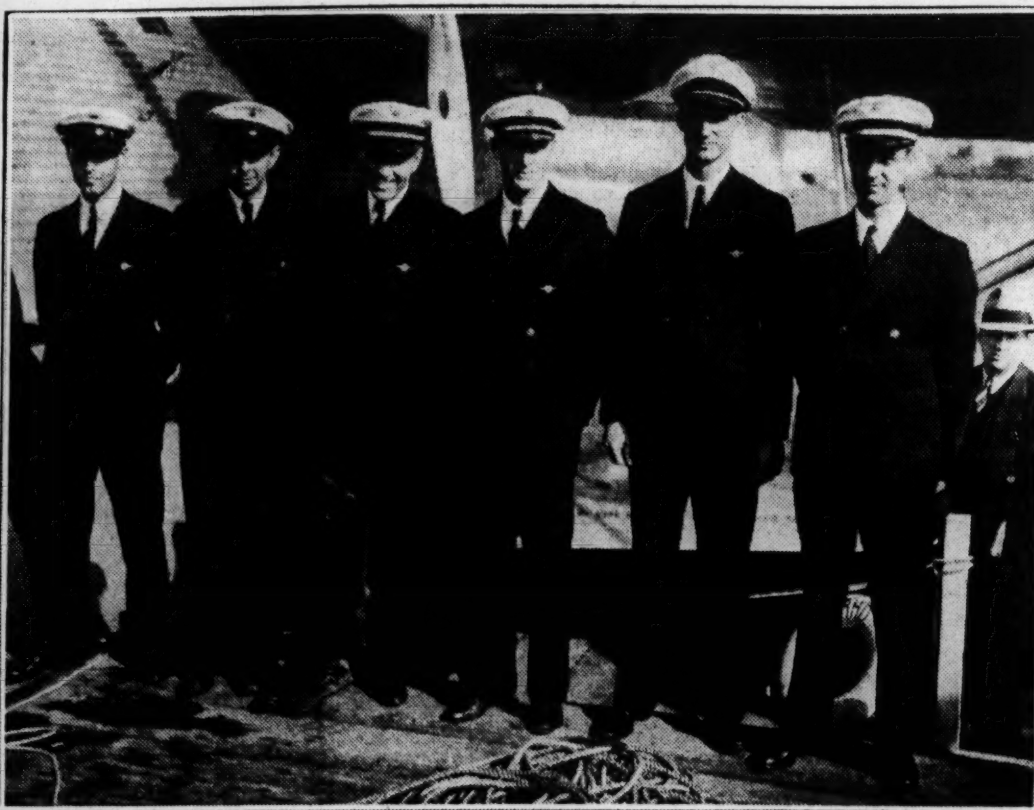

Pleas of Guilty.

Fines of $500 and varying sentences were imposed on the following on pleas of guilty of violation of liquor laws: John H. Russell, Negro of Cache, Ill., 60 days; John Lukender, Benton, Ill., 60 days; Louis Smith, White Ash, Ill., one year and a day; Frank Rukis, West Frankfort, Ill., five months; Frank Smith Jr., Cairo, Ill., one year and a day; K. C. Darby, Cairo, Ill., five months; James D. Black, Brookport, Ill., five months; Ernest Brennan, Brookport, Ill., four months; John Balston, Johnson City, Ill., 90 days.

On pleas of guilty of liquor law violations, Judge Wham placed the following on probation for three years: Martin J. Baird, Centralia, Ill.; William Easterday, Metropolis, Ill.; Orville Foutch, Centralia, Ill.; Mary Bregan, Fairmont City, Ill.; and Edward Hilgerman, Mount Vernon. Mary Bregan was fined $100 and Hilgerman, $200.

For interstate transportation of stolen automobiles Henry Staples, Fireworks Station, and Jesse Cardell, Cairo, were sentenced to two years each at Leavenworth. For theft of interstate freight, William Russell, Cairo, Ill., was sentenced to two years at Chillicothe, and Elmer Peterson, St. Louis, to a year and a day at Chillicothe.

24,000 ADDED TO U. S. PAYROLL IN SEPTEMBER

More than 200,000 workers. The greatest proportionate increase has been in the District of Columbia which presents many of the aspects of war-time. The Government has just taken over another large apartment building for office space, ousting all the tenants, including Justice McReynolds of the Supreme Court, a bitter critic of the NRA and other New Deal experiments.

The Resettlement Administration (a rapidly growing agency) added 599 employees in Washington during the month of September, and 1130 in the field.

The NRA on Sept. 30 still had 2981 employees in the field and in Washington. During that month 216 workers were "separated"—to use the Civil Service term—from the Federal payroll while 17 were added, making a total in Washington of 2335. In the field NRA had on Sept. 30, 648 workers.

The Post Office Department, the largest of the old-line regular agencies, added more than 1000 employees during September. This was to comply with the new law requiring a 40-hour week in the postal service. The expansion of the Civilian Conservation Corps camps required an increase in CCC personnel of about 1200 during September.

The Civil Service Commission issues a monthly report showing the number of employees in all the executive branches of the Government.

SOCIETY FOR BLIND TO HOLD ITS ANNUAL SERVICES MONDAY

Two Speeches to Be Made About Robert Johnston, Former Head Who Died Last May.

The annual meeting and memorial service of the St. Louis Society for the Blind will be held Monday night at 8 o'clock in the chapel of Second Presbyterian Church, Taylor avenue and Westminster place.

There will be two speeches about Robert Johnston, former president of the society, who died last May, by the Rev. Alphonse M. Schwiltalla, S. J., dean of the St. Louis University Medical School, and the Rev. John W. MacIvor, pastor of Second Presbyterian Church. The Robert Johnston prizes for the blind will be awarded by Miss Ruth Johnston, a daughter.

The principal address, on "The Importance of Prevention of Blindness," will be made by Dr. Edward Jackson of Denver, Colo., a recent winner of the Leslie Dana award for work with the blind. Dr. John O. McReynolds of Dallas, Tex., will speak as a representative of the Southern Medical Association which will be in convention here at the time.

Resolutions in memory of Mr. Johnston, J. Harry Rehme, Miss Sarah Tower and Miss Pauline Boislinski will be read from Braille manuscripts by blind persons.

NEW CHARGE OFFERED AGAINST IOWA'S ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Prosecutor Submits Motion to Amend Indictment to Include Liquor Conspiracy.

By the Associated Press.

SIoux CITY, Ia., Nov. 13. — A new charge against Edward L. O'Connor, Attorney-General of Iowa, was presented by the State yesterday as he went to trial for alleged conspiracy to operate slot machines.

Special Prosecutor H. M. Havner asked leave to amend the indictment against O'Connor to include "conspiracy to sell liquor." The defense offered no objection; but Presiding Judge Earl Peters delayed his ruling.

A grand jury spent five months investigating alleged corruption in high offices. In addition to O'Connor it indicted Walter Maley, his first assistant, and 18 others on bribery and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

IT'S CHEAP TO COOK ELECTRICALLY IN ST. LOUIS

"After 18 years it still bakes lovely cakes," says Mrs. Raining

And read her electric bill!

It's unbelievably low — the electric bill that Mrs. Raining opens every month! She has a good sized family, in a good sized house. She has a long list of electric appliances — including all the major ones — in constant use. She has an electric range. But her monthly bill averages only $6.30.

"My range is economical to operate — and cool and clean besides," says Mrs. Raining. "I've been using it constantly for 18 years and it still gives perfect service. It bakes lovely cakes. In fact, I can't ever remember failing in baking."

Wouldn't you like to be able to say that? You can! Just buy one of the beautiful electric ranges your dealer is showing. It will bring new comfort and happiness to your home. You too, will find an electric range economical to use. Its cost is no burden. You can get one as low as $4 or $5 a month.

FREE — an interesting 52-page book that will give you story and picture of many more St. Louis homes where they cook electrically. Find your friends and neighbors in it. Marvel at their low electric bills. Ask any woman in here about electric cookery. Your dealer will gladly give you a copy of this book.

FOR REAL RELIEF OF CONSTIPATION

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

You can use a liquid laxative at home. And if you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the real secret of relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help when the dosage is repeated. Taking a little less each time, gives the bowels a chance to act of their own accord, until they are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

Once you have experienced this comfort, you will never go back to any form of help that cannot be regulated to suit the need!

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara — both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. The action is gentle, but sure. It will relieve any sluggishness or bilious condition due to constipation. It is the very nicest tasting, nicest acting preparation you can buy. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

When you give to the United Charities Campaign you are supporting 89 agencies which last year performed necessary services for 213,000 persons in St. Louis and St. Louis County.
Over 18,000 were turned away because of insufficient funds.

"Such services as these have not and cannot be assumed as a responsibility of the Federal Government"...

President Roosevelt

Some people are saying, "Why should I give to United Charities? The government is taking care of families who need relief."
We give you the answer in the Jones family, a typical case among the 45,000 families on relief in St. Louis and St. Louis County.
Uncle Sam has been helping us care for these families, in a limited way, but —

Let's get this straight!

Care of the sick... the aged... the orphans, the young people... the families in distress is just as much our responsibility today as it ever was. As President Roosevelt says, the Federal Government has not and will not pay the cost of our local charities. The Jones family is our responsibility.

Here is the Jones family... (a responsibility of United Charities)

Food, clothing and shelter will permit this family to exist, but that is only the beginning of the many services which United Charities must provide for our unfortunate neighbors.

Your Gift to United Charities did this... for Mr. Jones

1 From a steady position that paid $250 a month, Mr. Jones was reduced to peddling notions from door to door with average earnings of 40 cents a day. Weakness and exposure led to his contracting pneumonia and a United Charities hospital took him in.

AND THIS — for Mrs. Jones

2 The strain of family worries, of living on charity, wrecked the health of Mrs. Jones and finally brought her to a condition of collapse. United Charities makes it possible for a visiting nurse to take charge of the home.

AND THIS — for Peggy

3 Peggy, age 17, her home life changed from the average comforts to heart-breaking poverty, started on the path that leads to lost souls, but a girl's club made possible by United Charities, gave her a fresh start and a new outlook on life.

AND THIS — for Tim

4 Tim at the age of 7, was shunted by the depression from trees and a lawn to bricks and back alleys. His underfed body was an easy prey for the gang and one day he snatched a purse. A United Charities settlement house eased the disgrace of being arrested and guided Tim on the

AND THIS — for Bobby

5 Bobby Jones, a depression child, has had a hard struggle for existence and at the age of 4 was dangerously undernourished. At Children's Hospital a scientific diet and constant watching at the clinic started the youngster on the road to health and saved society from a possible life-long charity ward.

EVELYN HOEY KILLED
SELF, WITNESS SAYS

Singing Tutor Gives His Theory After Appearing Before Grand Jury.

By the Associated Press.
WEST CHESTER, Pa., Nov. 13.—Victor Andoga, who once coached Evelyn Hoey in her blues singing venture on the New York stage, said today she was disillusioned in her "one great love" and he felt positive that her death in the home of Henry H. Rogers III was suicide. Andoga said he did not remember that Miss Hoey ever mentioned Rogers' name. He spoke of Miss Hoey as he emerged from a grand jury room after testifying in the investigation of her death at Rogers' farm home near Downingtown last Sept. 11. "She was really very nice, very loyal, very sweet," Andoga said. Apparently the tragedy of her love life occurred in the spring of 1934, he said. After that, he said, she told him twice she contemplated taking her life. "She was drinking heavily," he said.

He said he could not testify to anything between Burr and Miss Hoey except a friendship of a professional nature. "But she was disillusioned in love," he repeated. "I am absolutely convinced she killed herself." Andoga, a middle-aged man, did not testify last September at the inquest when a coroner's jury failed to determine whether Miss Hoey's death was homicide or suicide. He was the fifth witness of the grand jury investigation.

Fingerprint Man Testifies.
Proceeding him today was Charles E. Dunlap, fingerprint expert of Chester, Pa. Dunlap's testimony at the inquest supported the suicide theory. He said the only fingerprints he could distinguish on the pistol which killed Miss Hoey were those of the girl herself. William J. Kelley of Union City, N. J., free lance movie cameraman and guest of Rogers the night Miss Hoey died, testified for an hour and officials said his story had not been completed when the grand jury recessed for luncheon. Kelley and Rogers were held for 36 hours after the shooting and then were released in bail for the inquest. Kelley told the coroner's jury he was with Rogers in the farm house living room when Miss Hoey killed herself on the second floor.

MOTORIST IS FINED $150,

Leslie Baugh, Soldier on Furlough, Also Failed to Observe Street Stop Sign.
Leslie Baugh, 24-year-old soldier, on furlough from Washington and visiting a relative in Kirkwood, was fined a total of $150 today by Police Judge Simpson on charges of careless driving, leaving the scene of an automobile accident and failing to make a major street stop. Baugh was charged with failing to observe a stop sign Monday at Manchester and Knox avenues and striking another machine. He gave the other motorist, his license number but failed to give his name and address before leaving. Baugh told the court he had not seen the stop sign.

H. F. SCHOLLE WILL ATTACKED

Three daughters of Henry F. Scholle, who died Feb. 7, filed suit in Circuit Court yesterday to set aside his will. The petitioners, Mrs. Ida Zimmerman, Mrs. Frieda Bell and Mrs. Ella S. Culp, to whom $1 each was bequeathed, alleged that their father was incapable of making a legal will when the document was drawn. He left the residue of the estate to another daughter, Mrs. Marie S. Baumgartner, of Black Jack, Mo. William Schewe, executor, denied the allegations. Mr. Scholle resided at 4350 De Soto avenue. His estate consists of two parcels of realty.

CITY RELIEF COST
$7,228,793 IN 5 YEARS

Nolte Points Out St. Louis Has Spent $1,444,731 More Than State.

Comptroller Louis Nolte issued a statement yesterday pointing out that in the five years since November, 1930, the city of St. Louis has spent a total of $7,228,793.41 for relief.

His statement was prompted by the report of Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins in Washington which showed how much the various states had contributed for relief during the five-year period, but did not list what the cities had paid. The Hopkins report listed six states as not contributing anything.

Missouri was shown to have allotted $6,084,062 during this period and Nolte was quick to draw attention to the fact that St. Louis' relief allocation amounted to $1,144,731 more than that which the State Government appropriated during the same years. He said the city has made "a splendid showing" in comparison with other large cities and could not be expected to increase its present relief appropriation of $151,000 a month. "As early as November, 1930, our city government recognized an emergency in the relief situation," the Comptroller said. "From that time until November, 1932, when the $4,600,000 relief bond issue was passed, the city spent out of municipal revenue the sum of $1,525,000. This expenditure, of course, was reflected in the municipal deficits of those years." A new relief bond issue for $3,600,000 was authorized by the voters last April after funds from the previous bond issue had been expended. Of the new bond issue $1,103,793.41 has been spent to date, of which $648,793 went for the employment office established here and the remainder for direct relief. Both of the relief bond issues are to be retired by the tolls collected on the Municipal Bridge.

FOUND DYING AT FOOT OF STEPS

Peter Schindler Succumbs to Fracture of Skull.
Peter Schindler, 57 years old, a laborer, 1542 South Theresa avenue, died at City Hospital at 5 a. m. today of a fractured skull. He was found last night by a policeman lying unconscious at the bottom of the concrete steps leading to his basement dwelling. Taken to City Hospital, he was treated for acute alcoholism and a skull injury. A coroner's inquest will be held.

MASTER OF NATIONAL GRANGE CALLS FOR "HONEST DOLLAR"

At Opening of Convention, He Says,
"We Oppose Unlimited Inflation and Deflation."

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 13.—
Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, called for an "honest dollar," at the sixty-ninth annual meeting of the Grange here today.

"The Grange believes there is a common-sense approach to the monetary problem," Taber said. "We are opposed both to unlimited inflation and to deflation. . . . We demand a sound dollar. Money is not sound when it suddenly loses half its value, or when it suddenly doubles in value. . . ."

"Organized agriculture is an agreement with the present policy of the British Government, which has frequently been announced as primarily concerned with the buying power of the pound rather than its weight in gold."

"We would restore the dollar to a buying power that would bring the price level in reasonable adjustment and then keep it there with a dollar stable in value."

He praised the AAA, but suggested changes to give the farmer greater control, to prevent bureaucratic methods, and to develop farm co-operatives with larger opportunities for the tenant farmer and rewards for growing crops, of which there is a shortage.

HEARING ON RELEASE OF ANGELO HERNDON

State in Arguments Says Negro
Was Organizer for World Communist Party.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 13.—Assistant Solicitor J. Walter Lecraw, opposing the release of Angelo Herndon, Cincinnati Negro Communist, from an 18 to 20 year sentence for "attempting to incite insurrection," told the court today the International Communist party had ordered creation "of a republic of Negroes in the South." Herndon was convicted in 1932.

Attorneys for Herndon, in their arguments at a habeas corpus hearing before Judge Hugh M. Dorsey in Fulton (Atlanta) Superior Court, which began yesterday, attacked the 1866 Georgia insurrection law as unconstitutional.

Lecraw Argues Against Release.
Lecraw, in his arguments for the State, pictured Herndon as an organizer for the International Communist party.

"The International Communist party at Moscow," Lecraw told the Court, "ordered the United States party to create a republic of Negroes in the South. Russia ordered the American Communists to confiscate property from the white people and to establish a state in the black belt, extending from Virginia to Texas. The white minority in the state would have been made to submit to the will of the Negroes."

W. A. Sutherland, one of Herndon's attorneys, said there was no doubt the case "will have to go to the Supreme Court of the United States, no matter which side wins."

Case Taken Under Advisement.
After hearing rebuttal arguments from Herndon's attorneys, Judge
Dorsey took the case under advisement.
He did not indicate when he would announce his decision.

Sutherland, in rebuttal to the State's contentions, said the United States Supreme Court would be afforded the opportunity in this case, if appealed, to write a complete opinion on the right of free speech for guidance of the lower courts.
The case, he said, is a "tempest in a teapot." There is "absolutely nothing in the case that touches on a tendency to injure the Government," he said.

Basis of Attack on Law.

Whitney North Seymour of New York, former Assistant Solicitor-General of the United States, another defense attorney, reviewed yesterday the basis of the attack on the constitutionality of the law.
"The main constitutional questions are whether the statute unduly restricted the right of free speech and assembly; whether Herndon was deprived of his liberty without the due process of law;
and whether the nature of the evidence violated Herndon's constitutional rights," Seymour said.

Sutherland said the habeas corpus petition was based on the contention that the insurrection law was unconstitutional in that it violated the constitutions of the United States and Georgia.

Another Conviction Set Aside.
Pointing out that the law was passed in 1866, he said only one man was convicted under it, and that conviction was set aside in 1968.

"It is unusual that Georgia, where good relations exist between the Negro and white man and where the Negro has played no part in our political life, should single out a Negro boy for his first victim under the insurrection statute," Sutherland said.

"This law places Georgia in a ridiculous light before the world."

In Herndon's original trial, the State charged he was plotting to set up a Negro republic in the South. The State demanded the death penalty, but Herndon was saved by a recommendation for mercy by the jury. Since then, his cause has been supported by the International Labor Defense, the Communist and Socialist parties and numerous other organizations.

Crawford County Votes for Bonds.
STEELEVILLE, Mo., Nov. 13.— Crawford County voted 6 to 1 in a special election yesterday to issue bonds to pay a public debt of $85,000. The proposition carried in every precinct except Bourbon by a two-thirds majority.

Quintuplets "Lecturers" Admitted.

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Nov. 13.—Two Callender (Ontario) farm women who aided at the birth of the Dionne quintuplets entered the United States yesterday after sponsors of a lecture tour had posted $1000 bond. The two, Mrs. Alex Le Gros and Mrs. Ben Le Bel, had remained in Windsor, Ont., for 10 days after they were refused admission by immigration authorities.

MORE MILES PER TANKFUL 'ROUND TOWN

Shell has now found a way to reduce the waste of "stop-and-go" driving. In Super-Shell gasoline you get three different kinds of power in perfect balance. And save in three ways:

Can save up to a cupful of gasoline on every "cold" start

Can save up to a cupful of gasoline in 10 minutes of sleep high-climbing

Can save up to another cupful of gasoline in 1 hour of steady running

These three big savings mean many more miles of driving from every tankful. Stop for 10 gallons of Super-Shell today.

A Cheerful Briton.
That German Steel.
Danger to Their Souls.
Nietzsche's Sister.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(Copyright, 1935.)

MAJOR L. B. ANGAS, British financier, addressing American Bankers' Association says "confidence has returned to the United States, fear has clined, monetary velocity will increase. There will be an immediate boom—first, in consum-ables; second, in plant and machinery; third, in housing industries."

The British Major—may all say be verified and multiplied ten—says truly there is any amount of money in America, but it
"volves" too slowly. It will speed up and "revolve," or change hands 35 times a year.

If Lloyds would insure the accuracy of the Major's prediction, good many would buy policies.

The particularly offensive plan to buy in Germany steel to build the Triborough bridge in New York will probably NOT through. It is explained by the concerned that they can buy 1,000 pounds of German steel for less than half the American price. As a further "reason" it said, "American firms submit identical bids."

The Government's Blue Eagle was invented to prevent price cutting; but that is not the question is the difference in price or the fact that work is taken from American workers to give it German workers, the most important fact. Buying steel in German helping to finance the German steel industry and Mr. Hitler's program with American dollars, would seem to endorse Hitler's program of persecution. That is the important fact.

A movie news reel photograph in Ethiopia, Edward Genock, who assaulted when he tried to make moving pictures of warriors Harar. The Ethiopians beat the camera man, explaining afterward "we shall lose our souls if we photograph." That will surprise Hollywood where the belief is that other way around. Once, it was generally believed, even by religious Christians, that if you made a miniature figure of a man and stuck pins in it at intervals, you would kill the original. Man is superstitious biped.

Mrs. Elizabeth Foerster, whose brother, the German philosopher Nietzsche, preached the coming of the "superman" is buried at the age of 89. Nietzsche, during his late years, was insane, and tend-ly cared for by his sister. They were his happy years.

When he observed her looking at him, and weeping, he said, "Are you not happy, sister?" When someone spoke of books, he, then among the most famous writers in Europe, said to his sister, "I once wrote a book."

Nietzsche, who died in 1900 when Hitler was a little boy in Austria, would have been surprised had he ghost, at the funeral of his sister seen Hitler dictatorial ruler of the German Empire.

Hitler was not Nietzsche's idea of the "superman."

Emperor Haile Selassie discloses his strategy. His warriors are not frightened by tanks, machine gun-roaring airplanes, and have not been "running away." They have been "turning the Italians on, deeper and deeper into the Ethiopian waderness." At the right time they "conquering lion of Ethiopia" will turn on the field of battle, leading his men in a major engagement.

"We are arranging a disposition of our troops in accordance with this conception," says the Negro Mussolini says he is arranging things in accordance with a different conception.

Italy's Armistice day parade, reviewed by Mussolini, showed "we as it is," including "chemical section" troops wearing masks and clothing to protect them against gas and fire. It included tiny tanks suitable for narrow mountain paths loaded on rubber-tired, two-wheeled cradles, hitched behind trucks. It included also two battalions of crippled war veterans.
Altogether, it was not a good advertisement for war, but Mussolini believes in facts.

If you offend a British subject
England does something about it.
Hitler accused Capt. Aue, British Consul at Hanover, of spying offering no proof, and sent Capt.
Aue back to England. Immediately
the British Government deported Dr. H. W. Thost, correspondent in London of the Voelkischer Beobachter, and leader of the Nazi organization in England.

England takes the ground that

A Cheerful Briton.
That German Steel.
Danger to Their Souls.
Nietzsche's Sister.

MAJOR L. B. ANGAS, British financier, addressing the American Bankers' Association says "confidence has returned to the United States, fear has declined, monetary velocity will increase. There will be an immediate boom—first, in consumer goods; second, in plant and machinery; third, in housing industries."

The British Major—may all he says be verified and multiplied by ten—says truly there is any amount of money in America, but it "revolves" too slowly. It will soon speed up and "revolve," or change hands 35 times a year.

If Lloyds would insure the accuracy of the Major's prediction, a good many would buy policies.

The particularly offensive plan to buy in Germany steel to build the Triborough bridge in New York will probably NOT go through. It is explained by those concerned that they can buy 1,000,000 pounds of German steel piling for less than half the American price. As a further "reason" it is said, "American firms submitted identical bids."

The Government's Blue Eagle was invented to prevent price cutting; but that is not the question, nor is the difference in price or the fact that work is taken from American workers to give it to German workers, the most important fact. Buying steel in Germany, helping to finance the German steel industry and Mr. Hitler's program with American dollars, would seem to endorse Hitler's program of persecution. That is the important fact.

A movie news reel photographer in Ethiopia, Edward Genock, was assaulted when he tried to make moving pictures of warriors at Harar. The Ethiopians beat the camera man, explaining afterward "we shall lose our souls if we are photographed." That will surprise Hollywood where the belief is the other way around. Once, it was generally believed, even by real Christians, that if you made a wax miniature figure of a man and stuck pins in it at intervals, you would kill the original. Man is a superstitious biped.

Mrs. Elizabeth Foerster, whose brother, the German philosopher, Nietzsche, preached the coming of the "superman," is buried at the age of 89. Nietzsche, during his late years, was insane, and tenderly cared for by his sister. They were his happy years.

When he observed her looking at him, and weeping, he said, "Are we not happy, sister?" When someone spoke of books, he, then among the most famous writers in Europe, said to his sister, "I once wrote a book."

Nietzsche, who died in 1900 when Hitler was a little boy in Austria, would have been surprised had his ghost, at the funeral of his sister, seen Hitler dictatorial ruler of the German Empire.

Hitler was not Nietzsche's idea of the "superman."

Emperor Haile Selassie discloses his strategy. His warriors are not frightened by tanks, machine guns, roaring airplanes, and have not been "running away." They have been "tiring the Italians on, deeper and deeper into the Ethiopian wilderness." At the right time the "conquering lion of Ethiopia" will turn and crush those Italians, himself on the field of battle, leading his men in a major engagement.

"We are arranging a disposition of our troops in accordance with this conception," says the Negus. Mussolini says he is arranging things in accordance with a different conception.

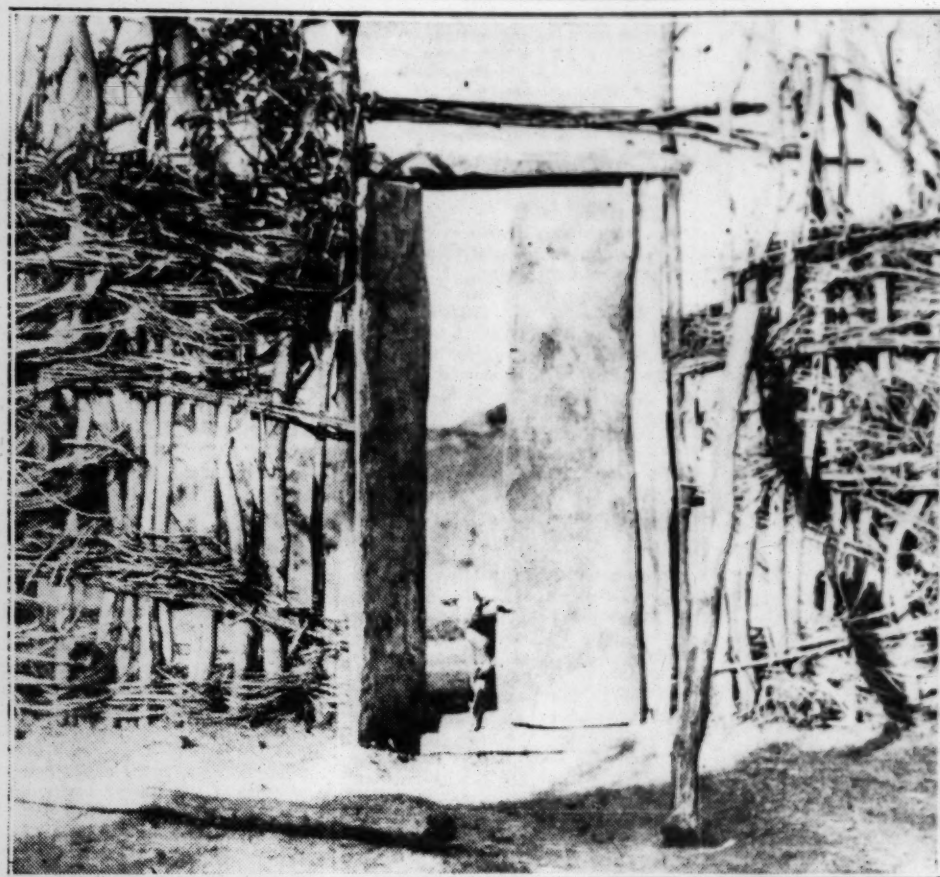

Italy's Armistice day parade, reviewed by Mussolini, showed "war as it is," including "chemical section" troops wearing masks and gas and clothing to protect them against gas and fire. It included tiny tanks suitable for narrow mountain paths, loaded on rubber-tired, two-wheeled cradles, hitched behind trucks. It included also two battalions of crippled war veterans. Altogether, it was not a good advertisement for war, but Mussolini believes in facts.

If you offend a British subject, England does something about it.

Hitler accused Capt. Aue, British Consul at Hanover, of spying, offering no proof, and sent Capt. Aue back to England. Immediately the British Government deports Dr. H. W. Thost, correspondent in London of the Voelkischer Beobachter, and leader of the Nazi organization in England.

England takes the ground that

The "Why?" In Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

THE most dreadful word in the entire vocabulary of bridge is "why?" I have seen and heard more quarrels begun at the bridge table by this simple three-letter word than by all the contents of a dictionary combined.

When a bridge player makes a mistake, it is not because he wants to do something stupid. He is playing to the best of his ability, and trying to find the right bid and the right play all the time. If he has a brainstorm and blunders, he usually knows about it at once, and is as sorry as any one, even his partner. He has no reason for making the mistake. With a sound reason he would not have erred.

That is why the word "why" is so menacing. It is unnecessary, and there cannot be a satisfactory answer to it. But often, after an obvious blunder, you will hear some one shouting, "Why did you make that bid?" or "Why didn't you return my lead?"

COWARDICE has no more place in bridge than in any walk of life. Undue pessimism often leads to fear of the consequences and this causes cowardly play. The declarer, in the hand below, decided, simply because he was pessimistic, that a certain key card was unfavorably placed. He based his play of the hand on this pessimistic notion, and refused to take a chance which would have made the game for him. Instead, he was set one trick.

The bidding (North-South vulnerable):
NORTH EAST SOUTH WEST
1♠ 1♥ 1♠ Pass
2♦ Pass 3♦ Pass
3NT Pass 4♦ (final bid)

West opened the ten of hearts and East captured the queen with his ace. The singleton club was returned, after West took his ace he returned a club, which East ruffed. Now the defenders had three tricks, and East returned the ten of spades. South could have made his contract by finessing for the king, but he was so afraid that West had the king, in which case West would get the lead and East could ruff another club, that South put up the ace of spades. Then he led the spade queen, and discovered, to his chagrin, that it was East who won the setting trick with the king.

Today's Question: With a two suited hand, such as:
♠ A Q J 6 3, ♥ A, ♦ 10 8 7 6 4 2, ♣ 6, which suit should you bid first?
Answer: The spade suit is better in this case, for if you should play the hand defensively later, you would not want your partner's opening lead to be in diamonds. When a six card suit is headed by as good a card as the queen, however, you usually should bid it in preference to any five card suit, however strong.

A Wardrobe for Varied Occasions

The Winter Outfits of an Active St. Louis Woman

By Sylvia Stiles

WHEN a woman has as many demands upon her time as does Mrs. Donaldson Lambert, president of the Junior League of St. Louis, she must have costumes not only complete and up-to-date in every detail but always ready for use. She may be attending a board meeting in the morning, presiding at a luncheon at noon, introducing an out-of-town celebrity at the tea hour and then hurrying to an important dinner engagement. Shopping expeditions in which her four boys play an important part also claim her attention as do jaunts with these same youngsters through the beautiful woods surrounding her home in the Country Club grounds.

Any wardrobe which is on "dress parade" from early morning until late at night is certain to bring comment, either praise or critical from an interested public. In the case of that of Mrs. Lambert there is always praise with the result that she has come to be known as one of the best-dressed women in St. Louis. She always appears appropriately and becomingly costumed, wearing her clothes with a certain dignified nonchalance which is both refreshing and pleasing.

Certain colors appeal to her and she includes them in her wardrobe along with conventional black and white schemes for definite needs. One of her most interesting ensembles is a tweed sports suit which introduces a very wide herringbone weave and combines wine red with navy blue. The hip length jacket is fitted but instead of regulation sleeves it has shoulder capes that give the garment the appearance of a cape. The skirt is straight of line. Navy hat, footwear and gloves contribute to the smartness of this ensemble. A green costume consisting of sheer wool shirtwaist frock and swagger corduroy coat is also flattering and illustrates Mrs. Lambert's careful selection of colors that suit her.

The morning costume which this busy club executive wears frequently is a tailored suit of cinnamon brown mannish woolen. The jacket is hip length and fitted slightly. Collar has tailored, notched lapels. A dull red composition belt is tucked into a breast pocket. The skirt is gored. A brown felt knockabout hat and brown shoes complement this suit. A tweed coat is added on cold days.

The tailored luncheon costume which Mrs. Lambert is wearing in the photograph is of wool crepe, rather sheer of texture. Black braid is arranged across the front to form large military frogs. It also binds the collar and the bell-shaped sleeves. The skirt is straight of line. Mrs. Lambert's hat is a pillbox of black felt which has sections of pleated bright blue grosgrain ribbon sewed at intervals on the closely-fitted upturned brim. The suede oxford shoes follow the new trend of square toes and low heels. Suede gloves which have cuffs and cordings of satin and a swagger leather bag are noteworthy of the careful choice of accessories. One of the new bow watches is worn at the waistline. A silver fox scarf, always an elegant asset in any wardrobe, adds its beauty to this ensemble.

Another black frock which Mrs. Lambert finds very satisfactory for daytime needs, especially for luncheons and afternoons, is of dull black crepe. The high cowl neckline is especially adaptable to the wearing of a pearl choker, a costume jewelry piece which many well-dressed women regard as indispensable. Sleeves are set into raglan shoulders that extend almost to the waistline in depth but gradually tighten until they fit very snugly at the wrists. The skirt has a cluster of pleats at the front.

Current Buns

They just seem to melt in your mouth. Mix one-half yeast cake into one cup water and then stir into three cups milk. Add enough flour to make a soft sponge. Let rise overnight. Next morning add one cup sugar, one cup butter and one-half teaspoon soda dissolved in one tablespoon water. Let rise until very light, then add flour and one cup currants. Knead and make into buns. Put into tins and let rise again. Bake until lightly browned. Rub tops with butter while baking to make them shine.

Crab Gumbo

A little out of the ordinary and very nice. Mince and brown in butter one green pepper and one onion. Add two slices of finely minced boiled ham and stir in one quart of vegetable stock. Add one pint sliced okra pods, one cup tomato pulp and one pint crabmeat. Season with salt and black pepper. Blend three tablespoons flour and three of butter and add to the mixture. Bring to a boil and serve.

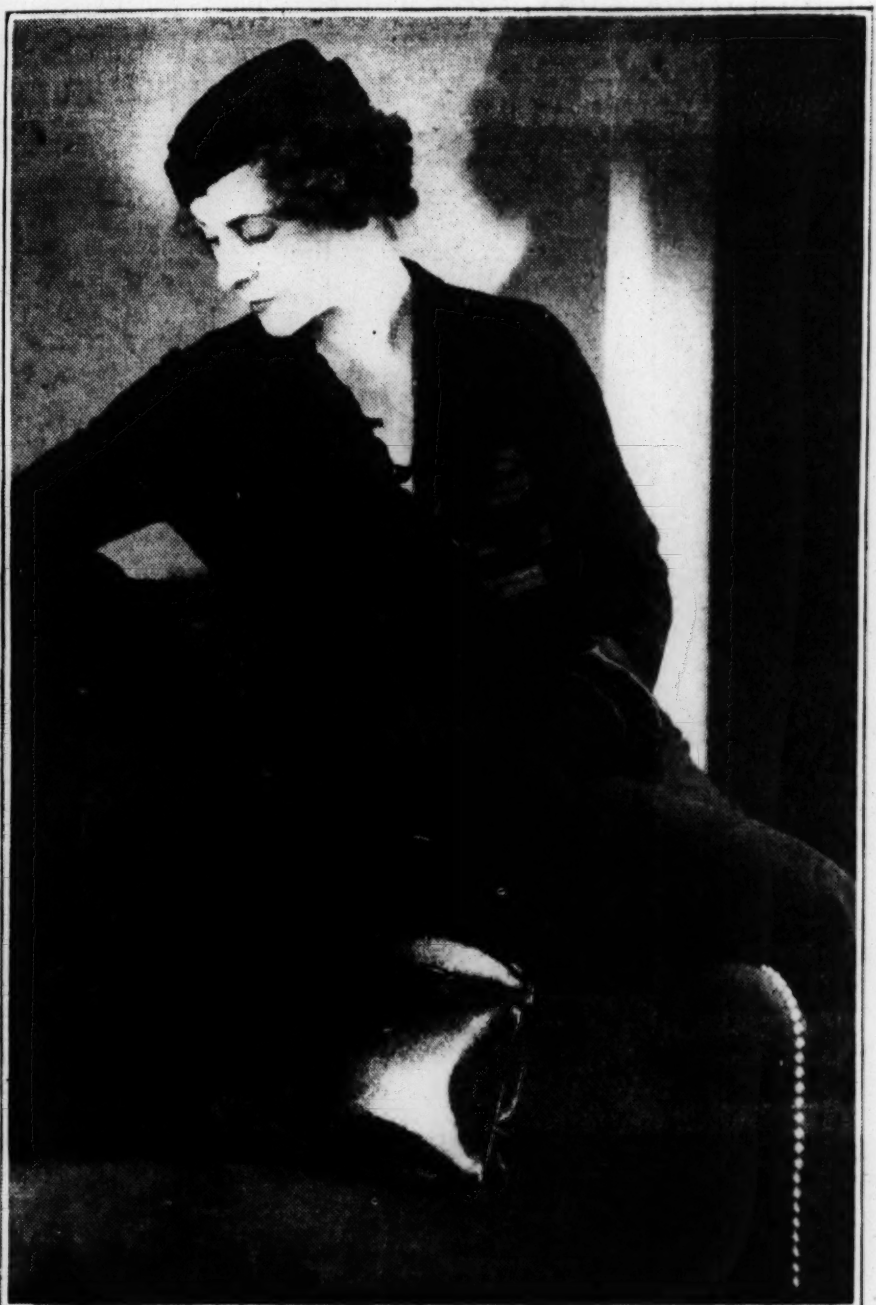

Savory String Beans
Boil string beans in salted water until tender, adding two slices of bacon to the water to boil along with the beans. Drain and reheat in two tablespoons olive oil, two tablespoons vinegar, salt and pepper. Mix well and serve. A different, pleasing favor.

that are stitched half way down. A pointed peplum extends across the back of the dress and becomes narrower to form a belt at the front where it fastens with covered buttons and loops. A striking hat of black felt which Mrs. Lambert has selected to complement this dress has a shirred felt bow across the front. Simple black patent leather pumps are her preference. A mink coat is her logical choice of a wrap to wear with this ensemble.

TWO black frocks are notable examples of the evening attire of this well-dressed St. Louis woman. One, a dinner dress, is of crepe. It has a high neckline which ties on the right shoulder. The bodice is sleeveless but quite wide at the armholes which are outlined with brilliant and metal bands. Shirring at the neckline accentuates this width of bodice. The skirt is cut on the bias so that it moulds the figure, and is floor length.

A more formal dress of black satin is designed along Grecian lines with the fullness concentrated at the center front where fastenings are concealed behind shirred drapery. The bodice is cut into a rather low V at the front and a waistline square at the back. Shoulders are quite narrow. The skirt follows the new trend of showing the tips of the slippers at the front and dipping to form a slight train at the back. The fabric belt fastens with a gold leaf and jeweled buckle.

Mrs. Lambert has a duplicate of this dress, also of satin but of an exquisite shade of orchid violet. She finds it desirable to repeat a style which has proved becoming. A full length wrap of white ermine that is collared with sable is worn appropriately with any winter evening gown.

New Christmas Seal Design Is Announced

Basic Colors to Be Green and Red—Other Stamp News.

THE National Tuberculosis Association has announced the design selected for the 1935 Christmas seals. The artist who drew the design is Ernest Hamlin Baker.

The seal will be in four colors and shows a little girl placing an envelope in a mail box outlined in green. The letter box, the post and the girl's costume, as well as the hat, coat and shoes, are brown. The tuberculosis seal, the girl's hands, hair, skirt and boot-tops are red, with gray-blue covering most of the balance of the design.

The four corners in the sheet of 100 seals have had that particular seal replaced this year with a large red double-barred cross, having as a background a modernistic pediment with one of the following four slogans, "Help Fight Tuberculosis," "Protect Your Home From Tuberculosis," "Tuberculosis Is Preventable" and "Tuberculosis Is Curable."

This year's seals are printed by four printers and each printer has used an identifying mark. Eureka has added an extra vertical row of shading on the front part of the girl's skirt on seal No. 60. Strobridge has added two brown dashes on the blue frame in the left bottom corner of the sheet position No. 100. U. S. P. & L. have added a blue dot under the post on seal No. 55, and Columbia has added a small blue "C" under the post on seal No. 99. As for the perforations, Eureka's perforations are 12½x12½, comb perforation, and the others have used a regular 12½ straight line perforation.

Items of Interest.
The first day sales of the Michigan Centennial stamp at Lansing, Mich., totaled 557,746, face value $16,732.38. There were 176,962 covers cancelled.

The plate numbers used for the Michigan Centennial stamp are Nos. 21467, 21469, 21470 and 21471. Plate No. 21468 was damaged and was destroyed. The stamps were printed by rotary press and the total order was for 65 million stamps.

Perfect block view of an old Dutch mill with two arms of the windmill showing over the top of the mill can be seen by turning the Boulder Dam stamp upside down and looking at the dam itself.

A stamp will be issued to commemorate the Centennial of Arkansas' admission as a state.

The Transpacific airmail stamp will be issued Nov. 22. Face value, 25 cents.

AUSTRIA—A charity series of six values will be issued picturing famous Austrian Generals.

BRAZIL—A Red Cross charity stamp picturing a nurse with an unfortunate in her arms has been released. It has a face value of 300 plus 100 reis and is printed in brown and red.

BULGARIA—A series of stamps has been issued honoring Hadji Dimitri. They are 1 leva green, 2 leva chocolate, 4 leva red, 7 leva light blue and 14 leva orange.

TONGA—A new duty stamp will be issued picturing the Queen. Its value will be 1½d and will be printed in black and gray.

ZANZIBAR—A new series of postage and revenue stamps will be released. The values and colors are 5c green, 10c black, 15c red, 20c orange, 25c purple on yellow, 30c blue, 40c sepia, 50c purple, green, 2c purple, 3c red, 7c blue, 10c green and brown, 20c black and green and 50c orange bistre. New postage due stamps as follows: 5c blue purple, 10c red, 20c green, 30c blue, 40c brown and 14 gray.

Footwear Even white or black satin or crepe slippers this season usually have gold kid trimming in piping or uppers. Then there is the satin sandal stitched in gold or silver thread, effective with the metal lame gowns of the season.

The Desperado Hat Is Newest For the Beach

By Dorothy Roe

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.

THE desperado hat, done in the desperate manner of Francois Villon, is the big news of the beach hat department. It's in straw, with a devil-may-care high crown and a villainous brim, and there's no telling how many casualties you may cause if you wear it in the correctly desperate manner.

If you shrink at the alien measures of the desperado hat, you may wear a knitted Santa Claus cap or a Greek helmet with your beach clothes. Or you may prefer to twist a cotton kerchief in a primitive print around your head, in the best Ethiopian fashion.

If your permanent wave has gone gaga, you may have a rubber hat cap complete with rubber curls, all clustered at the side in the approved coiffure style of the moment.

If you're a news hound, you'll like the beach accessory sets of cotton newsprint, done up in halters, beach hats, bags and even whole play suits.

Modern mermaids will go for the beach hats which are nothing but brims made of dried fish scales, that look like seashells.

And for the beach exhibitionist there are colorful hula-hula skirts made of wool yarn fringe. It's a good idea to wear a bathing suit beneath, to avoid censor trouble.

And you may have a cape to match. Your rope belt may have a whistle attached this season, so you may whistle for the boy friend when he strays.

Sandals may be either leather or canvas this year, but they must be colorful, and they must show your toes.

And if you want a tan without sunburn, you do it with a cellophane hat.

The School Lunch
Combination sandwiches of lunch-roll and American cheese, cream cheese and jelly used together makes a tasty filling. Slices of lettuce and tomato leaves of lettuce with a tiny bit of salad dressing. Chopped hard-boiled egg combined with chopped olives and mayonnaise adds variety when no meat is at hand. If no cake is on hand to add a nice touch, don't forget nut bread with jelly in between is a very nice sweet sandwich.

Pineapple and cane fields for miles cover the island. We are 25 miles from town and 10 miles from the beach and the ground around here is red and dry—volcanic. The climate is hot, a nasty moist heat, or cold dampness. All of us hope when our time is up we will never see the place again. Servants ask shocking wages and are worthless. We have a man who gets $40 dollars a month, a cook, and will do nothing else. The women are worse. It is shocking to think of the many unemployed at home who would gladly do the work and are well paid to bring over a ship-load and replace all these orientals, at the post alone! There must be a thousand paid well, and are a "pain in the neck" to those that employ them. I have known them in China, Japan, India and other places and they are different in their own home. I may return before our time is up and join my sons in St. Louis. Wish I could return to-day! With kind regards, yours sincerely, E. G.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I answer to a "Prize Book." I say to him: You have nothing to kick about. I am 11 years old, and I "hit the hay" between 7:30 and 8:15 "clock all year round. And I get up at 6 during the winter and 5 during summer. It isn't that I feel like going to bed early, either, or getting up, either, for that matter; but I feel a lot better and peppier during the day. Besides, my parents never believed in night-owing, and I don't much either.

JUST A KID.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I wonder if you might find room in your column for my letter. I hope, in order to get some Christmas toys for my four small children, that I may get some work to do, laundry work in exchange, for them. I would be ever so grateful.

IF YOU ASK My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr: I AM a girl 16 years old and would like you to tell me what to do and what not to do.

1-At a public skating rink, should a girl dance with a fellow who does not know? 2-If a girl is invited to a place where she is to bring a date, is it proper to ask a fellow who has never asked her for a date? 3-When going on a date, should a girl be all ready and waiting when the boy calls or should she make him wait a few minutes? 4-Should the girl or the fellow suggest the place to go? 5-When the girl is taken home does the fellow expect to be asked in; if so what form of amusement should the girl show him? 6-Do you think it is wrong for a girl my age to drink and smoke? INEXPERIENCED.

I am very sure you know how to answer that first question yourself. You must know that a boy can have little respect for a girl he can pick up and dance with in a public place, without introduction. 2-I should let the boy ask for the first date. 3-Be ready, but not waiting breathlessly. 4-Let the boy decide what to do and dance with in a public place, without introduction. 5-I should let the boy ask for the first date. 6-I think both smoking and drinking are none too good for the nerves and general health, and, for this reason, if for no other, a very young girl should let them alone.

Dear Mrs. Carr: YOU think some reader of your column would give me piano lessons in exchange for work? I am unable to continue and am rapidly becoming an ex-pianist. I am a boy 19 and am willing to work hard for my lessons. Please don't suggest putting this request in the "Swaps" ads, because I haven't the money. I enclose references. EAGER.

Dear Mrs. Carr: I GUESS many of the girls who write you wish that good fortune would come their way. I am a girl 16 years old and would like you to tell me what to do and what not to do.

1-At a public skating rink, should a girl dance with a fellow who does not know? 2-If a girl is invited to a place where she is to bring a date, is it proper to ask a fellow who has never asked her for a date? 3-When going on a date, should a girl be all ready and waiting when the boy calls or should she make him wait a few minutes? 4-Should the girl or the fellow suggest the place to go? 5-When the girl is taken home does the fellow expect to be asked in; if so what form of amusement should the girl show him? 6-Do you think it is wrong for a girl my age to drink and smoke? INEXPERIENCED.

The Capitalist As a Cause of The Depression

A Columnist With Socialist Leanings Speaks in His Favor.

By Elsie Robinson

I'VE never in my life heard so much cockeyed nonsense as I've heard lately. And not from nitwits or babblers, either. For Priceless Piffle, the supposedly enlightened lead 'em all.

I refer to these endless discussions about the Depression—that being practically the only conversation we've had for years 'n' years with everyone blaming the Capitalists for the plight we're in. Which, I stoutly maintain, is utter tommyrot.

Needless to say that I, being a writer, am NOT a Capitalist. Moreover, to show how far I am from being one, I was brought up a Socialist and still am strong for the notion. I believe emphatically in giving everyone a square and even deal—and in kicking the tar out of anyone who tries to run the program. But when it comes to blaming Capitalists and Capitalism for all the evils we now suffer—phooey!

After all—what is a Capitalist? He's somebody who sells something and makes a fat profit thereby. But does that necessarily ruin you or me? Has that necessarily caused the depression?

It has NOT. It's not the THING FOR SALE which busts you and me—but the THING WE BUY. The Capitalist can't make any profit out of you or me unless we buy his stuff. And the minute we buy his stuff, we're as responsible as he.

Mind you, I'm not denying that there are a lot of unfair and dishonest business practices. Also much cruel exploitation of labor. But this idea that we would end all our misery if he abolished the Capitalist is poppycock and nothing else but.

The Capitalist is frequently a Rascal. But he's no worse actor than you and I. Human selfishness is human selfishness whether it wears broadcloth or denim. There's not a smitch of difference between the vanity, laziness, greed and stupidity of the rich, and the vanity, laziness, greed and stupidity of the poor.

The Capitalist doesn't "exploit" us any worse than we exploit ourselves. And if we rubbed out every Capitalist tomorrow morning we'd be cut out the habits and traits which cause the evils of Capitalism and leave us open them.

WE'RE IN THIS DEPRESSION BECAUSE WE PUT OURSELVES THERE. We're in it because we all—rich and poor alike—wanted to live too soft and put on too large a front. And we still want to! 'S' far as I can see, we haven't learned a mite of sense out of all this misery. All we've learned is bigger 'n' badder cuss words to hurl at the Capitalist.

And maybe that would be the Right Dope for some countries. . . countries where the average citizen is little if any better than a dumb beast.

AN OLD-TIMER RETURNS

As Gaspard in "Chimes of Normandy."

Frank Moulan Back in St. Louis After Long Absence—Veteran of Light Opera Bright and Chipper As Ever.

By Virginia Irwin

MORE than 50 years ago, Frank Moulan, a skinny kid with a high voice, sang in the choir of a New York church with one eye on the hymn book and the other on the opera house across the street. Finally, at 18, he wangled a job in the chorus out of Jules Murray, manager of the famous old Calhoun Opera Company, quit the choir and embarked upon the career in the theater that has brought him fame as a comedian. Now the last of the old time funny men has returned to St. Louis—where he was a great success with the Municipal Opera many years ago—in a revival of Gilbert and Sullivan, as alert and enthusiastic as ever.

"Quit? Not as long as they'll let me play," he laughed during a chat in his room at a downtown hotel. "Besides it takes money to retire, and I haven't any."

Frank Moulan does not look the 62 years which he admits. An impudent polka dot bow tie offsets the serious effect created by silver-rimmed spectacles, and Frank, himself, talks of things of 48 years ago as though they happened only yesterday.

He tells how, after a few weeks of chorusing with the Calhoun Opera Company, he was informed by Jules Murray that he was being promoted to the excited position of "property boy." Frank thought it was a swell job. He would have his name on the program. But the elation was short lived. He discovered that "property man" meant being only a stage hand who had to furnish all the props for the company except the scenery, wrestle trunks for the members of the cast, and help load and unload baggage cars.

But those days the prop man had to borrow everything," he explains. "If you wanted a bedstead you had to go out and talk somebody out of it. Nothing was bought; it was borrowed. And I soon found out that it was no easy job borrowing dozens of props in every town we played."

So Moulan went to Murray and told him he wanted to resign but Murray pointed out that that was impossible because the programs were already printed showing his name as property man. This went on for weeks, with Frank trying to resign at every performance. Finally his opportunity came. In one scene, the leading man was supposed to be condemned to die at 10 o'clock, but was saved by a reprieve arriving at the last moment. Suspense was furnished the audience by a huge clock in the steeple of the scene whose hands slowly moved forward toward the fatal hour. To accomplish this effect, Frank had to stand on a step-ladder and move the hands from behind the scenes.

FRANK MOULAN as he looks today.

The Correct Use Of Terms Of Apology

"Excuse Me," "I'm Sorry" and "I Beg Your Pardon" Are All Used.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: If you please explain the difference in the use of "I beg your pardon," "excuse me," and "I'm sorry" that is, if all three are in good taste? And will you tell me why "Pardon me" has gone out of fashion?

Answer: The phrases "Excuse me," "I'm sorry," and "I beg your pardon" are all in best taste and their meanings are almost interchangeable, depending upon the tone in which they are said. "Excuse me" (if said coldly) is a polite demand. For instance, you would say "excuse me" to one blocking your way when you want to get off a train or a bus. But a warmer tone could make "excuse me" a plea to be excused for an awkwardness on your part. "I'm sorry" is usually said when what you do is annoying. You would say "excuse me" to people whom you are obliged to cross in order to reach your own seats at a theater. If they stand to let you go by or if they have to disarrange themselves in any way, you would add, "Oh, I'm sorry!"

"I beg your pardon" is usually evidence that you are awkward or on the verge of being rude. If you stumble over some one or knock into some one, or spill something over them, or if you contradict or do say anything that might seem tactless or rude, then you say "I beg your pardon."

"Pardon me" is tabu now—as it has ever been—in the fashionable world, and it is particularly tabu because a hall-mark of the social upstart. The nearest parallel is the ebony cane with an ivory top, which is typical of musical comedy dancers and motion picture actors. It is true that it makes a good theatrical effect, but in the smart world of real life it is tabu to such a degree that a novelist could not more completely indicate a social outsider than by saying "He carried an ebony cane and said pardon me."

Dear Mrs. Post: Before I was married my name was, let's say, Jane Lee Doe, and under that name I made a reputation as a pianist. I am now married and because of my profession got quite a little publicity in the newspapers at that time. Under what name should I now appear professionally and how should I be introduced at these appearances?

Answer: Either continue to use your former name and to be introduced as Miss Jane Lee Doe, or ask that your name appear on the program as Jane Lee Doe Blank and that you be presented as Mrs. Blank.

Bears Awakened By Willy in Very Effective Manner

By Mary Graham Bonner

"W HAT were they doing up on the roof?" he asked Rip.
"They wanted to repair it for you and I suppose they had become too heavy," Rip answered.
"Yes, I imagine so," nodded Willy Nilly. "They had told me, too, that they were going to fix my roof for me. They were trying so hard to help."

Christopher had come back with the flashlight. Now, Willy Nilly looked the bears over carefully once again and was sure that their heavy fur and good strong bodies had protected them from being hurt.

But the wind was blowing and the room was chilly and he could not rouse the bears.

"I'll have to put up some boards and fix the roof as soon as morning comes," said Willy Nilly. "But I think the bears should be awakened
—if only to tell me how they feel. I know what I'll do."

"Take this key, Rip, and see if there is ANY JELLY OR HONEY
IN THE PANTRY."

Willy Nilly raised his voice, and at the sound of the words honey and jelly, first Honey Bear stirred and then opened her eyes, and soon Jelly Bear moved and opened his eyes, and the cubs moved and said
in gruff voices:

"We're very hungry. Is it almost time for supper?"

"Yes, supper!" cried Willy Nilly.
And then he ran downstairs and quickly as he could prepared some food with a special treat of honey in the honeycomb and jelly, sandwiches.

The bears were wide awake now.

Dr. Wiggam's Questions The Day on the Radio

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

Ellsworth Huntington has shown in "Builders of America," that the Yale classmen of the '90s destined for greatest life success, somewhat outranked the least successful in college athletics. However, the tendency has grown since then for men to go to college—or be brought to college—chiefly for athletics. This draws in a great many non-intellectual men. Consequently, nowadays, athletic success is no indication of life success, but in former times it was apparently a slight indication of later worldly success.

2.—Yes, because we instinctively feel that if the race had been made up of "good, weak," wobbly individuals it never would have got out of the jungle and evolved upward.
For this reason, while we do not admire the strong master criminal as such,
we do admire the traits in his character of daring decision, clearness of purpose, willingness to risk all on the turn of a card or the fifth of a second in speed. We, therefore, overlook faults in a strong person who "gets things done" more than in one whose chief distinction is that he "never does nobody harm."

3.—Far more difficult, but a far nobler adventure. Women formerly married, to an immense degree, from social and family custom and from economic pressure. But now, since women can earn money, the love and spiritual motives predominate. Call this foolish romanticism, or what you will, it is here and if the spiritual and romantic love desires and satisfaction do not work out happily, they readily seek divorce as the simplest remedy for their error of judgment. This means we now need a far profounder education of both sexes for marriage as a spiritual as well as physical fellowship.

For a self-addressed stamped envelope and 10 cents to cover cost to

Seamen's Choice

By George Morrison

SECOND MATE PECKHAM lay back in the stern sheets of the longboat and squinted his eyes against the pitiless glare of the equatorial sun glinting on the copper surface of the Timor Sea. With his right hand he gripped the tiller, in the crook of his left arm nestled Nan, silent and uncomplai-ning.

Forward, under the shelter of the sparre sail stretched across the bows, crouched Larsen. For hours and had barely moved, his mad glance fixed rigidly upon the two in the stern.

The second mate regarded him speculatively. The sailor had undoubtedly gone mad. Three days before, just as the subtropical night had closed in with a rush, the Claremore, out of Melbourne for the Celebes, had rammed a submerged derelict and sunk in a matter of minutes.

Peckham, rowing in the darkness, had managed to pick up Larsen from a floating hatch cover and had found Nan paddling aimlessly in circles a few minutes later. Of the rest of the crew he had seen no trace; the morning had disclosed a vast and empty sea.

"I'm hungry!" moaned Larsen.
His voice in the soundless immensity of the ocean sounded like the crack of doom.

"You'll find some more of those sea biscuits in the locker on your left," directed the mate. "Even if they are soggy with sea water, you'll have to make out with them."
"I need some real food, I'll die," the sailor mumbled. Nevertheless he opened the locker and brought forth the biscuits and apathetically commenced gnawing at one.

"You might throw a couple of them back here," the mate said,
"but you stay where you are!"
Larsen was dangerous.

Only this morning, driven by insistent hunger, he had suggested killing Nan for food. Now Peckham dared not close his eyes lest the insane seaman come aft and murder them both. Three days without food was enough to breed strange fancies!

He picked up the hardtack from where the sailor had tossed them on the footboards and offered one to Nan, who silently began munching upon it, and broke off a small piece of the other and allowed it to soften in his mouth before he chewed it.

At noon he sighted the sun with the sextant from the stern locker, and with a pair of dividers marked off on the map their approximate position. Yesterday he had decided upon their destination... if they lived to make it.

Papua lay to the north, but it was nearer to one of the inhabited coral atolls dotting the Malay archipelago. Luckily, there was one within two days' sail which lay in the steamer lane from Shanghai to Brisbane. If they could only hold out for two more days!

The wind held steady, though it was slight, and Peckham maintained his course through the day and half the night. Strained to a point of exhaustion, he dozed, to be awakened by a cry from Nan. He opened his eyes to find Larsen poised before them, a stubby bowie knife upraised in the act of striking Nan.

"You maniac," shouted the mate,
"get forward where you belong!"
His foot lashed out and Larsen crashed heavily against the foot of the mast and lay there panting heavily, too weak to rise.

Peckham took the pistol from his bribe and held it in his left hand while he steered after that. "I'm master here yet," he warned the sailor, "and you'll do as I say I am responsible for her, and I have my own notions as to what is going to happen to what is going to

Maybe It's a Good-will Plan

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

PWA seems to be doing a little home relief shopping in Europe. It's like the patriotic lady who bought her gowns in Paris and had the buttons sewed on in Terre Haute.

We know the longest way 'round is the shortest way home. But not for the home relief.

Buying steel and cement in Europe cannot be called patronizing your neighborhood druggist.

We admit that steel is cheaper in Europe. But so are wages, pledges and human life.

FAKED HER STORY

Mrs. Izetta Johnson Asserts Lawyer Caused Her to Testify to Fictitious Conversation.

MORE EVIDENCE ON FALSE INJURY CASE

Witness Declares Attorney Instructed Her in What to Say at Bar Committee Hearing.

Everett Hullverson, chief defendant in a proceeding for disbarment of four lawyers, was charged by a woman witness, at today's hearing of the case, with inventing not only false details of fact, but an entirely fictitious conversation, to which he caused her to testify in a damage suit.

The witness, Mrs. Izetta Johnson of 1631A South Broadway, was with Clara Thomas when the latter slipped and fell on a banana in a South Side grocery Nov. 20, 1931. Clara Thomas was pre-arranged, and that Mrs. Johnson's brother, Ed Carver, planned the accident and "planted" the banana on the floor. Mrs. Johnson testified today, as Clara Thomas has testified previously, that Hullverson directed them both, in their testimony in Circuit Court, to falsify details of occurrences in the store, as related by them to him.

Invented Conversation. "Mr. Hullverson also told me to testify, and I did testify, falsely," Mrs. Johnson said, "that after the accident I said to the store manager, 'You should keep your store cleaner,' and that he answered, 'I'm sorry, but we haven't had the time. No such conversation took place.' The hearing was adjourned at 3:30 p. m. until 10 a. m. Tuesday. It is being conducted by John S. Farrington of Springfield as Special Commissioner for the Missouri Supreme Court. A good-sized gathering, including a number of lawyers, has been attending the hearing in Division 4 of the Civil Courts Building.

Robert L. Pribble is associated with Hullverson in the testimony relating to the banana case, but George Wise representing the Bar Committee, indicated yesterday that the evidence did not carry Pribble all the way through the case. It is charged that Hullverson continued, as he did not at first know, that the banana accident was faked. Pribble is not shown by the record to have remained in the case so long. However, witnesses have charged him with soliciting a lawsuit, which is an offense against the law and professional ethics.

Silicosis Cases Later. After another day or two of the banana case, it is expected that the hearing will turn to the silicosis damage suits, which form a large part of the Bar Committee's complaint against Hullverson. In these cases Hullverson, Pribble, Eugene J. Schmitz and Francis O. Curran, associated in law practice in the International Building, are defendants. All are charged with a conspiracy to engage in unprofessional and unethical practices, in representing employees of mining and industrial companies, suing for alleged injuries from silicosis, a disease caused by inhalation of mineral dust.

Testimony in the silicosis cases is expected to run two weeks or longer. Subpenas issued in the case have indicated that more than 50 of the silicosis suits are to be gone into.

Payments to Witnesses. At the opening of the third day's session today, Patrick H. Cullen, counsel for Hullverson, said testimony on the first two days of the hearing had shown that sums of money were paid to witnesses, and asked whether the Bar Committee paid the money. Wise, for the committee, replied to the question. "The expense of bringing the witnesses here for this trial," Wise said, "and their witness fees were to be paid out of the bar fund." This fund is raised by a $3 annual levy on all practicing lawyers of the state. "I understand the National Lead Co. paid some money to witnesses," Wise added. "This was not paid from the bar fund." "I am not charging corrupt use of the bar fund," Cullen said. "But I do hold that the Bar Committee has used testimony obtained by payments of money by others." The National Lead Co. was de-
